Columbia University and Portland Academy Are to Clash Tuesday and Washington Will Meet Lincoln Following Day.

1915 Interscholastic Football Standings.

Attendance records for the Portland Interscholastic League are expected to be broken this week, because two good football games are on the boards.

The Tuesday match between Columbia University and Portland Academy will furnish followers of the local circuit an opportunity to witness two light and fast aggregations.

The academy players still feel that they are to be reckoned with when the 1916 title of the Portland Interscholastic League is to be settled.

The game last Wednesday was delayed more than an hour because Jefferson High School had protested Tommy Richardson of the Lincoln High quarter.

Almost 2000 persons were present to see the game and when Dow V. Walker, superintendent of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club, called for the referee.

Coach Stanley Borleske will have an opportunity to do the "come-back" stunt next Wednesday afternoon when his warriors meet the heavy Washington High squad.

The record attendance for a Lincoln High-Washington contest was established October 22, 1913, when 2500 admissions were paid into the spacious Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club grandstand.

mitted to see the struggle and now the two schools are trying to boost the mark even higher than in 1913.

CHANGE IN TACTICS NOTED

Scrimmage Is Followed by Hard Practice Under Arc Lights Last After Shades of Night Fall. Team Cheered on Its Way.

BY LEO J. MALARKY. UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 23.—(Special.)—When Hugo Besdek, Hill Hayward, Captain Cornell and the 15 remaining varsity men returned from Walla Walla tomorrow night, and Monday afternoon trot out on Kincaid Field for the first practice session of the week, the change in tactics will be born at the Eugene campus.

The new day and its efforts will be toward one purpose and one end—namely, the Oregon Agricultural College-Oregon game—which is brought home this season to lemon-yellow students.

Although there is yet another campaign to be fought before the Aggies are entertained here, its importance is not nearly so great as the interest in the coming state scrap, yet the playing of Willamette is deemed to serve the purpose as a factor in the rounding off of the Besdek machine and the means whereby further repairs can be made and new parts developed.

Defeat Marks Last Saleem Visit. It is likely that the Oregon dictator will send some of his recruits against the Methodists in Salem on that day, and the tussle will do them good, from the experience standpoint.

Historically speaking, the last time an Oregon squad journeyed to Salem to engage in conflict with the Willamette Aggies, the Oregon Aggies were humiliated by a 6-to-3 defeat.

Next Saturday's contest in Salem will close the pages in the book of present football history at Eugene until the leaves are turned again for the Aggie battle. For three weeks Hugo Besdek has been in the saddle, and the "new staff" for Dr. Stewart, Manager A. R. Tiffany, schedules a practice game in the meantime.

Change Noted Since Pullman Defeat. Since Oregon met with such a sound defeat at Pullman some weeks ago, sharp change has been noticed in the ability of the candidates, plus the methods in coaching.

"I am through mollycoddling you fellows," said Hugo in one of his famous impromptu speeches. "From now on, the Oregon Aggies will work like a real college football team has to. The trouble with us all when we went to Pullman was that there wasn't but one or two men in condition; the remainder of the squad was far out of shape."

Today there are two arc lights on the edge of the lemon-yellow field, and the question, and until 6:30 the Oregon machine grinds in its little lighted circle, charging back and forth while the eyes of their mentor pounds at their backs.

Hard Practice Continued. With the exception of Monday, during the week now passing, Besdek continually shot the first and second sections into hard practice. The first day out, following the Idaho war, the men were permitted to take out the benches and merely run signals like a dummy tackling practice.

Departing Squad Is Cheered. Thursday morning Oregon left for Walla Walla, and the big majority of the student body cheered them out of Eugene. A band blared forth, co-eds sang and men roared until the last coach had faded from the scene.

WORK on the proposed track at Tia Juana, Mexico, is fast going on, according to reports sent out from Lower California. George Crowley, a San Francisco banker, who has been looking over the ground, said last week that 75 scrapers and 400 men were busily engaged in arranging the track.

A bonus of $5000 has been offered to the men constructing the Tia Juana track if they have everything completed within 60 days from the time the first scraper was put into the soil.

Such exciting finishes as were witnessed in Lexington, Ky., recently, have never been duplicated before. Almost every day the spectators were brought to their feet by a heat being won by a lead or less.

Tom Gahagan, the well-known turf expert, who attended the meeting at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition in San Francisco last June, writes from the East that he will be short on the Pacific Coast within a short time. He went East last summer and has been following the paces and trotters around the Grand Circuit.

Juanex, Mexico, is slated to open a 100-day race meeting on Thanksgiving day, but because of the unsettled conditions prevailing in the American country, are rather dubious as to making the journey across the line just at present. California turfmen expect no difficulty in this line should the Tia Juana track start operations.

Tom Murphy and Dick McMahon, two of the best-known drivers in the country, are planning on being present at the Exposition meeting at San Francisco. Each is coming with a high-class string. Had Boy, the Oregon pacer, is under the direction of McMahon, while Murphy is depending on Peter Scott to bring home the winning.

Several Prince Ansel youngsters owned by John W. Cosidine brought good prices at the recent sale held at Lexington.

An 18,600-acre tract near Tia Juana has been leased by George Crowley, of San Francisco, for the purpose of organizing a gun club. According to Dr. Crowley, deer, duck and quail hunting is permitted all the year round and game is in abundance.

George W. Wingfield's stock farm in the Washoe Valley, a little more than two miles from Reno, Nev., is creating considerable rivalry to Kentucky breeders. Two stallions of prominence were purchased at the recent English sales and both were taken to their new homes last week. The stallions also were purchased in England for the Wingfield farm.

New Orleans has announced a meeting for New Year's day, and should Juanex and Tia Juana be in full swing, the American horsemen will have plenty of opportunity to run their many thoroughbreds.

It has been estimated that the mile track and plant across the Mexican border from San Diego will cost in the neighborhood of $300,000.
