TROOP A ATHLETES LOSE

Fort Rosecrans Soldiers Take Pushball Contest From Oregon Men.

Squad of 9 Cavalrymen Enjoy Home Dainties.

BY WILL G. MAC RAE. CAMP BALBOA, San Diego, Cal., Aug. 5.

Trooper Jack Adams is now the best-drilled trooper in Troop A. In the competitive drill held this morning, Trooper Adams won the prize...

The contest was spirited and was not finished at mess time. When the mess bugle sounded the 61 competitors had dwindled down to four—Jack Adams, Rankin W. Clarke, Clyde L. Meach and John J. Anderson...

Camp Undergoes Inspection. Saturday in the Army is given over to cleaning house and inspection of tents. The call for inspection today called for exhibiting full field equipment and the company street for all the world resembled a row of Baghdad merchants with all their goods displayed for sale...

Score another defeat for Troop A athletes. This afternoon they met a 5-to-0 defeat at the hands of 10 husky soldiers from Fort Rosecrans. Several members of Troop A came back from the game with the scars of defeat. Trooper McGinnis reported the gold filling had been knocked out of two front teeth. Early reports from the exposition grounds, however, said that Trooper McGinnis had tried to bite his initials in the big ball. The 10 players from Fort Rosecrans outweighed the Troop A 10 by at least 500 pounds...

"Goodies" from Home Liked. Squad 9 again enjoyed a lot of home-cooked dainties when Trooper Van Jorgensen received a large box from his sweetheart, Miss Lola Heyke, of Portland. The young woman sent a box that contained a large fruit cake, a two-pound box of just candy, a box of potato chips and a half dozen glasses of jelly. The home dainties did not last long, for the delicacies were distributed among the whole troop.

Joe Singer, whose presence in camp has bothered all the wise guessers, returned yesterday on a visit to Eugene, Ore., where he says he found all of the men happy and healthy. Joe found the Third Battalion camp in great confusion, preparing to break camp and move to Imperial City, which is to be the permanent camp. In spite of the haste and hurry, the eight Joe was a signal for requests for Oregon political inquiry, and of course, Joe (his front name being politics) was able to furnish the camp with some of the latest gossip.

Men Well Fed. Joe seemed to be especially interested in the new machine guns which had just been received by the machine-gun company. He had a look at various mess-kitchens that had not been dismantled and remarked it was no wonder that the members of the Third Oregon were taking on flesh in spite of the task of drilling twice a day.

"I am here on my vacation," was the way Joe explained his presence, "and I don't think I could find a better way to put in the time. I wanted to see whether the Oregon boys were becoming soldiers. I'm satisfied. They are working hard, having plenty to eat and I found the boys all well. The only kick I heard while down here is because the paymaster hasn't been on the job, yet."

GIRL OF 14 IS SOUGHT Uncle Believes She Was Lured Away From Home at Fairview.

City Detective Hawley is seeking a trace of 14-year-old Opal Davis, of Fairview, who was reported by J. O. Davis, her uncle, to have left that place for Portland on a 4 o'clock train Friday afternoon.

Mr. Davis believes that the girl was lured from home by a railway section hand, who is thought to have accompanied her.

Opal Davis is slight of stature, of light complexion, with eyes slightly crossed. She wears glasses and was dressed in a pink corduroy jacket, white sailor hat and white Oxfords.

The police were informed that the girl had never before been involved in a runaway escapade. All search for her yesterday was without result.

CROOK FAIR DATES SET

PRINEVILLE EXPECTS BIG SHOW SEPTEMBER 27 TO 30.

Effort Will Be Made to Eclipse Last Year's Success—Livestock to Be Special Feature.

PRINEVILLE, Or., Aug. 5.—(Special.)—The Crook County Fair will be held at Prineville September 27 to 30. From all indications it will surpass the fair held last year, which Governor Withycombe, J. W. Brewer, of the Portland Chamber of Commerce, and others who attended most of the fairs in the state last year said was among the best.

Crop conditions in Central Oregon are far better than they have been for years, and this alone should insure the best fair ever held in Eastern Oregon.

As for livestock, this year this part of the fair will be as large or even larger than last, judging from the reservations for stalls that are coming in daily to Manager Schee.

Herbert A. Munter, the aviator who appeared at the Oregon State Fair last season, will give an exhibition each day, doing all his thrilling stunts, and other attractions will be given daily in front of the grandstand.

