University Club, to raise money for its scholarship fund. Intense interest is being aroused by the British Red Cross Society's enthusiastic campaign for the "Jitney" dance to be given Monday, December 4, at Cotillon Hall for the benefit of the sufferers in the European war. It is hoped by the committee, which is headed by the faithful worker, Mrs. William MacMaster, that sufficient funds will be derived from this big dance to alleviate the sufferings of hundreds of the victims of the battlefields. Irrespective of nationality or social prestige, everybody in the city is cordially invited by the committee to attend this benefit and participate in the festivities. A small admission fee will permit of any one desiring to help, to attend the Jitney dance, and enter into the informality of the occasion. Persons who want to participate in the big frolic are privileged to appear in the most informal garb, run in from a walk, the theater, business, or any time feasible. Cotillon Hall is one of the largest dance floors in Portland and from present indications it will be filled to its utmost capacity. It has been donated by M. M. Ringler for this huge and deserving philanthropy. The committee in charge of this event is: Mrs. MacMaster, chairman;

Thanksgiving A Fairyland of Lovely Creations

In competition for the Greater Portland Window Display Silver Cup, our decorator has done himself proud with what we consider the most effective window display he has ever put in: Breathing of the Thanksgiving spirit, one glance at our fine big windows makes one think of the parties, the good dinners, the good times that go with Thanksgiving. Each window is given to the display of one color in exquisite party gowns; perhaps a delicate pink appeals to you, or yellow may be your favorite color; still others can wear a beautiful lavender, light blue or rose pink—they are all there—the prettiest colors of the season in fashion's daintiest models. Besides the fashions displayed in the windows, we have many, many other lovely frocks, as well as beautiful cloaks for party wear.

SOCIETY slowly unfurled itself toward the end of the week and entered into the current gaieties with considerable enthusiasm. The coming to Portland of the "Garden of Allah," that widely-known and beloved play, was responsible for the spurt of gaiety, as it brought in its wake many delightful dinner parties and each performance closed with jolly supper parties at the different grills. Hotel Multnomah's supper dances were very popular and many of the dance-loving contingent chose the Arcadian gardens for their supper parties, where they were enabled to enjoy the dances. Dinner parties at Hotel Portland were also included in the fore part of the programme of the week, one of the largest at the Portland being presided over by Mrs. W. Burke Channing, of New York, on Thursday night. She entertained a party of 18 at dinner, extending her hospitality to a theater party at the Hellis, her guests occupying three boxes. The F. O. Downings also entertained with a dinner and box party Thursday night and the Allen Lewis' dinner and box party was a charming event of the same night. Benefits filled the biggest part of the social activities of the week and will continue to hold the attention of society women for the next few weeks, as all the church bazaars, suppers and sales of various kinds are chronicled to take place between this and Christmas week. Foremost among these affairs is the "Jitney" dance to be given by the British Red Cross Society at Cotillon Hall Monday, December 4. The list of patronesses alone insures a huge attendance, as there are about 160 prominent women, each of whom will have an escort and possibly a group of friends, and the friends of the organization throughout Portland and vicinity and sympathizers of the war sufferers indicate a party of enormous size and great financial assistance. Yesterday was notable for the splendid support of Portland women to the sale and tea arranged for Miss Hazel Hall by Mrs. Harrison G. Platt. Prominent matrons and maids devoted themselves assiduously to this worthy function and made of it the charming and profitable affair it was. Next comes the special pre-Thanksgiving sale for the Women's Exchange, which will be an event of Tuesday, and the big dance planned by the Chi Omega at Hotel Multnomah December 1 to raise funds for their hot lunches for school children. This will be followed by the Trinity Guild annual Christmas sale and tea, which is scheduled for December 7, at Trinity parish house.
