NEW YEAR'S EVE and what memories it conjures! Also what extravagant and marvelous resolutions it records among men and women, but alas, the need for some of the resolutions is past, which brings one to the point of considering how this evening will be passed. Some of the married folk have planned say "watch parties" at their homes, others will wait to welcome the infant year and then join forces and attend the celebrations at the grills after midnight. The clubs will be somewhat depleted, as the presence of the men will be demanded at home tonight, although the friendly card games will have their full quota of devotees. Perhaps the prohibition law is responsible for the seriousness developed by many of Portland's bachelors. They are going in for all sorts of diversions nowadays, especially the better things of life. For instance, one bachelor close to 40, fond of girls and gaieties, was casting about wildly for something to please his fastidious taste, and the desire to be a pianist was the outcome. He now devotes the hours formerly given to traversing the "cocktail route," as well as the convivial evenings, to practicing scales on his piano. Still another has gone in for painting and sculpturing, several others are studying languages, with a view to trying their fortunes in foreign lands "when the war is over," and the girls are forced to keep pace with the men or lose their standards of culture and accomplishments. In the meantime social functions are feeling the loss of dance partners. With the jingle of sleighbells resounding in the air as the various conveyances, some home-made, others quite smart, conveyed merry, laughing, shouting groups of girls and boys and matrons and their husbands over the snow-covered streets, added to the already gala Christmas atmosphere. The little lads and lassies shrieked for joy, as the weather gods particularly favored them, sending the snow storm during their vacation period. Dancing was relegated to the indoor amusements, while teas, dinners and supper parties followed each merry party. Sometimes the country clubs were the mecca for the gatherings of sleighing parties, and again, the girls and boys returned to the home of one of their party for a hot supper before a cozy, crackling fire.

The real news of the week was the announcement of Miss Genevieve Butterfield's engagement. It was made known at a charming tea for which her mother, Mrs. Horace Seely, Butterfield, was hostess on Thursday. Society, especially the dancing element, was greatly disappointed at the postponement of the Wilcox dance scheduled for Thursday night, and are sending messages of sympathy to Miss Wilcox, who is suffering from a severe attack of grippe. College folk and visitors in town shared in the blaze of gaieties that made the week bubbling. The event that stands out foremost among the week's festivities is the Oregon Alumni dance of Thursday night at Multnomah Hotel. It was a brilliant affair, and was attended by hundreds of sorority and college men and women. Tuesday night also was notable for college affairs, the Omega Nu sorority and the Kappa Delta Iotas, both of which were given in the Multnomah Hotel, the former in the ballroom and the latter in assembly hall. As the guests were practically all known to each other, there was much visiting across the balcony dividing the two ballrooms. The annual migration to warm, sunny climes has begun in earnest. Tuesday was the day chosen by the largest group of prominent Portlanders, the afternoon train bearing at least a dozen well-known persons, many of whom will participate in the big New Year's celebration at Pasadena—the Tournament of Roses and its imposing list of festivities. The football game between Oregon and Pennsylvania will attract a large following of Easterners as well as Oregonians. San Francisco has a large number of Portland folk who plan to go on for the New Year's galas at Pasadena. The Serge et Diaghileff Russian ballet will appear at the Hellig Theater on January 12 and 13 and will bring in its gay wake many parties—dinner, box, line and supper parties, for which prominent men and women will be hosts. The opening night of this famed ballet will be a replica of the first night of a grand opera season.

Society folk thronged the Butterfield residence, in Kearney street, on Thursday afternoon to learn of the engagement of the daughter of the household, Miss Genevieve Butterfield, to Edward Everett Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Wilson, of Linton. The news came as a surprise to many of the friends of the young couple, both of whom are popular in Portland society. The bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Seely Butterfield and is a very charming and lovable girl. The romance of the young folk date back to their school days, when both were students at the Portland Academy. Miss Butterfield was graduated with the class of 1910 and the following year Mr. Wilson was graduated. Later she attended Dana Hall and Mr. Wilson went to the University of Wisconsin, postponement of the Wilcox dance was showered with lovely flowers by the few friends who were aware of the happy news.

Two little maids, Mayanna Sargent and Dorothy May Corbett, greeted the guests upon their arrival, presenting each with the announcement cards, attached to dainty Spring blossoms. Miss Butterfield was charming in a quaint gown of the 1860 period, built of geranium pink taffeta and tulle, and she carried an old-fashioned bouquet of pastel-tinted Spring flowers, with a shower of the tiny blossoms. The reception Thursday, which was a scheme was developed in the dining-room, with a broad, low basket filled with fragrant blossoms, suspended over the tea table with gaily hued and streamers of pink tulle. Presiding at the exquisitely appointed table were Mrs. Harry A. Sargent, Mrs. James D. Hart, Mrs. L. D. Sanford and Mrs. Walter Holt. Ices were cut by Mrs. Orange M. Clark and Mrs. Alfred Tucker, the table being placed in the broad reception hall or living-room. Assisting in both rooms were Misses V'Ona and Lella Guthrie, Gretchen Klostermann, Louise Caswell, Eleu Smith, Dorothy Sanford, Margaret Bates and Mrs. Allen P.

