

BRITISH MARQUIS GREETED BY MANY

Lord and Lady Aberdeen, En Route to Fair, Receive Temperance Workers.

RETURN VISIT PROBABLE

Ex-Governor of Canada and ex-Viceroy of Ireland Exhibits Keen Interest in Child Welfare—Wife Prohibitionist.

Temperance workers, suffragists, social reformers and British subjects joined together yesterday afternoon in receiving the Marquis and Marchioness of Aberdeen who are on a tour of the United States.

The couple passed through Portland on their way from Vancouver, B. C., to San Francisco. They were at the Union Station only 20 minutes, but were greeted in that brief period by scores of Portland persons.

An official welcome was extended by Harry L. Sherwood, the newly appointed British consul in Portland, Mr. Sherwood just assumed his office yesterday morning, having arrived the night before direct from England. So this was his first important duty. He was accompanied by J. C. Grant, the British vice-consul in Portland.

The interest of the crowd at the station was almost equally divided between the Marquis and the Marchioness. Each has been prominent in social and official life in the British Empire.

If the Marquis were not a person of nobility his name would be plain John Gordon.

Many Titles Borne. But as it happened he was born the seventh Earl of Aberdeen and he bears all the honors, titles and dignity to which that position entitles him. He is best known in America, however, as an ex-governor of Canada.

The Marchioness is many years his junior. She was dressed yesterday in becoming garments of dark material, the softer hues of which were relieved by the flashy shades of a Roman striped scarf hung loosely about her neck.

Both were in splendid spirits when the train brought them to Portland. As they descended the steps they were showered with floral bouquets brought by a committee of the Women's Christian Temperance Union. The Marchioness is an active worker in the English branch of that organization, and is president of the International Council of Women. Members of the committee included Mrs. Jennie M. Kemp, state president for Oregon; Mrs. Mary D. Russell, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Madge J. Mears, recording secretary; Mrs. L. H. Addition, National superintendent of the labor department, and Mrs. Devenport, head of the publicity department.

Return to Portland Likely. The Marchioness received the invitation of the Portland women to visit Portland again before returning to England and to deliver an address here on behalf of temperance. She consulted with the Marquis and the two women returned to the city for consideration. Before leaving they said that it is highly probable that they will visit Portland again in a few weeks.

The Marquis was much concerned in the reported injuries to King George, who was thrown from a horse while visiting the British soldiers in France a few days ago.

"I only hope that he is not seriously hurt," he declared. "If Canada were he will recover quickly. He is strong and wiry and tough."

"Conspiration?" he repeated to interrogations of the public. "No, I don't think it will be necessary. Even those who were loudest in their demands for it a few months ago now think that it will not have to be resorted to. Enlistments are more brisk now than ever."

"Of course the people are thoroughly confident of the ability of the war. The Marquis of Aberdeen has twice been Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. He is a grand commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, grand commander Victorian Order and Knight of the Thistle.

He is the Countess of Aberdeen is a noted charity worker and prominent in the affairs of women.

FIVE IN JITNEY HURT

Machine Skids; Is Crushed Between Streetcars.

WOMAN AMONG INJURED

Jitney Driver Blames Motorman of One Car, B. E. Brown, for Accident on Union Avenue, Near Fremont—Student Hurt.

INJURED. A. R. Myers, 999 East Twentieth street North; skull and jaw fractured; may die.

Charles H. Wertenberger, 1125 East Twenty-fifth street North; fractured collar bone, injuries about chest; serious.

Miss Jean McLean, 964 Garfield avenue; cut and bruised; not serious.

Kenneth Wilson, 16, 1005 Grand avenue North; cut and bruised; not serious.

Jack Hoare, driver, East Forty-sixth and Alberta; cut; not serious.

Five persons were injured, two seriously, yesterday when an Alberta jitney, driven by Jack Hoare, skidded in attempting to turn out from in front of a southbound streetcar on Union avenue near Fremont, and was crushed between streetcars going in opposite directions. Those hurt were passengers of the jitney.

A. R. Myers, driver and collector for the Portland Laundry Company, was the most seriously injured, being taken to the Good Samaritan Hospital in an unconscious condition with a fractured skull and jaw. Charles H. Wertenberger, salesman for the Mitchell, Lewis & Staver Company, was bruised badly about the chest with possible internal injuries, and received a broken collarbone.

Kenneth Wilson, aged 16, a student and son of J. W. Wilson, Miss Jean McLean, employed in the auditing department of the Meier & Frank Company, and Jack Hoare, the driver of the jitney, received minor bruises and cuts.

The jitney driver blames the motorman of the southbound streetcar, B. E. Brown, for the accident, saying that the streetcar crowded him until he was forced to turn from the cobbles where he was driving for security on the slippery street at too sharp an angle. On the other hand, the Portland Railway, Light & Power men say the jitney driver was driving too fast and carelessly.

Patrolman M. E. Lillis took Hoare to police headquarters, when the other injured persons were removed to the hospital. Hoare was questioned by Deputy Attorney Deich regarding the accident and allowed to go.

The accident happened about 8:25 A. M. Hoare was driving south on Union avenue with an Alberta streetcar close behind in answer to the motorman's gong. Hoare endeavored to turn out from the car track and skidded. The jitney swung almost entirely around and the front wheels were struck by a northbound Union avenue car, R. C. Sly motorman. The impact carried the small five-passenger machine about 15 feet north, into the southbound car, the automobile being crushed between the two cars.

None of those injured were thrown from the machine, but were caught in their seats. Myers, Wertenberger and Miss McLean were in the rear seat, Wilson and Hoare on the front seat.

Notwithstanding the cost of presenting seven big vaudeville attractions on the regular Empire bill, the management has added another feature which would ordinarily be a complete show in itself, a big musical extravaganza consisting of 15 people. Billy Rice's Musical Comedy Company was given a tryout performance at the Empress last Thursday night, and it made such a big hit with the audience that manager T. R. Conlon decided to book the big attraction for the entire week at the Portland Empress.

After completing their engagement here it is expected that they will be booked for a term of weeks over the coast and in the auditing department of the prettiest girl offerings ever presented in Portland. First of all, their costumes are brand new, stunning and expensive, and a complete change of wardrobe is made by the entire company for each singing number, of which there are five. Their songs are new and catchy, including "Dixie Band," "Tulip Time in Holland," "Just a Little Love, a Little Kiss," "Sing Me to Sleep" and "The Old-Fashioned Melody," and other popular hits.

Miss Babe Fowler, well known here, a clever performer in the chorus in the company. Miss Fowler is a Detroit girl and has appeared with musical companies throughout the coast and in the auditing department of the company. Misa Dorothy Lewis, another of the principals, is the possessor of a wonderful contralto voice. Misa Lewis is popular with the public of Portland, having appeared in vaudeville many times in this city.

Jack Vale, a Hebrew comedian, has been featured with companies both East and West. Wheeler Romig, a German comedian with this company, has just returned from Eastern triumphs.
