SEATTLE, Wash., Feb. 12 .- (Special.)—Seattle boasts that it is the largest dry city in the United States—but does not boast too Budly. In the second month of its arid existence the second month of its arid existence the city, as a whole, admits that it has not fully made up its mind yet whether it likes or dislikes the new scheme of things. Naturally there are varying personal opinions ranging from ultra dry to ultra wet, but old General Public has yet to express his own mind. He is going to give temperance a fair trial and then let his opinion be known.
