If you might term it such, likewise was an event of the rather dampish afternoon. Alongside of Quinn today Big two catchers will be carried by the Portland Coast Club after the first Louis Guisto was a selling plater. Louis developed somewhat of a weakness on low curves on the inside and five times he strode to the plate without the strode to the plate without the strode to the plate without the men.

Once Louis was, up with the bases full, and the best he could produce was an infield flound-er. Wynn Noyes fanned him both times

Meanwhile his southpaw first sack rival. Quinn, was busy living up to his advance notices. Two of his three hits were line smacks—not extra-base clouts but such singles as Chester Chadbourne used to produce in the days before the Feds came in and took him from us. Quinn allowed himself to get nabbed off first base on two occasions. The ump was wrong on one. On the whole the Syracuse first baseman gave a satisfactory exhibition.

Carson Bigbes at short was another luminary. The Oregon lad walked twice, belted in a score with a long sacrifice fly, and, on his other trip, doubled to center. In addition "Skeet" pilfered a couple of bases off the St. Mary's battery men. Wynn Noyes and Reese Peek—the latter a Sacramento semi-professional phenom—pitched for the Beavers against two right-handers and a southpaw named Whelan Whelan was the best of the trio. Quinn secured one of the two hits off him in the four innings he worked, but other left-handed batters like Southworth, of the St. Mary's runs accrued during Peek's occupancy of the box. Two walks and a double filled the bases in the fifth inning. One run scored on an out and two more registered on Lutge's triple to left. St. Mary's scored another in the eighth on a walk and a single.

As a spectacle the game abounded in morning and afternoon and the out-in such thrills as one might expect in such thrills as one might expect.

Quinn's single, Southworth's double and "Skeet" Bigbee's sacrifice counted and Skeet Sigoe's sacrifice counted two in the first inning. Derham's sin-gle and theft and Noyes' two-bagger added another in the second, South-worth injected a dash of "pep" into the affray in the next inning by poling the horsehide into somebody's turnip paich beyond the right wall. Carson Bigbee's double steal of third and Stumpf's sacrifice contributed another score in this stanza. Stumpf later whacked a double into center and scored two more tallies—in the fifth and it was Stumpf's single in the sevenit that added the final registration.

Leaders for Sunday Morning Game Teams to Select Lineups.

William J. Lewis, chairman of the baseball committee of the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club, yesterday announced who would captain the teams in the Sunday Morning House League. They are Charles Barton, two-time champion; Harry Fischer, Bert Allen, Milton F. Penfield, E. C. Sammons and William R. Smyth.

The committee will get together this morning and select the teams so that everything will be ready to start operations next Sunday morning on Multnomah Field. A double-header will be staged each Sunday until the schedule has been completed and then a first team will be chosen by Captain Lewis.
