

PRESIDENT PLANS

Effort to Be Made to Put Mr. Hughes on Defensive in Speaking Tour.

Mr. Wilson to Defend Mexican and European Policies as Quickly as Possible—Series of Questions to Be Asked.

REPLIES BEING PREPARED

BY JOHN CALLAN O'LAUGHLIN, WASHINGTON, Aug. 12.—(Special).—Offense, not defense—that is to be the policy of President Wilson in the pending campaign.

The President will not sit quiet and permit Mr. Hughes to go over the country assailing him and his policies. Every statement made by the Republican candidate, every charge uttered by him, is to be answered, and answered quickly, and with a punch. Moreover, it is the intention of Mr. Wilson to place Mr. Hughes on the defensive as far as possible. Charges cannot be made against the New Yorker aspirant for the Presidency, but he can be asked to explain what he would have done in the circumstances which the Administration faced. In short, whenever the situation justifies it, the question will be put to Mr. Hughes, what would you have done? and what would you do?

Specific Replies Wanted. Generalities will not be regarded as a sufficient reply. The President will insist that his opponent be specific. For example, Mr. Hughes indicated in his speech of acceptance that he would have recognized Huerta as President of Mexico. "But what guarantee can you give that Huerta would have restored peace and order?"

If Mr. Hughes should produce evidence showing that Huerta could have suppressed brigandage, the State Department will control the reply. It is on file in the State Department, dealing with the strength of Carranza, Villa and Zapata and their ability to contain the constant outbreaks of the policy of Mexico City. Once what the Administration terms the "Huerta myth" is disposed of, the outbreak of the war states that there was no other course for him to pursue than to recognize Carranza, unless he determined to intervene; and in connection with his policy of keeping the country out of war, this was a heroic measure which he was not prepared to adopt.

Verbal Weak. So far as the expulsion of Huerta is concerned, the President will argue that this was a necessary step to take to create a situation from which tranquility might emerge. The occupation of Vera Cruz, it will be contended, was not an act of war, any more than the entrance of the United States into Northern Mexico was an act of war. The landing at Vera Cruz was for the purpose of seizing the customs house and preventing Huerta from getting ammunition. The difficulty of this explanation lies in the fact that the ammunition was not taken from the port and safely reached the Huertistas.

The President does not regard Mr. Hughes' campaign as being conducted with a high level of intelligence. He holds it to have been rather undignified for the Republican candidate to be attacked by the bureau appointments in the Department of Commerce. The reply made by Secretary Redfield a few days ago met with his approval. He has reference to the retirement of Myron T. Herrick from the embassy in Paris, which Mr. Hughes has mentioned in his speech of acceptance, the State Department points out that the Ambassador retained his office for more than a year after the outbreak of the war and that he voluntarily presented his resignation to the President.

Foreign Policy Debatable. There will be a volume of evidence launched by the Administration against the public in a few hours, all justifying the course the President has pursued in various respects. It is the confident belief of the Democratic campaign managers that Mr. Wilson cannot be attacked with profit on his record of American legislation, and that his foreign policies he has pursued can be debated ground, and it is in support of these policies that the Democratic Democratic stump speakers will labor energetically up until election day.

Mr. Wilson had arranged to go to Kentucky early in September. He can not do so, however, on account of other engagements. He will speak in Louisville or some other point probably in October. It is not generally realized that the action of Raymond Robins, of Chicago, in coming to Washington to see the great deal of ill feeling among Democratic politicians against Mr. McCormick. They held that the Democratic chairman was not showing in "siding up" the ex-Progressive, and that it was most unwise for him to interfere in state politics. Mr. Robins, however, being about withdrawal of Governor Duane, who has been always friendly to the President, and because there is upon Mr. McCormick that he must be wary in connection with other state controversies and that the far wiser policy for him to pursue is to keep his hands off, and to insist only that whatever state differences exist there shall be unanimity for the President.

