WILLIE RITCHE IS READY FOR FRAY

Californian Declared in Fine Trim to Acquit Himself Creditably in East.

JIMMY CLABBY SETS SAIL

Australian Papers Say McGorty Was Given Bad Handling by Les Darcy Before Police Interfered—Wolgast Is Beaten.

BY HARRY B. SMITH. SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 4.—Tomorrow will see Willie Ritchie off for New York on his annual Fall and Winter boxing campaign. Having returned from two weeks spent in the Coast Range Mountains in Tehama County, Ritchie is feeling fit and ready for anything that may happen. First of all, he has before him a 10-round battle on Monday night, October 4, with Young (Joe) Shugrue. For this scrap Ritchie is to receive a guarantee of $500, with a privilege of accepting one-third of the gross receipts.

The weight condition is to be arranged when the Californian reaches New York, but it is likely that 150 pounds for a night fight will be acceptable. Shugrue was some pumpkins a few months ago and was reckoned the best of the Eastern lightweight. There Ritchie was attacked by an eye trouble and only recently was able to get back into harness. This will be his first fight after a long absence from the ring, and it is figured by the experts that he should give the Californian a decided advantage.

When Ritchie went into the mountains last Fall he took on considerable weight, because he didn't get any time to take good care of himself, there he took with him his manager and trainer, Doc Jeffery. Doc was there especially for the purpose of seeing to it that he laid off the fattening foods. He performed his task well, and in consequence Willie, if anything, took off a few pounds, but the outing did him a world of good and that he will be in better shape for his season of work. If Ritchie continues to take good care of himself, there is no reason why he shouldn't last in the boxing game for some years to come. His trips home in the Summer not only tend to give him a vacation, but they keep him out of the public eye in the East, and accordingly the fans do not tire of him, as might otherwise be the case.

Willie will take a leisurely trip East this time. He will hop off the train at Salt Lake City for a couple of hours and do a little exercising, and later will go to Glenwood Springs, one of his favorite resorts.

Several days will be spent in Chicago, as Ritchie aims to arrive in New York City just in time to see Gibbons and Paucy McFarland go through their paces.

It is no secret that Ritchie proposes to go gunning for a long-distance fight with Freddie Welsh. He would like to tangle with the champion of the lightweights over a route, as he figures his chances of winning would be mighty good. What Ritchie is looking ahead to is the possibility of a bout in Havana. He thinks that a match for the lightweight title between the present champion and his immediate predecessor would draw good money, and he is not averse to doing himself some good.

Jimmy Clabby passed through San Francisco on Monday of last week bound for Australia, where he has been matched to fight Les Darcy, the fellow who stands out as one of the best of the middleweights in the game today. Clabby divorced himself from Larney Lichtenstein, who acted as his manager, and is bent on going it alone. He admits that he will have a tough game to play with Darcy, but figures that he can surprise the Australian and that his cleverness will enable him to stand off the man from the Antipodes while he wins on points.

Incidentally, Jimmy is good and sore at the boxing game in the East.

"With these no-decision contests," he says, "you haven't a chance in the world unless you've got a stand-in with the newspapermen or have a popular manager who stands well. That was what beat me out of a lot of decisions, and incidentally a lot of prestige. I am through with the short-round game. Give me 20-round contests, where the referee can give a verdict, and I will take my chances. It is a lot better in the long run."

If Clabby can beat Darcy, he is in a position to clean up a lot of money across the Pacific. Should he be beaten right off the jump, he might as well come home in a hurry.

Australian papers are to hand containing full accounts of the fight in which Les Darcy stopped Eddie McGorty in the fifteenth round. The brief cablegram that gave us the early news was rather vague and no one understood just what had happened. The newspaper stories show that Darcy won on his merits. He had too much ruggedness for McGorty, who was beaten down and knocked down several times at the close, until the authorities took a hand and called a halt.

Of considerable force seem to feel there is a good chance for the Legislature to pass a measure, with extraordinary restrictions, of course.

The present running horse meeting that is under way at the exposition has proved a comedy in many respects, according to reports is successful, and according to reports is successful. There is a little money for its stockholders. There is betting of the "oral" kind, of course, but it is safeguarded in many a manner. The bookmakers occupy boxes in the saddling paddock. They will quote you odds if you ask for the same and then nod to some other person who is authorized to hold your ticket. They don't hand you any tickets, but will remember who you are, and you will be paid off if your horse wins.

Naturally, this keeps down the amount of wagering. The horsemen haven't the opportunity to wager large sums, and the racing is more forthright. In brief, there isn't the occasion for "cheating" that was once the habit. Owners race for the purse and are well contented to receive them. The attendance has been far better than was expected, and it is predicted this is only a forerunner of better times in the racing game.

KAYLOR MAKING RECORD

WILLIAMS' BATTING MARK.

Doc Brinker Is Home-Run King of Organization With Nine Swats.

Frisk Second With Seven.

SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 4.—(Special.)—Ted Kaylor, the fleetfooted little Spokane outfielder, is leading the Northwest League in batting, with a mark of .341, one point better than that of Ken Williams, formerly of Spokane, now of the Cincinnati Reds. Kaylor has been moving up rapidly the last few weeks and has finally crawled over the high-water mark set by Williams. Jack Smith, on the other hand, has slumped slightly. Ed Kipper is another whose hand clouting lately has seen his name go shooting toward the top in this column.

Smith has passed Williams' base-stealing total, finally, six weeks after Williams has become a National League leader. Jimmy Lewis and Rod Murphy are close on Williams' total of 23 for second honors.
