FAIRGROUNDS, Salem, Or., Sept. 16.
—(Special.) — The State Fairgrounds present a scene of much activity upon the eve of the 55th annual State Fair, which will open on Monday, September 25, and continue through the last week of the month. Preparations give encouraging promise of the greatest exposition, from an agricultural standint, in the 55 years' history of the institution. Livestock, floral, machinery and manufacturers' exhibits already have begun to be placed in readiness for the opening. All exhibits will be in place and ready for the judging on the zirst day of the fair.

Superintendent R. E. Lee Steiner, in charge of the landscape gardening at the fair this year, will put on a force of 23 men Monday morning to clean up weeds along the walks. mow the lawns and place the flower beds in the best condition for the opening a week The new well is approaching

C. A. Hembree, of Monmouth, with a herd of 25 prizewinning Jersey cattle, is the first to arrive with a livestock exhibit, he having come from the California State Fair, at Sacramento, where his animals were very successful in the competition.

Veteran Horseman Arrives. S. S. Balley, the veteran horseman of Pertland, with H. G. Smith, his trainer and driver, came in Friday with a string of six speedy harness horses from the Sacramento Fair, and they are all entered in the Oregon Fair speed programme. In this stable are: Bertie Seattle, entered in the 2:03 and 2:25 paces; Bon Guy (2:11%), entered in the 2:12 trot; O. U. C., entered in the free-for-all pace; Jim D'Ora, 3-year-old pace; Bonita Guy, 3-year-old trot, and Della H. (2:10), entered in the 2:10 pace. The latter horse is the property of Mr. Smith.

There will be more entries in both

There will be more entries in both harness and running races for this year's fair than for many years. The speed grogramme will be interspersed with boys' and girls' pony, ladies' and gentlemen's running and hurdle races and high-jumping novelties.

Mrs. Alice Weister, of Portland, who made such a pronounced success as superintendent of the art department last year, will have charge of this department again this year. She reports unprecedented interest in the coming art exhibition, and has many new and interesting features of an educational na-for both classifications, in the different divisions, by every mail. In the professional class entries have been already made by the Willamette Dahlia Company, the Columbia Dahlia Company and Gill Bros., all of Portaind; in the semi-professional class entries have been made by Mrs. F. L. Purvine, of Salem, and the Oregon State Hospital, with big dahlia exhibits in beds; the Salem Floral Society will place a large valety exhibit in the floral pavilion.

There is much enthusiasm manifest in the new Night Horse Show feature of this year's State Fair, entries in all classes and events coming in from all states along the Coast and British Columbia. This high-class attraction gives promise of being an unqualified suc-cess and of becoming a permanent feacess and of becoming a permanent feature of the Oregon fair.

The Horse Show will be held on four nights of the week, beginning with Tuesday, and the contests have been divided into interesting programmes for each evening, entertainingly interspersed with band concerts and vocal selections. The Portland Hunt Club and the department of animal husbandry of the Oregon Agricultural College are giving active support and co-operation in the Horse Show. and co-operation in the Horse Show, and are contributing much toward the success of the venture.
