Gresham day—George F. Honey, chairman.

Saturday, November 13.
Closing day.
Muts' night—W. P. Strandborg, chairman.

The Manufacturers' and Land Products Show commences its third and last week tomorrow, and some of the biggest special events of the exposition season are scheduled for the closing days of the show.

Retail dealers, electrical men and the Federated Women's Clubs will be the Monday features at the exposition. Electrical night will bring forth many unique features, including a downtown parade of electrical vehicles. J. E. Davidson, general chairman of the day, has the assistance of a large committee.

Prizes are to be distributed and the free theater will be the scene of an electrical show. Motion pictures, showing the use of electricity on the farm will also be displayed.

Mrs. J. W. Tifft is chairman of the committee in charge of Federated Women's Clubs day, and Mrs. Sarah A. Evans will deliver a talk on "Federation." Talks will be given also by Mrs. Frederick Eggert and Mrs. Isaac Swett. Miss Elizabeth Woodbury will give a reading and the musical programme will be in charge of Mrs. H. A. Heppner. Mrs. Myron Ross, soprano soloist, and Albert Creitz, violinist, will take part in the entertainment features.

Monday will bring the retail dealers of the city to the show, and C. C. Bradley, chairman of the committee in charge, will be assisted by

R. D. Carpenter, D. A. Dinsmoor, J. E. Werlein, George A. Heidinger, Thomas J. Mullin, J. P. Fink, Paul Chamberlain, W. C. Tunks, J. H. Joyce, Will A. Knight, J. R. Straight, Ira L. Riggs, W. H. Barton, W. F. Greer, Robert G. Duncan, J. H. Duncan, L. A. Spangler, William Roberts, E. Struplere, W. F. Woodward, F. C. Green, Max Smith, A. A. Rosa, John N. Casey, John M. Thompson, Fred Pendleton, J. H. Rankin, C. J. Mathis, Grant Phegley, Z. Swett, J. F. Pillman, R. C. Dolbin, T. L. Adams, A. Feldenheimer and Joseph P. Jaeger.

The programme will include a spectacular parade of merchants in the Exposition buildings introducing miniature floats and novelties. The following firms already have entered floats for the procession:

The Needle Craft, Jones Market, Woodard & Clarke Company, Cavender & Phegley, Lion Clothing Company, Columbia Graphophone Company, C. C. Bradley, Independent Ice Company, Ederleson Fuel Company, Hazelwood Company, Lipman, Wolfe & Co., Owl Drug Company, Dekum Hardware Company, Brownsville Woolen Mills, C. J. Mathis, Lennon's, Olds, Wortman & King, Roberts Bros., Max Smith, Ira Powers, Jenning & Sons, Portland Gas Company, Jaeger Bros., Sherman-Clay Company, Eilers Music House, Toledo Scale Company, Knight Shoe Company, J. K. Gill and Underwood Typewriter Company.

The distribution of prizes will be a feature of the retailers' night at the show and the gifts are on display in Henry Jenning & Sons' establishment on Washington street. One of the spectacular features will be the "Electrocution of the Itinerant Salesman." According to the retail merchants bureau of the Chamber of Commerce this man is the salesman who comes to the city and sells our local consumer wearing apparel, shoes, etc. He pays no rent, no taxes, does not contribute to commercial organizations, his entire expense is his hotel bill and secretary's wages.

Nathan Strauss, chairman of Jobbers' day at the Exposition, will have the following committee to assist him:

F. A. Spencer, O. W. Mielke, H. Frank, A. H. Devers, C. B. Woodruff, W. A. Montgomery, Joseph Goodman, F. S. West, Walter Rosenfeld, W. H. Bebarrell, M. L. Kline, George Lawrence, Jr., S. C. Pier, Ed Ehrman, O. C. Calhoun, Edwin Neustadter, J. P. Rasmussen, Sanford Lowengart, I. Lowengart, A. Oberdorfer, Dom Zan, Henry Hahn, O. H. Fithian and Thomas Honeyman.

Tuesday brings the retail grocers of the city to the exposition, and they will stage a three-ring circus to show the modern grocery, the old-fashioned grocery and a burlesque on the public market. W. C. Gunther is chairman of the day.

