Henry Jennings founded this great Furniture House in the year 1877. The same ambition, the same integrity of purpose, the same endeavor to merit your continued patronage, actuate us now that actuated him through the long years during which he built slowly, carefully, conscientiously. Behind every transaction, behind every purchase you make, no matter how small, stands our good name. We will protect it now and through the years to come with the same fidelity with which it has been protected through the decades that have passed. We invite your patronage on the basis of mutual confidence and good will.

DIETZ DECIDES TO REMAIN

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 1.—(Special.)—Coach Dietz told the Washington State College players before the game: "If you will get in and play like the devil and beat Brown I will coach you again next year, turning down all offers that I have received from the East."
He said after the game: "Yes, I'm going back to Washington State again next year. I cannot leave a team that will fight like they did against Brown. They more than lived up to my expectations."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 1.—(Special.)—Vindicating Western football, the Washington State College football eleven today smothered Brown University, pride of Providence, R. I., 14 to 0 on a slushy field at the Puget Sound University, pride of Tacoma.

On a wet and boggy field Washington looked just about three touchdowns better than the Providence team, and, but for a fumble, caused by the slippery condition of the ball, would have triumphed by that time.

Bangs lost the elusive sphere in Coach Dietz, of the third period on Washington State the two-yard line, College, right under the shadow of the Easterners' goal.
The Cascade athletes relied on straight football with a driving power that was irresistible. Washington's superiority was evident during three-quarters of the combat. Only in the second quarter did Brown have the edge.

Washington Holds in Crisis.
During that time the Providence team had the ball in Washington's territory practically every minute, once moving down to the four-yard line. Dietz then here dug their heels into the mud, and held magnificently considering that they were not equipped with skid chains.

This was Washington's only crisis and having bridged it satisfactorily, the eleven took fresh courage and advanced the ball down the field line late in the third quarter, Boone going through left tackle for the first touchdown. Durham kicked goal. In the final quarter the Dietz machine registered another touchdown after smashing down the field and Durham repeated the goal kick.

Again in the last quarter the Brown breakworks were in danger from a drop kick by Durham that failed from the 20-yard line.

No Goals in Danger in First.
In the opening quarter, honors leaned slightly toward Washington, although neither goal was in danger. Brown came back strong in the second quarter and came within a hop and a jump of scoring.

The tide of battle changed unmistakably with the beginning of the second half, when the powerful Boone relieved Hanley at right half.
Reinforced, the Washington backfield proceeded to batter and tear the Brown line into submission. Not being pickers, they picked out right tackle for battering purposes, a position occupied by Eugene Murphy. He was strong as mentioned for the All-American section.

With Captain Clark putting the 214-pound Parmun out of action or at least hampering him greatly, Dietz, Boone and Bangs were smashing through on off-tackle bucks, with trip-hammer regularity and literally crashed their way to two touchdowns.

Pollard Plays Below Expectation.
Pollard, the gentleman of color and ability, who plays left half for the New Englanders, performed up to the advance notices. Speed is one of his greatest assets, but the slippery field made it of little use to him. Frequently he bogged down. He made some edifying gains, but never could he get away for long runs.

Once or twice he was trapped behind his own line before he could get up steam and could do nothing but dodge back and forth. Once or twice it looked as though he might run up in the grandstand. However, he was as slippery as the proverbial eel, and it generally took about half of the Washington team to quiet him.

Toward the end of the third quarter Coach Richardson, of Providence, became so pessimistic that he yanked his entire backfield, including Captain Andrews, and sent in a flock of understudies.

The change did not bring the expected results, and the original backfield was restored to good standing at the beginning of the fourth quarter.
