W. O. Van Schuyver—the unique characters of the party.
 Mrs. F. A. Kribb, a modern beauty.
 Miss Ruth Teal, a gypsy, with becoming green headress.
 Edward Pousland, a treader.
 John D. Scott, a laundry bag.
 A. E. Mackenzie, Gordon Highlander of the 32d regiment.
 Wade Pipes, yellow and white striped lemon candy stick.

Miss Ruth Teal, a bewitching gypsy of the bal masque, entertained before that festivity at a dinner for Miss Rhoda, Fumelin, Miss Hazel Archibald, of Seattle, Miss Mary Stuart Smith, Miss Virginia McDonough, Prescott Cookingsham, Edward Pousland, Mac-Cormack Snow, Merle G. Campbell and Alan Green.
 Miss Elizabeth Creadick gave a French cafe dinner prior to the bal masque for Mr. and Mrs. Wade Pipes, Mr. and Mrs. Folger Johnson, Dr. and Mrs. A. N. Creadick, Miss Camille Doesch, Miss Susie Smith, Miss Brown, Leland L. Smith, Seaton Taylor, John Scott, King Tyler, Joseph Hill and Mrs. Skugg.
 Several other gay dinners were given before this wonderful mask ball.

Miss Failing entertained on Tuesday at an artistically appointed dinner in compliment to General and Mrs. Marion Maus, who will leave Portland today. Orchids and maiden hair fern adorned the table. Covers were placed for General and Mrs. Maus, Colonel and Mrs. H. C. Cabell, Mr. and Mrs. Wheelwright, Captain and Mrs. Gordon Voorhies, Mrs. Helen Leard Corbett, Mrs. Miller, of New York City; W. B. Ayer, Dr. A. J. Mackenzie, Hugh Hume, Colonel C. L. Potter, Miss Mary Failing and the hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent Cook gave one of the smartest dinners of the season

Crocker, William Thomas, Alfred Suro, Francis Carolan, Latham McMullin, Misses Marjorie Josselyn, Winifred Carnegie Prior, Edith Hecht, Elsie Kraft, Dr. and Mrs. Phillip King, Brown, Dr. and Mrs. Alfred Newman, Dr. and Mrs. Bruce Foulkes, Dr. Tracy Russell.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Forbes and baby will leave today for Monterey, Cal., where they will make their home. Society is regretting their departure.

A more enjoyable programme than that presented on Monday at Mrs. Lee Hoffman's drawing-room can scarcely be imagined. The affair was arranged as a benefit for the Women's Alliance, of the Unitarian Church, but everyone who attended was indeed privileged. Mrs. Thomas L. Elliot gave readings from some of her most delightful short stories. Her delineation of unique characters, her dialect studies and her masterly touch of humor of interest make Mrs. Elliot's stories distinctive and she reads them remarkably well.

Mrs. Thomas Carriek Burke's songs, her own compositions, were beautifully interpreted by Mrs. Delphine Marx, contralto; Mrs. Burns Albert, soprano. Six songs were sung and all were gems. The "Dawn" number was particularly charming, containing much of the radiance of the morn, the scattering of the dewdrops and the warmth of the early day.

Mrs. Hoffman and Miss Margery Hoffman received the guests informally and they were assisted by officers of the alliance. The organization does a large amount of charity work in an unostentatious manner. All winter employment was given to women sewing funds. Garments have been made for the poor and needy and general social service work has been carried on. A number of prominent women are members of the alliance.

Mrs. Hazel Blumauer Litt was hostess last night at a dinner in the Hotel Benson, with Miss Gladys Pitts, of Victoria, B. C., as the honor guest. Miss Pitts was the guest of the Misses MacMaster, Alisa MacMaster, the table was decorated attractively with pink and white Japanese cherry blossoms. Covers were laid for the Misses MacMaster, Miss Pitts, Mrs. Litt, John Stevenson, Philip Frye, Merle Campbell and Ferdinand Smith.