Wednesday will be observed as Military day and College night. The companies of the Oregon National Guard will turn out on parade with two bands, and college presidents of Oregon will march to the exposition after a banquet at the Chamber of Commerce.

Thursday brings the annual Chinese baby show, with C. M. Clarke as general chairman. Friday is City of Portland day, with Mayor Albee general chairman, and Gresham will be here with a big delegation. The Muts close the show Saturday.

William Montag Is Near Death.

William Montag 883 Commercial street, only brother of United States Marshal John Montag, lies in a serious condition at his home, and his death is said by the attending physicians to be a matter of but a short time. Mr. Montag is an elderly man, and has been engaged in the foundry business for many years. Tuberculosis was contracted some time ago, and for the past month Mr. Montag has been confined to his bed.

PRIZES ARE AWARDED

Potato Contest Is One of Most Interesting at Land Show.

GROWERS WILL GET DATA

Judging Conducted by New Method. So Valuable Information May Be Obtained by Producers for Future Entries.

Prize awards in the various fruit and vegetable classes in the land products section of the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show were completed Friday night and Chief Judge C. J. Sinsel, of Boise, submitted the complete report of the committee to the management of the show last night.

In the judging Mr. Sinsel was assisted by Professors A. G. B. Bouquet, of Corvallis; H. D. Scudder, of Corvallis, and W. I. Swank, of Portland.

The judging this year was conducted on different lines from that of previous years, the judges endeavoring to secure, with the other data, information that will be of value to other growers in developing products for future contests and for commercial uses.

The county exhibits and the individual farm exhibits will be judged this week.

Potato Contest Close.

The official report of Chief Judge C. J. Sinsel, as far as the judging has been completed, is as follows:

"One of the most interesting and closely contested exhibits at the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show is that of class 8, No. 13, potatoes, calling for a collection of 10 varieties best adapted for the Pacific Northwest commercial crops. The various contestants were asked to give reasons for their selections in this class and for the benefit of producers as well as consumers, we here give the complete report of the exhibitors who are acknowledged experts in the production of potatoes.

"Among these exhibitors we find Mr. Asahel Smith, commonly known as the "potato king," who base 10 varieties, most of which are new. Mr. Smith has given us a complete report regarding the character and possibilities of his special varieties.

ASAHEL SMITH ENTRY.

1. Ninety Fold.

Ninety-Fold grows true to type. Is a prolific yielder, good keeper and shipper; drouth and disease resister and adapted to all varieties of soils. Medium early maturity.

2. Sutton's Reliance.

This potato grows true to type. Wonderfully prolific. Good baker and boiler, with many qualities adapted to heavy and peaty lands. Keeping qualities—none superior.

3. Extra Early Moonlight.

The Extra Early Moonlight potato is noted for its early maturity, good cooking qualities and adaptation to various soils. It is a fair yielder and white in color.

4. California Russet.

The California Russet grows quite true to type; has a high percentage of starch and fine grained, good drouth resister. Its cooking qualities are of the best. Is a good shipper, very desirable potato. Average yielder.

5. Royal Express.

Strong grower. Large yielder and good keeper. Mostly adapted to high lands. Fair disease resister. Is a later cropper. White and in Scotland considered one of the best potatoes.

6. British Queen.

This potato is of fine flavor. True to type, with small percentage of loss in paring. Late maturity. White. Average yielder and adapted to various soils. Good disease resister and of fine appearance.

7. Satisfaction.

Satisfaction is a strong grower. Flat, long, white and good cropper, also good keeper. Average quality. True to type and adapted to all varieties of soils. Fine appearance.

8. Pride of Multnomah.

The Pride of Multnomah is a strong grower; of late maturity, white meat and heavy yielder. Good drouth resister.

9. Hume's Ideal.

This potato is a strong grower. Good yielder. A white potato of many durable qualities, with a record of 4 years old of 20 tons per acre. Is of fine appearance, true to type and very small loss in paring.

10. Burbank.

Average yielder of many good qualities. A standard variety and familiar to all growers.

