

OLD-TIME FIRE IN COLONEL IS PASSED

Anne Shannon Monroe Tells of Reception by One of Biggest Crowds at Fair.

WOMEN IN CROWD FAINT

Speech Is Considered More Scolding Than Challenge and Parted Lips Interpreted as More of a Snarl Than Smile.

BY ANNE SHANNON MONROE.

OREGON BUILDING, Panama-Pacific International Exposition, July 24.—The largest crowd to gather about a speaker on the Exposition grounds since opening day greeted Colonel Roosevelt in the Court of the Universe this afternoon, where he was scheduled to deliver his speech on "War and Peace," with the soft pedal on the "Peace."

Colonel Roosevelt came to the stand amidst a glittering military escort to the rousing strains of "America," with everyone standing, hats doffed and eyes straining, and he was received with cheers—not the old-time cheers of his boyhood Madison Square garden days or even of his earlier, more popular days, but still with complimentary cheers.

There was no buoyancy in his greeting, and he hadn't that happy, exuberant well-boys-I'm-mighty-glad-to-be-here manner that used to get the people, whether his platform got them or not. His lips seemed parted in more of a snarl than a smile, and his speech, while not overcast, was still more of a scolding than a challenge.

Women Caught in Crowd Faint. It was 5:30 o'clock when Mr. Roosevelt finished his speech. In the immense human sea that sought to push to the front to see him more closely, and to follow on through the archway, several women fainted and others were hysterical. The woman's board invited Mrs. Roosevelt to a luncheon, which was planned to be in keeping with the recent brilliant affairs for Mrs. Champ Clark, but Mrs. Roosevelt declined.

The Panama-Pacific Historical Congress met Wednesday in the lecture hall of the Oregon building, with Professor Joseph Schafer, of Eugene, presiding. Professor Schafer also had the principal paper on the Western Ocean as a Determinant in Oregon History.

One of the delightful little visits of the day was with Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Munro. A number of Oregonians present remembered Mrs. Munro as Charlotte Titell, who sought to push to the front to see him more closely, and to follow on through the archway, several women fainted and others were hysterical.

INDIANS WANT $500,000

Superintendent to Ask Sum for Work on Yakima Reservation.

NORTH YAKIMA, Wash., July 24.—(Special.)—Half a million dollars will be asked for irrigation and drainage work on the Yakima Indian Reservation in the estimates which I. M. Holt, superintendent of the Indian Irrigation Service in this district, will file with the department by August 1. He also will ask for $200,000 for the Colville Reservation; $61,000 for the Hoopa, Cal., Reservation; $36,000 for Round Valley, and probably $100,000 for the Klamath Reservation, although this figure has not been finally fixed. The work planned by Superintendent Holt here includes a diversion dam and headgates, enlargement of the main canal for several miles to about two and one-half times its present capacity; building of a large lateral; beginning of work on a supply and power canal, and enlargement of the reservation drainage system to meet immediate needs.

SCENERY HOLDS JAPANESE

Fruitgrower Explains Presence of Hood River Colony.

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 24.—(Special.)—The fact that Hood River County, with the exception of Multnomah, has more Japanese residents than any other county in the state is due, according to S. Yumbe, a Japanese rancher of Hood River, to a great measure to the scenery of the district. "We are attracted here as much by the scenery as by the profit to be derived from small fruit culture," he says. "I have been away from home for 10 years, but if I should remain away five times that long, I would never forget our sacred mountain nor the other beautiful scenery. I can keep from getting lonely by looking on—what's the word you use?—magnificent, yes, that's it—your magnificent Mount Hood."

Many of the local Japanese farmers are married, having sent to Japan for their wives, and are rearing families.

WIRELESS CASE DROPPED

Tax Commission Quits Effort to Compute "Mileage" of Plant.

OLYMPIA, Wash., July 24.—(Special.)—The Washington Tax Commission has abandoned as hopeless its attempt to compute the "mileage" of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company, and has instructed the King County Assessor to proceed to assess that company's property.

The Washington tax law, adopted before wireless telegraphy became a factor, provides that the tax commission shall assess the property of all telegraph companies and that the taxes levied against them shall be distributed among the counties in a "wire mileage basis."

For two years the tax commission has been attempting to harmonize these provisions of the law in the assessment of the Marconi Company.

LAND SUITS NOT DROPPED

Benson and Hyde Cases to Be Pushed, Says State Attorney.

SALEM, Or., July 24.—(Special.)—Prosecution of the Benson and Hyde land cases will be pressed, according to an announcement made to the State Bar today by Attorney General Brown and C. R. Rundel, special agent of the Federal Government. Negotiations for a compromise between the Benson and Hyde and the alleged innocent purchasers are in progress, but Messrs. Brown and Rundel say that if the compromise is not accepted, the cases will be pushed to trial.

HUCKLEBERRY CROP BIG

Abundance to Be Found in Mountains in Estacada District.

ESTACADA, Or., July 24.—(Special.)—Reports are daily reaching Estacada of the promise of an abundant huckleberry crop in the nearby mountains this year.

For the past two years this valuable crop has been almost a failure, owing to the heavy frost which, but for some present indications there will be a sufficient quantity. When the huckleberry crop has been good in former years, hunters, the farmers and parties from distant points migrate to the largest patch on Wild Cat Mountain, about 15 miles east of Estacada, where they camp and bring out tons of the berries.