Noyes. Assisting in the drawing-room were Mrs. Guy Willis, Mrs. Allen Ellsworth, Mrs. Mark W. Gill, Mrs. August Klostermann, Miss Elea Gill and Miss Geraldine Courson. Society is sympathizing with Miss Claire Wilcox, who is suffering from an attack of grippe. The invitations for the dance scheduled for Thursday night at the Waverley Country Club, issued by Mr. and Mrs. Theodor B. Wilcox and their daughter, were recalled on account of the latter's illness.

Miss Elizabeth Cadwell yesterday became the bride of Irving C. Tomlinson at a charming but simple ceremony. The impressive service was read in the drawing-room of the bride's artistic home in Portland Heights by Rev. Luther H. Dyott. The couple were unattended, and only the most immediate relatives and closest friends were asked to share in the event. The rooms were attractive with Christmas greenery and flowers, and immediately following the ceremony a reception was held for the wedding guests. Mrs. Solomon Hirsch and Mrs. Henry E. Jones presided at the prettily decked refreshment table.

Mr. and Mrs. Tomlinson left for their new home in Boston and will be at home after January 15 at 8 West Hill Place, Charles River Embankment. The bride, who is a daughter of the late Mrs. Cornelia Burkhardt, is one of the most popular and interesting young women in Portland. Mrs. Tomlinson has been active in literary and musical circles, as well as art, and is a general social favorite. Mr. Tomlinson is a prominent Boston man, a noted factor in the Church of Christ, as well as being prominent socially and in clubdom. A great many dinner parties have been planned for New Year's night, the majority to be a prelude to the fancy dress dance for which the Corbett family will be hosts at the Waverley Country Club. Mr. and Mrs. John K. Kollock will entertain about 30 friends at dinner preceding the dance; Miss Margery Hoffman also will be a dinner hostess; Miss Claire Wilcox has asked several to dine with her; Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Warrens, Miss Jean Morrison and the Denny Clarks also are among the dinner hosts tomorrow night, all of whom will entertain groups of those who will attend the dance.

played against a group of boys, and the game proved most interesting and thrilling. The young contingent of skaters are rapidly becoming proficient in the hockey art, and have many mornings of practice during the week. Skating continues to increase in popularity, society folk being faithful to this form of exercise and pleasure. Usually the little gatherings at night end at the homes of one of the party, where cozy supper parties and music close the gaieties.

One of the most artistic events anticipated by society is the dance recital to be given Friday night in the Lincoln High School auditorium by Miss Katherine Laidlaw. She will be presented by Miss Maud Ainsworth, and the affair will be a brilliant social event, as well as an artistic exhibition. Mr. and Mrs. Homer A. Nelson, formerly of Albany, entertained at their home, 175 North Twenty-fourth street, Friday night in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carroll (Frances Nelson), of Hood River, and Mr. and Mrs. Robin H. Nelson (Constance Guerrier), of Centralla, Wash., and Charles H. Guerrier, of Centralla, who have been visiting through the holidays. About 40 of the young people's friends were present for the dancing and supper, and Mr. and Mrs. August von Rosendall entertained with some dancing diversion. Many Portlanders left early in the week for California for their annual tour of the southern cities. Among those going on Tuesday were: Mr. and Mrs. Henry K. Felling, and the latter's sister, Mrs. Romeyn Pierson, Mrs. S. D. Smith and son, Russell, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Selling, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hamblett. On Wednesday Mrs. Lucius Allen and little daughter, Clementine, left for San Francisco, where they will later be joined by Mr. Lewis, and together they will motor through the southern part of the state. Each week additional parties of congenial folk will leave the city for several weeks, either to the East or South, Palm Beach to be included in the itinerary of some of the prominent folk, as well as the Bermudas. Tom Dobson is expected to arrive in Portland tonight to make a brief visit to his mother, Mrs. Amy Dobson, and brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Logan. Mr. Dobson has been meeting with tremendous successes in his concert work in New York, where he keeps hard at his vocal studies. The engagement of Miss Hazel Mumford to Frederick H. Reid, of Cobalt, Ont., is announced today, and is creating considerable interest among the many friends of the young couple. Mr. Reid was formerly a resident of this city, where he attended school. Plans for the wedding are indefinite. At 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning members of the Portland Hunt Club will gather at their grounds, Garden Home station, whence the start of the New Year's paper chase will be made. Mrs. H. R. Everding has given a handsome trophy for this event, which