Another very prominent and successful potato grower who has an exhibit is S. D. Mustard, of Redmond, represented by R. L. Schee, of Prineville. Mr. Mustard here gives a very interesting outline of the 10 varieties he considers best adapted for the growers as a commercial potato in the Northwest.

The principal market for the irrigated potato of Central Oregon has been in Oklahoma, Texas and to some extent in San Francisco. A study has been made of these markets and potatoes selected that will meet the requirements of these districts. A white, uniform sized tuber, ranging in size from 6 to 10 ounces, is best suited to meet the demand of these localities. It is also necessary to have a potato of a good keeping quality, as it is difficult to keep potatoes, especially in Texas and Oklahoma.

These facts, combined with the soil and climatic conditions of Central Oregon, are the real things that enter into the selection of varieties adapted to the region.

All of the varieties shown in my exhibit have been given the most severe test as to their adaptability and have proven satisfactory in every way. So far as can be ascertained they are all good resisters of disease, especially in the soil and climate in which they are grown.

S. D. MUSTARD ENTRY.

1. Irish Cobbler.

The Irish Cobbler, while not so popular in the outside market as a longer potato, has proven exceedingly popular in the outside market. It is a good yielder and as a rule very free from disease. As an irrigated crop has been very satisfactory. Has splendid table qualities. Matures early.

2. Uncle Sam.

The Uncle Sam is probably one of the best and most popular potatoes of the district. Its general uniformity of shape and form has created for it a great demand. It is one of the most prolific yielders of the Central Oregon district and has proved itself a good resister of disease.

Nearly one-half of the yield of marketable potatoes will run in size from 16 to 24 ounces, and as a result the Northern Pacific Railway has given to the district the contract to supply their dining-car service with the material for their "big baked potato." The balance of the marketable yield will run from 8 to 14 ounces and as such has found a ready outlet in the general markets. Is standard variety. Belongs to same group.

3. Gold Coin.

The Gold Coin is one of the varieties tested by the Oregon Agricultural College demonstration farm at Redmond and has been recommended as one of the varieties best adapted to the region. In 1912 the farm reported an average yield of 191.6 bushels of marketable potatoes per acre. It has always found a ready market and has been raised successfully as an irrigated crop. A splendid main potato crop, very hardy, vigorous and most productive. Smooth skin, white flesh and cooks dry. Matures early in Fall.

4. Hundred Fold.

Next to the Burbank and Netted Gem the Hundred Fold is probably better received in the markets than any other variety of white potato. On the dry lands of Crook County this variety yielded 125 bushels of marketable potatoes, according to report of the demonstration farm. It withstands drouth as well or better than any other of the varieties tested in that district. It has taken well in the markets and while not so universally raised, and a few of the other varieties rapidly becoming better known, it is well received wherever introduced. Same type as Uncle Sam. Is white, dry and mealy at all stages of development. Has a russet skin, which is a mark of quality. Is very hardy, with small vines, but the tubes are large and uniform.

5. Burbank.

The Burbank is a standard potato that really needs little introduction in the markets that have been supplied by the district.

The result of the demonstration farm tests proved the Burbank to be the best yielder of any of the varieties tested. In 1912 the Redmond farm reported a yield of 195 bushels per acre of marketable potatoes.

The general shape and form of the potato is in itself a recommendation and it has always found its way on the markets without difficulty. Careful selection of seed is very necessary in this variety in order to maintain a standard and to keep them perfectly clean and free from disease. Thus far little disease has made its appearance in the Central Oregon Burbank. Good table qualities.

6. Early Ohio.

The Early Ohio in Central Oregon has proven one of the best and most popular of the early potatoes. While not raised as extensively as the white potatoes, a ready market has always been found. The soil and climate has been found particularly fitted.

7. Peerless.

This variety is one of the most uniform and smooth potatoes that is raised in this territory. It has been impossible to supply the demand that has been created for it. While care must be used in applying water yet with caution it will produce as well as others of the white variety and with as much or possibly more uniformity of size in the hill.

It is usually very free from all disease and is a very popular potato in all markets. Matures late. Is a typical commercial type.

