THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN, PORTLAND, OCTOBER 17, 1915.

Two New Clubs in Portland Add Many Members and Improve Courses.

Oregon Metropolis Only City of Importance on Coast Without Municipal Links-Smaller Places Have Courses.

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT. As this is the season of the year when the Autumn leaves begin falling and when the squirrels store up food for the Winter months, and, moreover, as all the local club, state and sectional golf tourneys are swept off the slate, it might not be amiss to call attention to the phenomenal growth of the royal and ancient game of golf in the Pacific Northwest during the past 12 months, Despite the untoward business con ditions everywhere, golf forged ahead with vigor.

New Clubs Show Big Growth.
 Here in Portland the two new clubs, Portland Golf Club and Tualatin Country Club, showed a steady growth in membership, while the amount of work bestowed upon the links was remark-able. The Portland Club suffered the loss of its clubhouse several weeks ago as a result of a fire, but plans are afoot now for a new club structure. During the year the new grass greens were opened to the players, and within mother six or eight months the second time holes wil be ready for service.
 At Twalatin a healthy tendency toward a more sporty course is mani-tissting itself and when the bunkering bow under way is completed, this pretty nine-hole course 15 miles south of Portland will be as nifty a links as there is on the Pacific Coast.
 Waverley, of course, still holds to its functed as being one of the greatest courses in the country.

Gearhart Course Enlarged.

Gearhart Course Enlarged. Another notable improvement of the season was the enlarging of the nine-hole course at Gearhart beach into an orthodox 18-hole affair. New courses were dedicated with divots during the year at Salem and at Walla Walla and numerous improve-ments were made on the Eugene links. H. Chandler Egan, of Medford, former amateur National title holder, won the Northwest championship at Tacoma. Rudolph Wilhelm, of the Portland Golf Club, won the Oregon state title dest and at the most popular sport in the country, outside of baseball. Chandler Egan, of Medford, former amateur National tille holder, won the Northwest championship at Tacoma, Rudolph Wilhelm, of the Portland Golf Club, won the Oregon state tille, de-feating M. H. Hartwell in the finals of this event, which was held over the links of the Waverley Country Club. Russell Smith won the Gearhart tour-ney for the 'steenth time and also the Waverley Club championship. J. R. Straight won the bunting in the local tourney at the Portland Golf Club, overthrowing the state champion, Ruby standard of the good man player by at least a dozen strokes. "Personally, we have noticed this is very true, and we have also discov-ered the reason. If you will stand at any putting green in a woman's tourna. ment and watch the women putt you will readily see where the men gain a considerable advantage. "The female of the species is more deadly than the male,' but when Kipling wrote this he evidently did not refer to the putting green. At the very place where the woman golfer-on ac-count of her not being phyically as strong as a man-is expected to excel, she 'falls down.' This is the delicate part of golf, supposedly to be for a delicate touch, yet it requires more nerve and more concentration than almost any other department of the DOCTORS LIKE GOLF Tourney for Profession Exclusively Suggested.

BOXING MATCH ARRANGED

"I honestly believe that the University of Washington will have a stiffer proposi-tion to buck up against when the University of California foothall players are met than Northwest people imagine," said Superin-tendent Walker yesterday afternoon. "I have been keeping in touch with the foot-ball situation in California by receiving laters from friends who are closely con-nected with the state institution, and all of them are confident that a surprise will be spring. I think that it is hardly prob-able that the Bears will score a victory over Coach Gil Doble, but it won't be a suknaway by any means, and not more than on the other." Following a meeting this afternoon at the Rose City Athletic Club between the various managers of the tug-of-war time for each pull, everything will be in readiness for Promoter of Events John S, Barnes to blow the whisile that will start Portland on a hilarious week of tug-of-warring. The teams, of which there are 10, representing seven different nationali-ties, will begin the week's tournament tomorrow night with the British five pitted against the Helenic team, repre-senting Greece, furnishing the first ex-citement. At present it is planned to have the pulls last 10 minutes and Athletic Olub. Soccer practice will be called by Mana-ger John D. Dwyer in the near future. Play would have been held on Multhomah Field this morning, but Superintendent Walker turned the Inclosure over is the two con-testing elevens for the benefit of the Brit-iah Red Cross fund. Practice is to start at 10 o'clock, and the real game for "blood" between the Dreadnoughts and Invincibles will be held on the Vaugh-street grounds next Sunday afternoon.

team has a captain that does not pull, but stands on the platform and gives signals to his squad. According to Barnes, who is an old hand at the game, the captain issues as many sig-nais as the manager of a baseball team does during a diamond contest. The team is composed of four pullers and an anchor man. The anchor man takes his place at the end of the rope and it is his duty to haul in the slack at every opportunity. A sort of harness strapping over the shoulder with a wooden ridge around the waist which the end of the rope encircles consti-tutes his outiff.

ALL PHASES INVESTIGATED

Participation of Freshmen in Inter-Collegiate Contest Is Expected to Be Prohibited - Report Is Due in Near Future.

PY LEO J. MALARKEY.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 16.-(Special.)-To place intercol-legiate athletics at the University of Oregon upon a firm educational basis rather than to abolish them, seems to be the big object that President Campbell's committee of seven has in view as it carries on its investigation. For two weeks these faculty mem-bers have been meeting almost daily and the longer that they stay with their work the more dense the problem becomes.

becomes. What was thought to be mere re-search of a few days developed into labors of a week and tonight the job is yet incomplete and it is rumored upon good foundation that a report to the faculty will not be forthcoming until the latter part of the coming week.

 All Phases Are Considered.
 All Phases Are Considered.
 Every phase of intercollegiate athletics, both good and bad, was taken up by the investigation committee.
 Scholastic standing of men particlipating received a thorough overhauling and when the amoke cleared it was found that the athlete stood higher in his work than the man who failed to take part in any student activity.
 Finances were not forgotten as the committee started the probe and Graduate Manager Tiffany was requested to present a detailed report of the cost of athletics for one year.
 The question of freshmen particlipating on varsity teams is receiving its share of consideration and it will be no surprise to learn when the committee started the probes of the cost of athletics. Started men particlipating intercollegiately.
 Oregon's investigation committee is as follows: 2. De Cou, professor of mathematics, chairman, Joseph Schafer, professor of nistory; H. C. Howe, professor of mathematics, and the question resolves itself into a sort of intangible weave as they pursue it from its source to its end. Hence the slowness of action and the lack of definite result. Chairman De Cou said:
 The above men are all little versed in intercollegiate athletics, with one or two exceptions, and the question resolves itself into a sort of intangible weave as they pursue it from its source to list and the lack of definite result. Chairman De Cou said:
 The committee wants every viewpoint. Until all evidence is in and discussed, and until the committee has agreed upon the clauses of the report.

That which ensues through the course of their gathering is problematical and for the most part kept from the ears of stu-definite has been decided, however, and until final conclusions are renched and are made laws the public at large will be kept in ignorance of the prog-ress of the seven investigators. But in reality this is more of a boost than a knock. In the first place, it establishes the game on a firm basis. Golf is a game that any one can play, although it is most al-ways youth that excels in long driving or flerce competition. The older man i enjoys the pastime juat as much as the younger man who wins our champion-ships or holds our course records. It is the support of the older man, who, as a rule, has the means, that keeps the game up to its present condition. Golf courses cost money.
