GENERAL JACKSON, IN MANY WARS, DIES

General James Jackson, veteran of many wars and honored adviser of the Oregon National Guard, died at his home, 280 North Thirty-second street, last night, aged 82 years.

INDIAN UPRISINGS QUELLED

The general was the victim of a mauling that affected his internal organs, and last summer underwent an operation. He never fully recovered from the operation, although until a few weeks ago he was active as usual, making daily trips to his office and to the homes of his numerous friends.

LIFE IS SPENT IN ARMY

For more than a quarter of a century General Jackson had been Inspector-General of the Oregon National Guard. He was retired, on reaching the age limit, with the rank of Colonel, but early this year Congress, in recognition of his valuable services to his country, advanced him, on the retired list, to the rank of Brigadier-General.

GENERAL JACKSON, IN MANY WARS, DIES

General Jackson was a veteran of the Civil War and for special gallantry in action at the battle of Weldon Railroad and North Anna was breveted a Captain and Major, and for gallant service in the Modoc and Nez Perce wars was made Lieutenant-Colonel by brevet, while Congress awarded him a medal of honor for "most distinguished gallantry in action against hostile Indians."

LIFE IS SPENT IN ARMY

General Jackson was all his life a soldier. As a young man he enlisted in the Northern Army and fought valiantly through the Civil War that the Union might live. When the war was over he remained with the regular army and saw much active service in the Indian warfare on the plains.

FATHER WAS PREACHER

His father and his maternal grandfather were ministers of the Baptist Church. The former, the Rev. Timothy Jackson, served various congregations in New Jersey and Ohio. The elder Jackson's mother was a daughter of Benjamin Loxley, who was keeper of the King's stores in Philadelphia at the outbreak of the Revolutionary War, but who resigned to join the colonial forces where he held a commission as Major.

GENERAL JACKSON, IN MANY WARS, DIES

After completing a high school education, General Jackson studied architecture for five years, and began the practice of that profession at Charles City, Ia., in 1855.

GENERAL JACKSON, IN MANY WARS, DIES

The outbreak of the Civil War aroused his patriotic nature, and he was one of the first in his state to enlist. He joined the Twelfth United States Infantry. His first duty was as a recruiting officer. In August, 1862, he
