

C. W. EMBODY FILES CROSS COMPLAINT

Man Who Figures in Matrimonial Tangle Described Very Differently by Couple.

DR. F. LENGFELD SUBJECT

Husband Asks That He Be Granted Divorce, as He Declares His Wife Is Smooth, Designing and Accomplished Adventuress.

In the divorce complaint of Mrs. Lillian Embody, filed three weeks ago against Charles W. Embody, wealthy timberman, she charged, among numerous other things, that her husband was wrongfully jealous of a man named Lengfeld, a friend of her family, old, blind and infirm.

WIFE OF WEALTHY PORTLAND TIMBERMAN AND MAN NAMED IN HIS ANSWER TO HER SUIT FOR DIVORCE FROM PHOTOGRAPH ENTERED AS EXHIBIT IN CASE.

Mrs. Lillian Embody and Dr. Felix Lengfeld

Arbitration Offer Rejected.

Mr. Embody asserts that the final break came when he asked his wife to stem the flood of presents and letters she had been receiving from Dr. Lengfeld. She refused, and he offered to leave the question of whether or not his request was a reasonable one to Mrs. Embody's three sisters.

Alleged Fear of ex-Husband, From Whom Divorce Was Secretly Procured, Said to Have Lessened.

Twenty-months-old Marjorie Rossi may yet have a legal right to her name by the remarriage of Camillo and Anna Rossi.

Another marriage will be preferable to the machinations of court machinery necessary to set aside the divorce decree secured by Mrs. Rossi three years ago without the knowledge of her husband, Mrs. Rossi is now said to believe, and her consent to the ceremony is not unlikely.

Though Mrs. Rossi refused to marry Rossi again, with a show of finality at the time her domestic relations were aired in the District Court, she has since experienced a change of viewpoint, and for the sake of her baby girl may withdraw her refusal. That Mrs. Rossi is very fond of the youngster has not been denied, but her refusal to give the girl a name was prompted, she said, by fear of her former husband, with whom she continued to live for three years after the divorce.

That fear is not so strong now. The Both exchanged confidences, Mr. Embody learning that the young woman had been twice married and her husband from whom she was separated but not divorced. At the same time she learned that Mr. Embody was expecting domestic difficulties and was contemplating divorce. The woman proposed that both get their separations and then marry, declares Mr. Embody.

In September, 1910, she came to Portland. On June 19, 1911, the wedding took place at Everett, Wash. Shortly after the marriage, Dr. Lengfeld came to Portland as a visitor of the Embodys. That began the trouble, Mr. Embody asserts in his cross-complaint.

Friends' Twitting Humiliates.

Just before Dr. Lengfeld arrived, Mr. Embody left on a fishing trip. During his absence he learned that his wife and Dr. Lengfeld made overnight journeys to Seaside and The Dalles, he maintains. His wife convinced him there was no tie between them, but he was humiliated, he says, by the twitting of friends.

Mr. Embody asserts he surprised them in infatuate postures and Mrs. Embody's solicitude for Dr. Lengfeld's comfort was too marked.

In summing up, Mr. Embody declares his wife to be "a smooth, designing, practiced, scheming and accomplished adventuress."

Mrs. Embody has asked $750 a month alimony, $3000 for attorney's fees and a one-third interest in timber holdings valued at $125,000.

Mr. Embody asserts that his net worth is not more than $17,500.

LOCAL BOY NAVAL CADET

W. G. Ingram Will Leave Portland September 1 for Annapolis.

William G. Ingram, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Ingram, of 1025 East Washington street, has been notified that he had passed the examinations and received appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Mr. Ingram was the third alternate, the principal and the other alternates failing in the examination. He will leave September 1. He was born at Pendleton. The first year of his high school work was at Gresham and the last three years at Lincoln High School, where he was graduated in June, 1914.

TROOP AUXILIARY CALLED

Provision for Further Gifts to Boys on Border Will Be Made.

All friends and relatives of the members of Troop A, Oregon Cavalry, now at the Mexican border, are invited to the meeting of the troop auxiliary in the Portland Press Club rooms in the Elks building Tuesday, August 22, 8 o'clock. The auxiliary is little more than a week old, but has been unusually active in providing little delicacies that the ordinary mess table does not afford for the "boys at the front." A quantity of laundry bags, one of the most needed, according to the president of the auxiliary, Barnett H. Goldstein, seven boxes of apples, and a number of cakes were among the things sent the members of the troop last week.