8. Early Rose.

The Early Rose is probably the most popular of the early varieties, but does not find an outlet in the southern markets with the white potato. It is peculiarly adapted to the Central Oregon district. On dry land is the best yielder of any, producing on the dry farm demonstrations 133 bushels of marketable potatoes per acre. On the irrigated soils this variety will often produce four or five potatoes to the hill that will run from two to two and one-half pounds each, although with proper care in the application of water, a smaller and more general market size can be secured. They are very solid even in the large size and, as a rule, free from disease. Selection of seed is necessary to protect against scab. Cook mealy and are of finest flavor.

9. Gold Dollar.

This variety has been produced to a lesser degree than any of the other varieties, but after a very thorough test has been found well adapted to the soil and climate. It is a good yielder, runs uniform in size and shape. Little attempt has thus far been made to put on the outside markets, but from the success of other potatoes of similar character there is little doubt that it will take its place with the others. Thus far it has been practically free from all disease.

10. Netted Gem.

Excepting the Burbank this is the most popular potato that is raised in Central Oregon. More difficulty was at first experienced in getting it on the market on account of the color and the apparently rough skin. After it became known there has been a great demand for it, which it has been almost impossible to supply.

It is the best disease resister of any of the varieties and runs more even and uniform than the others. Very few rough or knotty potatoes are found and the yield has been found to be excellent. It has a very high starch content and from all starch tests made exceeds that of any other variety raised in this district. As a baking potato it has no equal among the Central Oregon potatoes.

A third exhibitor is Chester Mickelsen, of Portland, Or., who has a very creditable exhibit, and we here give Mr. Michelsen's varieties and his reasons for presenting them as being the best 10 varieties adapted to the Northwest commercial potato interests.

CHESTER MICKELSEN ENTRY.

1. Garnet Chili.

I find this a good yielder; finding ready sale on the market and an excellent late-keeping potato.

2. American Wonder.

The American Wonder has proven a good yielder, excellent baker. Matures as early as July 20 and finds a ready sale on the markets of the Northwest.

3. White Star.

Mr. Mickelsen considers this the best potato grown. It is his first year growing and it has surely done well. Has the appearance of a Burbank. Is a good baker and conceded to be one of our best new potatoes. Matures about August 1.

4. Early Ohio.

Early Ohio is considered one of the finest early potatoes. Is well and favorably known. Proven to be a good baker and one of the best early potatoes grown by Mr. Mickelsen.

5. Burbank.

This potato is so well and favorably known and therefore Mr. Mickelsen feels his inability to add additional laurels to its many good qualities.

6. May Flower.

The May Flower matures about August 25 and is found to be a good yielder, elongated in shape, looks something like a Burbank and has splendid white meat. Bakes and cooks well generally. Mr. Mickelsen got his first seed from Chehalis and is growing them quite extensively.

7. White Michigan.

White Michigan matures about August 25, making it an early variety. It has proven to be of excellent quality and a splendid yielder. Rather long and flat in shape. Splendid white and a very good keeper.

8. White Montana.

This potato has the shape and appearance of a Burbank. Has proven a good yielder. Mr. Mickelsen secured the seed from the Lilly Seed Company, Portland, Or., and this is its first year. Its origin is not known.

9. Early Sunrise.

Early Sunrise is a large, white potato and has proven to be a good commercial as well as producing potato. Matures as early as July 25, keeping very well for later use.

10. First Choice.

First Choice is a large, round, white potato. Matures early, with an excellent yield. Is most probably a member of the Cobbler family—a potato well and most favorably known.

After having scored the above varieties of potatoes according to rule 26, as laid down in the premium list of the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show, 1915, and considering the reasons as advanced by the different growers, we have awarded the prize for collection of commercial varieties to S. D. Mustard, of Redmond, Or.

We would recommend that recognition be given Asahel Smith, of Clatskanie, Or., for his excellent exhibit of promising new varieties.

WALLET FOUND, MINUS $270

The pocketbook of S. L. Brown, 210 Market street, has been returned to its owner after having been lost Thursday night. From the wallet had been abstracted currency to the amount of $270, all it contained when lost. Remaining in it were certified checks on the United States National Bank for $15 each and a certified check on the Kenton Bank for $200, together with a letter of credit on the United States National Bank.

