News of this state of affairs reached the husband, who became furiously jealous. Huguet wrote to his wife to say that stories about her flightly with British offiabout her flirtation with British offi-cers had reached him and if he found out that they were true he would shoot her and then shoot himself.

Stories Are Exaggerated.

The stories that had reached Huguet were grossly exaggerated. The British staff officers treated Mile. Barthou properly, and between none of them said the pretty Bretonne was there any levity of conduct or indue familiarity. One young officer, indeed, on the staff, who had fallen in love with her, proposed to her, and had ceased, after her refusal to marry him, to visit the inn. The husband last Saturday obtained 24 hours' leave from the trenches and Stories Are Exaggerated.

The husband last Saturday obtained 24 hours leave from the trenches and unexpectedly turned up at the ing where his wife was employed at about 5 in the afternoon. The Prince of Waies and another staff officer were having tea in the linn at the moment. Huguet watched his wife talking to the Prince and his companion for some minutes and then was seized with a blind rage. He rushed into the room and without a word of warning fired this wife and another at the two shots in rapid succession, one at his wife and another at the two shots in rapid succession, one at his wife and another at the two shots in rapid succession, one at his wife and another at the two shots in rapid succession, one at him but the Corporal fired before the could be seized and wounded him at him, but the Corporal fired before at him, but the Corporal fired before at him but the Prince of Wales was wounded in his arm just above.

The Prince and his companion sprang at him, but the Corporal fired before he could be seized and wounded himself in the neck. The Frince of Wales was wounded in his arm just above the wrist. The Corporal was taken to a field hospital by the Prince of Wales in his motorcar. The Prince also had his wounds dressed.

The Prince then proceeded to head-quarters and reported the whole inci-ent to the Commander-in-Chief. The Corporal, under military law, is liable to be shot, but probably no official notice will be taken of the incident. The Corporal's wife immediately after the incident left the inn and went to the hospital where her husband was
