OUR or five years ago the "movies" were more or less of a joke and a speculation. The "legitimate" actor held his film brother in no esteem at all and you and I balked at pictures because they "hurt our eyes." Then, presto! The change! Today "legitimates" clamor at the doors of the motion picture studios. Far more money is expended on screen than on stage production, and we pay out good money willingly that our eyes may be delighted with the marvelous results of the mind workings of the 'movie" men.

In the midst of her sobs Grace, the maid, opened the door to admit Treadwell Tuttifruit, the great actor. He advanced with blazing eyes.

"Jasmine," he shouted, "tonight you marry me or diel Quick-your answer!" She was just about to respond when in came Richard Looseleaf, the cunning wretch of the movies. His handsome face was inflamed with drink.

"Ten minutes!" he shouted. "That's all I give you to marry me or die!" Jasmine bade him wait. She was in terror. She did not know what to do. Then, as if she had not suffered enough, six directors, six photographers, 19 extra men and one press agent entered. All-all begged her to marry or go to her death.

Suddenly Jasmine pricked up her ears. Deep down and muffled came the sound of blows. She wondered what they were. The sultors were advancing no wwith knives drawn. They-Gawd—they were upon her!