The wallet was found in a mailbox Friday night and was returned by postoffice employes. Mr. Brown returned to the city from a visit to Beaver Creek Thursday, took his dinner downtown and went to a moving-picture show. When he got home he found his pocketbook was missing.

Election Interest Lags.

WENATCHEE, Wash., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—Registration for the city primaries continues to lag. The total registration is only 668, as compared with more than 2000 last year, when the wet and dry issue was fought out. Men registrants outnumber the women, two to one, only 208 women having registered. Only two offices are contested, the city attorneyship and treasurership.

MUT DOG'S DAY HERE

Land Show Is to Gather in Boy-Owned Mongrels.

UGLIEST TO WIN PRIZE

Pedigrees and Poundmaster Are to Be Excluded November 13, When Exhibition Is to Be Held and Committee Already Is Busy.

The ornery, homely, beloved-by-his-master-only "mut dog" will have his day at the Manufacturers' and Land Products Show Saturday night, November 13.

Pedigrees won't go and aristocratic appearance will be a discredit to the mut exhibited. The last shall be first in the judging, and the first last, and the grand sweepstakes prize shall adorn the most miserably worthless cur dog in the entire array.

S. S. Hewitt is chairman of the committee that is arranging the Mut Dog Show, and with him are Dorr E. Keasey, Frank Watkins, Tommy Swivel and J. M. Mann.

Boys may register their dogs with Dorr E. Keasey, at his office on the second floor of the Chamber of Commerce building. It makes no difference whether the mut has any apparent good points or not; he's eligible—more eligible than if he had a fraction of a drop of blue blood in him.

Faithfulness to Be Rewarded.

"After all, the ordinary mut, without pride of ancestry, whose hand is against every dogcatcher and every dogcatcher's hand against him, and who is beloved of only his kid master, is something more than a joke," declares Chairman S. S. Hewitt, "and while there will be no discounting the comedy in the Mut Dog Show, seriously, the faithful and unhonored mut is deserving of some recognition, because he does love his master and is loved by his master, and is just as faithful, even unto death, as the highest-bred dog in the most fashionable kennels.

"It is to honor him that the Mut Dog Show is being held."

Phil Metschan, Jr., will be judge, George L. Baker referee and Dorr E. Keasey umpire.

Every dog must have a collar and chain and must be benched on an Oregon applebox. These are the principal rules of the exhibit. Dog exhibitors will be admitted free.

A great "dog-eat-dog" contest will be staged, with the muts and a bushel or two of wienerwursts as the chief characters.

Poundmaster to Be Excluded.

Prizes are to be given for the homeliest dog, the largest dog, the smallest dog, the fattest dog, the saddest dog, the most affectionate, the ungriest looking, the most forlorn looking, the most optimistic looking and the chummiest dog.

There will also be the following prizes: Grand champion, $5; near-champion, $2; almost-champion, $2, and pretty-near champion, $1.

Here are the classes in which the muts may be entered: Dog, cur, feist, scroot, mongrel, ki-yoodle, yellow dog, flea hound, mush hound, Ford retriever, spare-rib spaniel, Missouri houn' dawg, bone setter, bowser, home pointer, cat terrier and sooner.

The sooner class will be one of the largest, and the owner entering a dog in it will be required to register his "sooner" characteristic. "Sooner eat than sleep," "sooner chase cats than eat," "sooner lie down than stand up," will be some of the classifications.

The poundmaster and dogcatcher are to be excuded from the Land Show on the day of the Mut Dog Show.

Polk Granges May Consolidate.

MONMOUTH, Or., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The growth of the Monmouth Grange since its organization several years ago, and the extending of its scope in farming activities, has led to talk of consolidation with granges at Lewisville and Buena Vista of the Luckiamute Valley. No definite action has been taken, but the advantages of consolidation have been widely discussed. The grange movement has been widening in Polk County since the meeting of the State Grange at Monmouth in 1913.

Merchants to Provide Free Movies.

GRANDVIEW, Wash., Nov. 6.—(Special.)—The newly organized Business Men's Association is going to give free moving picture entertainments every Saturday during the Winter months. The first one will be given this week.