CRATER LAKE IS LAUDED

Head of National Parks Says Klamath Will Be Great Resort.

KLAMATH FALLS, Or., Aug. 10.—(Special).—"Everyone who visits this section must say Klamath is a wonderful country and is bound to become a really great scenic resort," said R. E. Marshall, superintendent of National Parks in the United States, as he left here for California to continue his tour of the National parks of the United States. "The time will come when most of the $500,000,000 annually spent abroad by American tourists will be spent at home. This must be because there is no lake in the world that compares with Crater Lake, because the Alps do not affect one as a view of Mount Rainier does, and because there is only one Grand Canyon of the Colorado in the world," said Mr. Marshall.

Road Encircling Gift Park

NORTH BEND, Or., Aug. 12.—(Special).—R. E. Cavender, city engineer, and a crew of surveyors are laying out a roadway around Simpson Park, the 106-acre tract recently donated to the city by the A. M. Simpson heirs. The roadway will be completed before the season of the railroad jubilee and a new speaker stand will be constructed at the entrance, just east of the bridge which spans the Southern Pacific cut. A large portion of the jubilee ceremonies for North Bend day will be held in Simpson Park.

CHARLES E. HUGHES, MRS. HUGHES AND ADMIRERS.

Mr. and Mrs. Hughes spent Sunday, the first day out on their campaign trip, at Niagara Falls. The day for them was rather quiet. Mr. Hughes and Mrs. Hughes attended services at the First Baptist Church. At his request there was no demonstration. The ex-Justice and Mrs. Hughes enjoyed a long motor ride, crossing over into Canada, where they were held up by a Canadian sentry who examined their car.

MRS. HUGHES 'HAVEN'

"My Duty Lies at Home," Says Nominee's Wife.

"NO FICTION" IS HER AIM

"Real Character" Expressed in Views of Possible "First Lady" Despite Princess—She Is Past 50 but Looks 40.

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—Charles E. Hughes is not a henpecked husband. This may cost him votes next Fall, but it's a fact.

In his own ballroom Mr. Hughes is the boss. Not that he directs the life of the kitchen and the pantry. Put her simply the kind of a man who regulates his family to conform to his own plans—who doesn't indulge in arguments at the breakfast table or permit any of his fairly numerous children to do so.

While the Republican candidate was passing an hour in meditation at the Blackstone Hotel Mrs. Hughes was interviewed. Mrs. Hughes is unassuming. Her dignity is the consciousness of duties well done and a life well lived. She is past 50. She looks about 40.

Hair Worn in Pompadour. This despite the fact that Mrs. Hughes' coiffure is seven years behind the time. She wears her hair in a little pompadour. It is an indifferent brown. Her attire is prim and modest. There is something about Mrs. Hughes that reminds you of a woman's club president.

Mr. Hughes' Opinions Mine. "No," she said. "Not a bit. They are exactly the same. I accept Mr. Hughes' opinion as my own. He and I agree with him in the matter."

Woman's Real Character Revealed. Out of what Mrs. Hughes said a real character stepped forth. Here was no faded schoolgirl temperance, but one which has found its medium and holds it firmly. Mr. Hughes was its medium. Whenever she mentioned her husband, for instance, you felt convinced right off the bat that in her mind he was the biggest man in the country, that his whiskers were not humorous, but very awesome and dignified.

A few more questions. Did she like to travel? Did she like the crowds, the cheers, the speeches, the excitement? "It is my duty and my pleasure," said Mrs. Hughes. "To accompany my husband on his trip."

FIRM STAND ADVOCATED

Candidate Declares Businesslike Methods Will Come Only by Determined Front; Firm Stand on Questions at Issue.

Rebuke to Effervescence Given. Will she get a new hairdresser when she gets into the White House? Perhaps. And perhaps not. Mrs. Hughes is to radical, effervescent womanhood what a Wilson note is to the Kaiser—a rebuke. Nevertheless, the title, "Grandma Hughes" doesn't fit her.