This year the bear are plentiful and their depredations may diminish, but not seriously affect the supply.

VETERAN SOCIETIES MEET

McMinnville G. A. R. Members Join Spanish War Order.

McMINNVILLE, Or., July 24.—(Special.)—A lively meeting of the G. A. R. members of the Spanish War Order was held at the City Hall Wednesday evening, at which John C. DeLashm, who served with the Second Oregon Volunteers, was admitted as a member, and 11 Civil War veterans became honorary members.

This is the first meeting taken up in the East and also in Portland, where a large number of old soldiers joined the Young Camp. The move to join these organizations is being made by old soldiers here as honorary members of the Spanish War veterans proved a great success.

Camp Clark closed this meeting with serving of light refreshments at an informal social session.

Monmouth Will Entertain Governor

MONMOUTH, Or., July 24.—Governor Withycombe will be the guest of the State Normal School here on Thursday, July 29, according to an announcement made today. He is scheduled for an extended stay of 500 Summer school students, and will be entertained by the faculty in the evening, spending the entire day in Monmouth.

TOPEKA, Kan., April 7, 1915.

Mr. F. M. Sanders, Tr.

Old Line Bankers Life Ins. Co. Lincoln, Nebraska.

Dear Sir—Please accept my thanks for the splendid settlement made on the maturity of my policy No. 3513 for $1000. The actual amount paid in premiums during the 20 years was $814, and the cash settlement of $319.99 in excess of this amount, besides the protection given during every minute of that time, is certainly a remarkable achievement. I congratulate you. With best wishes for your continued success, I remain, Yours very truly, W. G. SHIREY.

CAREFUL USE OF WATER ADVISED

Government Makes Study of and Points Out Way for Irrigation Conservation.

WASTE CAN BE AVOIDED

Sandy Soils of Umatilla Project Found to Yield Best With Frequent Applications in Moderate Amounts.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—On the sandy soils of the Umatilla reclamation project in Oregon it is necessary to handle irrigation water carefully in order to get the greatest benefit.

Many tests were made on the project experiment farm at Hermiston, Or., last year, to determine the most economical methods of handling irrigation water. The specialists in charge of this work lay emphasis on the use of short irrigation furrows, ranging from 100 to 200 feet in length, and 20 to 30 inches apart, using fairly shallow, well-opened furrows to facilitate the flow of water. They also advocate that water should be applied only a short time in one place, as loss soon occurs from deep percolation.

Since the storage capacity of this soil is low, only a small amount of water should be used for each irrigation, and frequent applications made to maintain an adequate supply for plant growth. Best results were obtained by using a comparatively large stream of water while irrigating in order to cover the land as quickly as possible.

Series of Tests Made. On virgin land without crops it was found that a 2 1/2-inch application of water was retained in the first four feet of soil; five inches of water, applied under identical conditions, filled the first 10 feet to its full carrying capacity, and part of the water passed even below this depth. A 2 1/2-inch application really does as much benefit to the crop as a five or 10-inch application. After five and 10-inch applications of water were made to two plots having the same kind of soil there remained an equal quantity of water in each plot to a depth of four feet, and this quantity was practically the same as was retained by the same layer of soil where a 2 1/2-inch irrigation was applied.

Where the land was of finer texture than in the above experiment, and bearing a crop of alfalfa, a 4-inch application of water was held in the upper four feet. This shows that in all cases heavy loss results from applying heavy irrigations to the lighter soils on the Umatilla project.

Frequency Has Effect on Crop. The frequency of applying water has a marked influence upon crop yields. An area of alfalfa that received 4.4 feet of water in eight applications yielded four per cent more than an area that received 3.2 feet of water. Another plot that received 5.3 acre-feet, applied in 12 irrigations, yielded 6.3 tons per acre, or 1.02 tons per acre-foot of water. The results obtained by applying water at this rate were better than when heavy applications of water, such as 2.7 acre-feet applied in 24 irrigations were employed. The excess of water and the additional labor were not justified by the slight increase in yield resulting from the heavier applications of water.

The careful irrigator who has his distribution system, furrows, head ditches and time properly arranged to enable him to apply just the quantity required to fill the soil to the depth of root penetration, gets the maximum benefit from the water. On the other hand, the irrigator who uses more water at a time than his soil is capable of holding loses, by deep percolation, all of it that is not held within the root zone of his crop, and furthermore, he may damage adjacent crops by contributing to the underground seepage.

SANTIAM REPORT IS IN

Forest Service Has Installed Many Improvements in Year.

ALBANY, Or., July 24.—(Special.)—Thirty-eight miles of trail, two bridges, 15 1/2 miles of telephone line, seven cabins and 11 miscellaneous buildings have been added by the Government Forest Service in the Santiam National Forest in the past fiscal year. These figures are taken from the annual report of F. H. Brundage, supervisor of the forest, which was made public today.

Besides this work the forest service assisted Marion County in building five and one-half miles of trail outside the forest. This trail was part of the new trail from Niagara to Detroit. This year the department will build a trail from Detroit to Hoover in cooperation with Marion County.
