

Double Watch-Spring Steels in RENG0 BELT Reducing Corsets

Are but one indication of the great wearing quality which medium and stout women positively must have in their corsets. Without strength, support and the RENG0 BELT reducing feature these garments would have no claim for the special consideration of stout women—they would fail to hold their shape—they would break down and prove most unsatisfactory. The fact that for seven years they have grown in popularity and made a crowning success is proof that stout and medium women find lasting and satisfying support and positive reduction in the exclusive features of Rengo Belt corsets. There are models with and without Steelastic webbing. When extra flexibility and added support is desired, our exclusive "Steelastic" will be found to possess superior strength and wearing quality. The double watch-spring steels are guaranteed not to break or rust. See the latest new styles at

UNION SHOWS PROFIT

Raisin Growers Are Cited as Example of Co-operation.

$500,000 MELON DIVIDED

Arthur M. Geary Says Northwest Prune Industry Should Take Similar Steps to Protect Itself Against Low Prices.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 13.—The $500,000 melon which the California Associated Raisin Growers have just divided among their 6000 members indicates the success of the co-operative movement among the raisin producers of California, which is now but four years old. There are reasons which the promoters of the Pacific Northwest, as well as all other fruitgrowers there, can gain from the magnificent success that has accompanied the united efforts of the raisin grapegrowers.

Before the California Associated Raisin Growers was organized the raisin industry faced bankruptcy. The policy of the packers at that time was to pay the growers a low price and then to stifle consumption by selling high.

Growers Own Stock.

The California Associated Raisin Growers is a $1,000,000 corporation, in which the stock is owned mainly by the growers. The great feat in the organization of the corporation was the raising of $1,000,000, which freed the growers from the grasp of the packers.

Raisins, like the box apples of the Pacific Northwest, cannot be fed to the consuming public as rapidly as they arrive from the farms. With the $1,000,000 capital the association of raisin growers is able to finance the growers from year to year.

As soon as the raisins are delivered from the vineyards the corporation pays the growers 20 per cent of the price at which they are bought and gives an interest-bearing note, which can be discounted at the banks for the unpaid portion of the purchase price. These notes may be for 60 days or for six months as the needs of the association require.

Price Advanced One Cent.

The price paid for the raisins in the field is a cent a pound more than was paid by the packers just before the association was formed.

The California Associated Raisin Growers grades, packs, advertises and sells the raisins. The profit, which comes from grading and packing, goes to the corporation and returns to the growers in the form of dividends upon their stock.

A great accomplishment of the association has been to widen distribution and increase consumption. Up to this time the jobbers have been used to distribute the crop; but the tendency at the present time is to work towards reaching the retailer and even the consumer direct. The association advertises extensively in the National magazines. Eighty per cent of the growers are in the association, and the stock books are closed.

Prune Industry Is Other Extreme.

The dried prune industry of Oregon and Washington is an example of one business in which the growers suffer from lack of organization and from the attendant low prices and lack of demand for their product. The high-class evaporated prune of the Northwest has been forced into the same class with the withered, sun-dried brother from California. No boarding-house keeper dares place a dish of prunes upon the table twice in the same week without an apology.

The fine grade Oregon Italian prune could be rescued from this undeserved contempt. Statistics as to the comparative food value of the dried prune and in the process of drying it and as to methods of cooking it would soon give the Oregon and Washington dried prune its proper place. There would be a general improvement in prices from the increased demand created, especially if a strong organization was formed to deal with the brokers and packers.

CHEHALIS MASONS HOSTS
Lodges of Lewis County Are Entertained at Big Banquet.

CHEHALIS, Wash., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—The biggest social event in this section for the season was a banquet tendered last night by the Chehalis Masonic Lodge to the various Masonic lodges of Lewis County. It is estimated that about 400 people enjoyed the hospitality of the Chehalis Masons on this occasion, every lodge in the county being represented, many by large delegations.

Herman Allen, a well-known Chehalis attorney, presided as toastmaster. N. B. Coffman responded to the subject "The History of Masonry Up to the Year 1900 A. D." Dr. J. M. Sletcher took the same subject, covering the period from the year 1900 A. D. to 1890 A. D.; W. A. Reynolds covered the period from 1890 to 1880 A. D., and Dr. J. T. Coleman from 1880 to date. Rev. Mr. Chittenden spoke on "Religion and Masonry."

BIG MILL CRANE IS SET
Booth-Kelly Plant Now Can Lift Structure Timbers of Great Weight.

SPRINGFIELD, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Work has started on the last large structure for the Booth-Kelly sawmill which has been in process of erection here for two years. The mill began operation more than a year ago, but new units have been erected from time to time since. The last is a timber crane for the handling of big timbers, loading them on cars, or carrying them to storage piles. By this crane, structural timbers weighing 1900 to 2500 pounds can be lifted from the live rolls on which they are brought from the saws, and deposited easily on the waiting car.

By the construction of this crane the last of the heavy work is eliminated from the mill. Live rolls, transfer chains and the cranes will do all the moving of timbers or slabs.

Change of Route Petitioned.
JUNCTION CITY, Or., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Petitions are being circulated through Northern Lane County asking that the County Court have the road to be built to Mapleton over the low pass road instead of over the low pass as planned. Those back of the petitions consider that the former route has a smaller per cent of grade and could be built cheaper and that by coming through Junction City there would be a shorter route to Eugene.

Kelso High Loses Debate.
KELSO, Wash., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—Kelso High School debating team lost their first debate of the school year to the Kalama High School team last night at Kalama. The subject was: "Resolved, That the Monroe Doctrine Should be Abolished." Kalama was represented by Eva Schaubble, Fritze Mann and Robert Tunstall, and Kelso by Selma Staff, Cecile Hansackie and Dan Welch.

Timber Cut Is Predicted.
CENTRALIA, Wash., Nov. 13.—(Special.)—It is reported that Clark Bros., whose mill in Tenino was recently destroyed by fire, are preparing to cut and market their timber. The foundation for the report is the fact that their entire timber holdings near Tenino were cruised this week.