Mr. McAdoo Assailed. In his speech at Helena, earlier today, Mr. Hughes, continuing his attacks on the Administration for its appointments, charged Secretary McAdoo, "upon reliable information," with having replaced Henry N. Clapp, formerly confidential secretary to John G. Carlisle, with Daniel E. Finn, son of "Battery Dan" Finn, a Tammany leader as assistant appraiser of merchandise at New York.

WARM WELCOME PROMISED. Grants Pass to Give Ovation on Arrival of Mr. Hughes.

GRANTS PASS, Or., Aug. 12.—(Special).—The people of Grants Pass are looking forward with the keenest of anticipation to the visit of Charles E. Hughes to this city next Thursday, and plans are being perfected for a few moments of royal entertainment while his train is being held.

Mr. Rodway, the advance manager for Mr. Hughes, has put a veto on the Portland plan to send Mr. Hughes through Southern Oregon by the Shasta Limited, and it now appears certain that he will pass through this city Thursday afternoon, August 17, at 2:30 o'clock, and that the people of this vicinity will have the opportunity of listening to a few words from him while the train is being held for 10 minutes.

This section of the state rolled up an enormous majority for Hughes at the Republican primaries last Spring, and the Hughes sentiment is growing in strength and volume.

WILD AUTO RUNS AWAY

Mrs. Underwood's Electric Coupe in Zig-Zag Dash, Pilotless.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The unusual sight of an automobile running wild down the steep hill in Wisconsin avenue, which stretches from a little south of the National Cathedral grounds at Mount St. Albans to the entrance to the Naval Observatory grounds, attracted the residents of that section. A handsome electric coupe dashed down the hill without an occupant, zig-zagging from one side of the street to the other, and finally collided with a crash against a lamp post at the corner of Wisconsin avenue and W place. The post was torn from the ground and the car damaged.

Subordinate Place Given. "He was the expert in the appraiser's department at the Port of New York and had been the right-hand man of five different appraisers and the acting appraiser in their absence. Some months after he was put out of the service, through fear of criticism on the part of the Department, he was made an examiner in the customs service, a much lower position than that held before and at a much lower compensation."

CHAIRMEN OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

is a sectional Administration. It is not an American Administration in a broad and proper sense. "I want to see the South built up. It can be built up. It never will be built up, however, without Republican policies being applied. I think many of the Southern men are beginning to realize that. You can no more build up this country by historic Democratic doctrine than you could fly through the air with the old flying machines they experimented with 30 years ago."

Senate, Too, Attacked. The situation in the Senate, Mr. Hughes said, was much similar to that in the House, especially with reference to the "pork barrel" committees.

The Administration's tariff policy also was assailed. "Look what they did to the sugar industry," Mr. Hughes said. "They went ahead to wreck a great industry in many sections of the country. Later they thought better of their own action. They repented to a degree. I tell you we don't want legislation of which we will have to repent. We want foresight in dealing with American industries."

Mr. Hughes again assailed the Administration's foreign policy. "It has led some nations to believe that that is said it was not entirely a plan of campaign, but it is a plan of campaign, and it is a plan of campaign to which so much attention is given. But underlying every sort of paper programme is the great necessity of proper public administration. The Administration has fallen seriously short in that matter. It has prostituted important places to the demands of more partisan expediency."

THE DALLES WILL RALLY

Chairman of County Committee Urges Attendance in Portland.

THE DALLES, Or., Aug. 12.—(Special).—As a starter of the campaign of Charles E. Hughes, the Wasco County Republican Central Committee will get together to insure a tremendous reception for Mr. Hughes when he appears in Portland on the evening of Wednesday, August 16.

Henry Cue, chairman, has issued the following letter to each of the precinct committeemen, and has strong hopes of an enthusiastic co-operation and a remarkable showing in Wasco County.