CITY'S EMPLOYEES FACING LEAN DAYS

August Pay May Not Be Forthcoming Until October as Cash Is Scarce.

FUND DOWN TO $66,000

Shortage Caused by Low Tax Two Years Ago Still Hampers Officials and Way Out of Present Difficulty Unsolved.

The city is financially embarrassed. City Commissioner Bigelow, of the Department of Finance, awakened to this fact yesterday, when a report for which he had asked was submitted by the Auditing Department showing that there is only $66,000 in the general fund, with about $150,000 in obligations outstanding.

One result will be that city employees will not be paid for August on September 1, possibly not until October 1. The payroll of $150,000 will have to wait until sufficient money is paid into the city's funds from the Tax Collecting Department next month when the taxpayers pay the second half of their taxes, which become delinquent October 5.

Commissioner Bigelow was under the impression that the general fund balance was about $100,000 and that this would allow for the August payroll, provided some of the July bills were held off. These aggregate about $40,000. For more than a year now the city has been short financially, owing to the fact that the Council two years ago in an apparent endeavor to keep the annual tax levy from going beyond all bounds cut the levy too low. By the utmost squeezing the money was made to stretch over the period between the end of last year and the taxpaying time this year.

The shortage was then shoved along. As soon as the second half of the taxes comes in there will be money enough to last until the end of the year, when there will be trouble again.

City employees are much disturbed over the prospects of no pay for August until the latter part of September. Many say they have obligations which have to be met. Laborers will be particularly hard hit.

There is a chance that the Council will agree to annul the ordinance now prohibiting any city employe from making an assignment of salary. If this is done, it is said there may be some way of the employes getting their pay, even though the city will be unable under the other evidence of expenditure as long as the money to meet the warrants is not in the fund. July bills for the city have not been paid as yet and probably will not be. It is expected they will be held over until next month along with the payroll. Commissioner Bigelow has not decided definitely on this yet.

High School of Five at Stake.

HALEY, Or., Aug. 19.—(Special.)—Peoria, on the Willamette River about seven miles northwest of Halsey, is discussing the advisability of a high school in that school district. It is said there have never been more than five students in the high school classes and some favor abolishing the department.

Fire Damages Vacant Store.

Fire, which the police believe of incendiary origin, broke out in a vacant store building at Union avenue and Ainsworth street last night. The damage was small.

Cove Loses Pioneer Merchant.

COVE, Or., Aug. 19.—(Special.)—David H. Layne, the earliest pioneer merchant of Cove, now living, moved with his family, today to Halfway, Baker County, to engage in merchandizing business. His son, Vernon Layne, graduated from the Cove High School, class of 1915, and whose teacher's examination paper from Salem last month ranked with the highest in general average, was elected principal of Halfway public school for the 1916-17 term.

SEATTLE ARRANGING FOR EXHIBIT OF NORTHWEST'S LAND PRODUCTS

Large Assembly Hall and Street Will Be Used to Put On Big Show in Which Portland and Oregon Have Been Invited to Participate—Prizes of Considerable Value Are Offered.

VIEW OF ARENA FOR SEATTLE LAND SHOW, IN WHICH OREGON HAS BEEN INVITED TO PARTICIPATE.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 19.—(Special.)—As a result of the successful land shows in Portland in 1914 and 1915, following similar exhibitions in Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis, Seattle will stage its first exposition of the soil for 11 days, from October 4 to 14.

The exhibits will be placed in the arena, the city's largest assembly hall, and Fifth avenue for a block will be covered with canvas to make room for machinery exhibits. More than 70,000 square feet will thus be provided for the show.

Oregon has been invited to participate and Portland and Oregon day will be one of the features of the programme. Idaho is to have an exhibit, and Montana has already taken space. British Columbia will make a display of soil products and the Alaska exhibit, now being assembled under the direction of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce in co-operation with the secretaries of all commercial bodies in Alaska, will present the best display of Alaska's horticultural and agricultural products since the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific Exposition of 1909.

Railroads Will Lend Hand. Since Portland will not repeat the annual Manufacturers and Land Products Show this year, Oregon has been offered space at Seattle for a display of fruits, grains, grasses and vegetables. The railroads will also have an important part in the exposition and the exhibits of apples will cover close to 3000 square feet.

