PEACE MOVE FUTILE IS BELIEF IN BERLIN

Refusal of Allies to Concede Germany's Victories Is Regarded as Bar.

TALK CONSIDERED USELESS

Neutral Mediation Said to Be of Little Avail, While President Wilson, Unpopular With Teu-tons, Is Not Acceptable.

BY OSWALD SCHUETTE. BERLIN, May 27 .- (Special.)-It is difficult exactly to appraise such intangible matter as progress toward peace. Weighing all the factors, however, the prospect of peace today actually seems to be more distant than it was two weeks ago. Instead of accelerating the end of the war, the discussions in the last two weeks have moved peace farther

They have particularly brought to concede Germany's military victories. the fronts have pushed into the enemy's territory, and because all the important victories of the war have been won by the central powers, Germany insists that this fact must be taken into consideration in framing peace Germany. sideration in framing peace, Germany is convinced that it can extend these victories from time to time by making the necessary sacrifices of life, while cessful offensive anywhere.

On the other hand, the declarations of the leaders of the allies demonstrate that they are still convinced that Germany's success is only temporary and that economic causes, rather than military blows, will yet bring Germany to its knees. This Germany insists is impossible.

Nor is there any prospect that neu-tral mediation can change this, Similarly futile are all discussions as to whether President Wilson would be acceptable to Germany as a mediator. The press comment is sufficient to show that personally i.e is most unpopular; but if he can present a successful peace programme, this upon cessful peace programme, this unpopu-larity will be forgotten.