"Dear Sir—Honorable Charles E. Hughes, Republican candidate for President of the United States, will address the citizens of Oregon at Portland next Wednesday, August 16, at 8 o'clock, and it is desirable that as many attend from the outlying districts as possible.

"The coming of Mr. Hughes at this time reminds us that the Presidential campaign in Oregon is on. In contrast, and I trust that you will use every effort, as committeemen in your precinct, to see that your precinct is aroused to the need for action, and that the Republicans are thoroughly awakened to the necessity for a change in our public affairs. Let us get out and demonstrate the fact that our county central committee exists to do something and can justify its existence by contributing to the success of the Republican ticket. While National affairs are of paramount importance in this campaign, however, let us not overlook the fact that we have a complete Republican ticket in the field, nominated at the primary election, and there is no reason why every candidate with the word 'Republican' after his name should not carry Wasco County, and every candidate with the word 'Democrat' after his name should be defeated in this county. Let us go to work and elect a straight ticket. National, state, district, county and precinct."

Prominence Given South. "I have no criticism to make," he said, "of the honor, the respectability or the agreeable character of any of these men, but I say that an Administration under which so many of the of the temporary organization of the Oregon State Hughes Alliance, with J. K. Gill as temporary president, five branch state alliances have been formed. Three of them are in Multnomah County, one in Marion County and another in Columbia County.

The honor of forming the first county branch was won by Miss Mary E. Hill, alternate to the Progressive National Convention at Chicago, who organized Multnomah County Branch No. 1 Friday night.

Reports of the formation of other branches came in bunches all day yesterday. Miss Mary E. Hill, vice-chairman of the Hughes campaign committee, at Republican headquarters in the Seiling building.

Two other branches in Multnomah County were formed yesterday by Mrs. M. Kelly and Mrs. Harriet L. Buford. They will be known as Multnomah branches No. 2 and No. 3, respectively. Temporary officers will be named later.

All workers report the greatest encouragement for their efforts and much enthusiasm. Within another week 50 or more branch Hughes Alliances probably will be formed throughout the state.

As soon as can be arranged, a state convention will be held, at which permanent officers will be elected and a plan of campaign mapped out.

The Hughes Alliance is an independent organization for men and women voters of all parties, who are working for the election of Mr. Hughes as President of the United States.

WHAT DYSPEPTICS SHOULD EAT

A PHYSICIAN'S ADVICE. "Indigestion and practically all forms of stomach trouble are, nine times out of ten due to acidity, therefore stomach sufferers should, whenever possible, avoid eating food that is acid in its nature, or which causes identical action in the stomach develops acidity. Unfortunately, such a rule eliminates most foods which are pleasant to the taste as well as those which are rich in blood, flesh and nerve building properties. This is the reason why dyspeptic and stomach sufferers are usually so thin, emaciated and lacking in that vital energy which can only come from a well-fed body."

"For the benefit of those sufferers who have of late been excluded from their diet all starchy, sweet or fatty food, and are trying to keep up a miserable existence on gluten products, I would suggest that you should try a meal of any food or foods which you may like, in moderate amount, taking immediately afterwards a teaspoonful of bisulphated magnesia in a little hot or cold water. This will neutralize any acid which may be present, or which may be formed, and instead of the usual feeling of uneasiness and fullness, you will find that your food agrees with you perfectly."

"I know of nothing better than plain bisulphated magnesia as a food corrective and antacid. It has no direct action on the stomach; but by neutralizing the acidity of the food contents, and thus removing the source of the acid irritation, which inflames the delicate stomach lining, it does more than could possibly be done by any drug or medicine."

"As a physician, I believe in the use of medicine whenever necessary, but I must admit that I cannot see the sense of going on with irritating, irritating, irritating drugs instead of getting rid of the acid—the cause of all the trouble. Get a little bisulphated magnesia from your druggist, eat what you want at your next meal, take some of the bisulphated magnesia as directed above, and see if I'm not right."—Adv.