The race programme is much better this year and in addition to the race programme there will be frontier exhibitions.

A fat steer will be given away this year to the person guessing nearest the correct weight, and the night show and carnival will be held on the street again this year, as it was a great success last season.

GOVERNOR TALKS TO CATTLE BREEDERS

Owners of High-Grade Stock in Lewis County Hold First Annual Meeting.

MANY ADDRESSES HEARD

After Gathering in Park and Picnic Dinner Guests Are Taken for Tour of District to View Individual Herds.

BY ADDISON BENNETT. CHEHALIS, Wash., Aug. 5.—(Special.)—The first annual outdoor meeting of the Lewis County Pure Breeders' Association was held on the grounds of the Clagatto Schoolhouse, situated on the banks of the historic stream, about three miles southwest of this city, this afternoon.

Words can scarcely describe the beauty of the day or the rare sight of 400 or 500 happy people congregated under the great maple trees to do honor to the opening of a work that is certain to mean great things for the progressive people of this county. Women of the community had tables spread sufficient to accommodate the guests. After an hour spent at the tables the assembly was called to order by N. B. Coffman, of this city, president of the association, and after a few pertinent remarks as to the origin, scope and purposes of the association he introduced Judge E. R. Brady, a Guernsey breeder of Satsop, Wash., who gave an added impetus to the remarks of the president.

Then followed Governor Withycombe, of Oregon, the honor guest of the occasion. The Governor was at his best both in voice and sentiment and he certainly made it plain that he thought the association had undertaken a work which should be followed by other communities.

The Governor referred to the scientific bred cow as the "wet nurse of agricultural prosperity." Livestock he declared to be the basis of agriculture, and without improved livestock he declared little progress in farming possible. "More boys and girls," he asserted, "should stay on the farm and their surroundings should be made such that they will stay. The real hope of the country lies in the farm." The in succession addresses were delivered by William Bishop, of Chilocum, Wash.; George R. Walker, secretary of the association; J. W. Sutton, Republican candidate for United States Senate; Mrs. J. W. McCutcheon, L. P.

and has doctored them so well that now it is almost a habit with him.

Private Wilke yesterday undertook to give one of the unruly draft animals a lesson in the proper way to stand for grooming. But this time the teacher was taught, and the private has a stiff leg today.

Private C. E. Adams, who the other day sustained a sprained ankle, expects to be returned to regular duty tomorrow.

It is expected that work on the erection of a huge stable to care for the 125 animals already here, will be begun in the near future.

Target practice in the big talk now, and each day the time seems to be nearer.

Wagon repairing has become a regular part of the duties about camp, and the workers are growing more proficient each day.

SYMPATHY IS DEPLOYED

RETURNED FUGITIVE DECLARED IN RECENT PLOT. J. L. Clark's Escape From Salem Said to Have Been Revealed Through Conspiracy to Defraud.

SALEM, Or., Aug. 5.—(Special.)—Sympathy for J. L. Clark, returned from Spokane today as a fugitive to the Oregon penitentiary, is misplaced, and efforts to secure a pardon for him from Governor Withycombe are misguided, according to Joseph Keller, state parole officer.

Clark, alias Rhinehart, escaped from the prison here in 1913, while employed as a trustee at the asylum farm. The arrest of Clark in Spokane came about, Officer Keller said tonight, when Clark tried to secure damages from the Spokane Street Railway Company for alleged injuries to his wife by falling from a car last April.

First intimation that the accident was "arranged" was conveyed to the Spokane police by Mrs. Stevens, mother of Mrs. Clark, according to Mr. Keller, who said she told the police that the accident was a plot by Clark and his wife to obtain money from the company. Miss Stevens, a sister of Mrs. Clark, according to Officer Keller, was "in on the deal." Clark having agreed to give her a part of whatever money they obtained, she was with Mrs. Clark when the "accident" took place.

The police placed a dictograph in the Clark home, by which details of the plot were obtained through conversations which the Clarks carried on in the house. This evidence was presented to the attorney for the Clarks, and resulted in the quashing of the suit. The dictograph also revealed the fact that Clark had escaped from the Oregon penitentiary.

Officer Keller has information which leads him to believe that Clark was convicted of obtaining money by false pretenses about a year ago in Kansas City, and was paroled. He is investigating.
