GHINESE PHEASANT PROBLEM ALARMS

Importation of Male Stock and Closing of Season Two Years Urged.

SHORTAGE NOW IS MARKED

In Belief of Dick Carlon, State Should Take Immediate Action. Dr. Sternberg Finds Tuberculosis Among Fowl.

BY ROSCOE FAWCETT.

Importation of new male stock from China, and the closing of the Chinese pheasant open season for two years, will solve the Shanghai shortage problem just now bothering the sportsmen of Oregon, in the opinion of Dick Car-lon, one of the best-known hunters of

"I believe that the State Game and Fish Commission should adopt both courses,' said Mr. Carlon the other day upon his return from a hunting trip in the Independence and Corvailis section. "The birds are becoming more scarce every Fall, and the lid should be clamped on for a counte of years. I be clamped on for a couple of years. I believe that the majority of sportsmen would welcome this procedure. "Pheasants, too, are becoming smaller each succeeding year, due undoubtedly to the crossing of strains. The state should ship in about 2500 new cocks from China. The state has about 1500 new birds at the game farm, ready for release, I am told, but even with these there will be a shortage of birds next year. I am glad the Commission took prompt action in closing the pheasant season this Fall on October 15, for that will help a little." Mr. Carlon and Russell Smith found birds quite pientiful on the John Williamson ranch east of Corvallis. This was due, in some measure, to a decision by Benton County sportsmen not to hunt pheasants this year at all. On the Joe Smith ranch northwest of Corvallis birds were scarce.

the Joe Smith ranch northwest of Corvallis birds were scarce.

Closer to Portland pheasants were extremely hard to find, report the vast majority of hunters. A number of parties returned after a fiard day's work without a bird in the basket.

Dr. J. D. Sternberg and Dr. J. H. Montgomery hunted near Albany and found birds almost as rare as radium.

"The law prohibiting the shooting of more than one hen to four cocks is all wrong," said Dr. Sternberg upon his return. "Nearly every party that goes out in the fields kills two or three hens by mistake, but the boys keep pegging away at the birds until they get the stipulated four cocks. The extra hens are either thrown away or else given to some friendly farmer or concealed in the automobile.

"If the law said merely five birds, the hunters would stop at five birds and there would be fewer killed. Although nobody likes to admit killing more hens than the law allows, I believe every sportsman will agree with me, deep down in his heart. It is extremely difficult to tell the males from in the automobile. the hens, particularly when young, and as one has to decide almost instan-taneously, it is not surprising that many mistakes are made."

STANFORD UNIVERSITY, Palo Alta, Cal., Oct. 7 .- (Special.)-Freshmen will be barred from all varsity competition, even though the contests are with institutions other than the University of California, according to a decision reached by the executive committee at its regular meeting last week. This decision created quite a furore, and is meeting with considerable unfavorable comment.

The rule against freshman participa. The rule against freshman participa-ion was originally formulated with the idea of appeasing the University of California and re-entering athletic re-lations with them. For the sake of competition between the two schools Stanford conceded that first-year men were not to be used in contests for su-premacy. Separate events for the were not to be used in contests for su-premacy. Separate events for the freshles were instituted.

Certain members of the executive committee conceived that on the grounds of consistency, freshmen should be barred from any and all competi-ation on representative Stanford teams, in open meets or dual events with athletic clubs.

The rule as it now stands is similar to actions taken by the universities and colleges through the East and Middle West. It is contended that the rule, being accepted and upheld by these must be worthy of adoption here. But the bane of the paid athlete has not been inflicted on the West as it has on other communities.

The one-year probation law is necessary there to keep out of college the husky lumberjack who is a "wiz" on the football field, yet who cannot hope to get by in scholarship. Bowling Notes

THE bowling game in Portland was running full blast the past week, and six leagues rolled on the Oregon alleys and a like number appeared on the Portland maple. The Oregon alleys have lined up two more circuits,

The City League during the 1916-17 season will play on both alleys, and eight teams make up the organization. Four teams at each place will spill the pins every Thursday night.

Last week the Brotherhood of America and the Estes Grill quintet were unable to get together, so Manager Blaney will find time for them on the Oregon alleys within the next two or three days.

Following are the standings of the teams on the Oregon wood: Standing of teams on Oregon alleys: Clothing League—