The next on the list will be the after-Easter events. The cotton ball on April 24 will be of great interest. It is the second affair of the kind to be given in Portland for the benefit of Seadding House. All the details have not been announced yet and the list of patronesses is not given. The committee is busy perfecting details. Those who are at work on the plans are Mrs. Everett Ames, Mrs. D. Shindler, Mrs. Arnold Howe, Mrs. H. Holt C. Wilson, Mrs. James B. Kerr, Mrs. Howard Mather and Mrs. W. D. Wheelwright. The party will be held in Coffey Hall and will be unique in that all the maids and matrons will wear cotton gowns and the men will be in informal dress.

A box party at the Orpheum followed by a supper at the Benson was the entertainment planned by Mrs. William Heller for several of her young friends on Wednesday night.

Mrs. Raymond McCarthy (renee Flynn) will visit here during the summer and will be one of the charming inspirations for much entertaining. Since her marriage Mrs. McCarthy has made her home in Pacific, Colo. Her recent "Territorial Day" celebration, she was the soloist and her glorious voice received enthusiastic applause. Mrs. McCarthy will be accompanied to Portland by her little daughter, Katherine Virginia. The attractive young matron is the daughter of Mrs. and Mr. H. Flynn, and a sister of Miss Mamie Helen Flynn, the brilliant young pianist.

Among those in pretty costumes were: Miss Haynes in embroidered milie, decollete; ornaments, pearl; Miss Bubev wore gray nuns' veiling decollete; Miss Hudson wore red India silk, diamonds; Miss Case, gray, diamond; Miss Calkin, black lace decollete; Miss Ewart, Sarah silk; Miss Martin looked charming in pale blue cashmere decollete, ornaments, diamonds; Miss Parson wore black lace; Miss Ripley, light green India silk, decollete, ornaments, diamonds; Miss Davenport wore brown cashmere; Miss Austen looked beautiful in pink broad-cloth decollete, ornaments, diamonds; Miss Whitfield, tan and brown challie decollete; Mrs. Gladding, heliotrope cashmere; Miss Staff, cream albatross decollete; Miss Bruce, white cashmere; Miss Coughlan, cream cashmere and silk decollete.

Among the chers present were Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Milwain, Mr. and Mrs. Theodore O. Gladding, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Austen, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Ripley, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Holcomb, Mr. and Mrs. R. For the Ladies. Feathered trimmings clasped here and there by gold ornaments will be much used. There is an improvement in parasols. Instead of opening them by pushing up the stick, you open them by pressing a button. How much is accomplished in those days by pressing a button. This is an aspen age in millinery. The spirit of Cleopatra seems to be over the shops. Her favorite asp is very correctly imitated and is intended to trail himself over the flowing locks. Cleopatra impersonation has introduced this fashion. But if women wear snakes at all, they would prefer to wear them on their bonnets rather than on their boots.

Enjoyable Affair. On Wednesday evening last the Plaisir Club, which has the reputation of giving some most enjoyable parties, gave their fifth dance at Arion Hall. There were about 30 couples present who enjoyed tripping the light fantastic to the music of the orchestra. The guests were: Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Williams, Mr. and Mrs. Royal, Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Mitchell, Mrs. Munsd, Miss Sara Munsd, Mrs. Donald Griffith, Miss Annie Gullison, Miss Nellie Morgan, Miss Dearborn (Salem), Miss Wilson, Miss Leta Brown, Miss Stuart, Miss Etta Bailly, Len C. Jones, Shelly Morgan, Sherman D. Brown, Paul van Fridash, Otto Breymann, William M. Kappus, Ed K. Howe, Lawrence Knapp, Harold Pilkington, Dr. H. W. Cardwell, Miss Gullison and Dr. Mackay.

Equestrian tea dances, with many of the dancers in riding togs, are the latest fad in New York. The first of these riding teas was given at Bustanoby's, in the Domino room, Sixtieth and Broadway. It came about as the result of many requests for a dance at which those who ride in the park are also devotees of the dance to enjoy conveniently a combination of these diversions.

Yellow blossoms of the Springtime adorned the tables at the University Club on Monday night, when the Professional Women's League entertained at dinner in compliment to C. R. Ashbee, of England. Miss Mary Frances Leoni presided.

After the banquet Mr. Ashbee made a short address. Later he spoke in the Art Museum, and on Wednesday night gave a lecture in the Little Theater.