More than $4000 will be distributed in prizes. The best county or community display from the Northwest will receive $400 and an exhibition banner as first prize. Second and third prizes of $200 and $100 will also be awarded. This contest is open to any commercial club, Grange, farmers' association, county or community organization. Land companies, corporations or the railroads will not compete for this prize. King County, in which Seattle is located, will make some excellent displays in the contest, but will not enter in competition for the prizes. The scoring will be based on 1900 points, as follows: Number of varieties of products, 200; quality of products, 400; attractive arrangement, 200.

In this big contest products displayed must be grown in 1916 with the exception of corn, clover seed and wild grasses, which may be from the 1915 crop.

Corn Prizes Offered. Another feature at the land show will be the division set aside for exhibits of corn. The Seattle National Bank has offered a grand sweepstakes prize for the best ten ears of Dent or Flint Corn. The best single ears of the same variety will also come in for special awards. Prizes are offered also for the best 100 ears of any variety. After the conclusion of the exposition the corn exhibits will be forwarded to St. Paul for the second corn show in December, which is to be staged by the First National bank of that city.

The premium list has also provided a special cash prize of $150 as first and $75 as second prize for the best individual farm exhibits. Peas, beans, apricots, plums, evaporated fruits, prunes, grapes, nuts, onions and potatoes also come in for special awards. Southwestern Washington will be well represented in the exposition and arrangements have been made for some fine displays of prunes and potatoes with other products from Clarke County.

Ferullo's band, now playing an engagement in Portland, has been engaged for 11 days of the exposition, and other attractions will be provided to give daily features while the show is in progress. The dairy interests of Seattle have taken October 7 as their special day.

Five department heads from the Washington State Agricultural College at Pullman will be in daily attendance at the exposition. Professor C. L. Lewis, head of the horticultural department of the Oregon Agricultural College, will act as one of the judges for Seattle's first land show.

PASTOR'S SON IS SHOT

LAD AT PLAY IS ACCIDENTALLY HIT BY STRAY BULLET.

Screens of James Mount, 11, Frighten Away Two Men Indulging in Target Practice in Woods.

While playing in the brush with two other boys near East Forty-second and Mason streets yesterday at 1 o'clock, 11-year-old James Mount, son of Rev. Harry N. Mount, pastor of Vernon Presbyterian Church, received a gunshot wound in the right knee.

The boy left his home at 1025 East Nineteenth street North for a lark in the woods. With him were Carl Miller and Harold Cobb, neighbor boys of the same age. Their view of the road was hidden by brush when an auto drew up and stopped. They heard the voices of two men, then the firing of a small-caliber rifle.

A bullet sped through the brush and struck Harry Mount in the right knee, just below the cap, imbedding itself in the bone. He screamed, and the boys heard the auto start down the road, presumably when its occupants were alarmed by the result of the firing. None of the boys caught a glimpse of the men.

Supported by his friends, the injured boy walked to a nearby residence, and Dr. L. C. McCabe, of 891 Alberta street, was summoned. Dr. McCabe took them home in his automobile.

City Detectives Hellyer and Tackaberry investigated. They found a tin can placed as a target upon a stump by the roadside.

Rev. Mr. Mount is absent on a visit to the East. His son is being cared for by Dr. McCabe at the Mount residence.

MRS. F. POLLARD IS CAUGHT

Suspect Surprised by Alleged Victim and Held by Police.

One of the two women who have been reported as victimizing small merchants in various parts of the city was apprehended yesterday while working. It is said, the same time at the store of T. Tojo, 484 Washington street. She gave her name as Mrs. F. Pollard, but withholds all other information.

Telling Tojo that she wished to adjust her clothing, she entered a rear room of the store. Tojo became suspicious and followed. He says he surprised her in the act of rifling a bureau drawer that contained $300 in gold and currency. She eluded his grasp and ran from the store, he also said, coins falling from her hands as she fled. Tojo and others in the vicinity chased her for a block before she was captured.

She answers to the description of the eldest of the pair, say the police, but was unaccompanied yesterday.

On her person was found a card taken from the store of S. M. Baker, 722 Washington street, where a similar trick was worked several days ago.

Close questioning by Detectives Snow and Coleman met with an obstinate refusal to answer. She declined to tell where she lived and denied the thefts. She is charged with larceny.
