TOURISTS BILKED; MR. DALY BLAMED

Draft of Ordinance to Regulate Cars Rented Out Is Held Up for Months.

COMPLAINTS, TOO, IGNORED

Effort to Curb Drivers, Who Are Injuring City's Good Name, Fails Because "Servant of Public" Winks at Violations.

While a string of jitney drivers and drivers of automobile livery cars are causing complaints from tourists and visitors, particularly on Columbia River Highway trips, an ordinance prepared three months ago at the instigation of the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce, to make these drivers deal fairly with the public, lies idle in the hands of City Commissioner Daly. It was aimed for the present tourist season, but it has been sidetracked week after week for reasons not known to those who first gave it life.

sons not known to those who first gave it life.

The Chamber of Commerce committee is up in arms over the matter. It is declared by members of this commitdeclared by members of this committee that jitneys and irresponsible livery car drivers are running at large and are bilking unsuspecting visitors. The Chamber had complaints of the same sort last season, and had hoped to have the trouble corrected for this season, so started out early to accomplish this end; and now, in the middle of the season, it finds itself still waiting.

The ordinance as proposed fixes the maximum rate to be charged by drivers, and requires them to obtain licenses before going into the business.
It further makes licenses revocable for misdeeds of the drivers, and requires them to pass examinations to determine their ability to drive, and provides for cars being submitted to safety tests.

The most common practice of irresponsible drivers is to agree to take a party to the Columbia River Highway and have the driver go as far as Crown Point, where he announces that "this is the Columbia River Highway."

"But where is the much-talked-of Multinomah Falls?" asks the visitor. Here is where the joker comes in. The driver says the falls are further on, but he only agreed to take them on, but he only agreed to take them "to" the highway and not "over" the highway, and collects $3 or $4 more to complete the trip. The visitor can pay the additional fare or return to Portland without seeing the highway.

Loss in Handling Is 2 Per Cent. Loss in Handling is 2 Per Cent.

It is said the bureau officials, of whom Commissioner Bigelow and Purchasing Agent Wood are the principals, are unable to account for the 800-gallon shortage. People operating filling stations have been consulted and have reported that their maximum loss of gasoline in handling is about 2 per cent. Some of them, it is understood, have said the loss is nil while others have placed it as high as 2 per cent.

So loss through handling has not been a sufficient explanation for the loss at the city's garage. There is something wrong somewhere else. That old reprobate General Efficiency, who VALUE IS PLACED AT $72
