Being square-rigged sailers, there is no fear that they might slip anchors and steal away surreptitiously in the night, a towboat being required to move each to sea, where they might begin to use sail power. Incidentally, crews would be necessary in advance of such preparations, while the vessels are lacking in sea stores to a large extent.

CONSTRUCTION OF THIS ROUTE IS DECLARED ESSENTIAL.

Commercial Bodies, Granges and Other Organizations Want Legislature to Approve Link.

STATE CAPITOL, Salem, Or., Feb. 3. (Special.)—Many delegations of representative citizens of Gilliam, Wheeler, Grant and other Eastern Oregon counties have visited the Legisla-ture within the last few weeks to present the merits of the John Day Highway, which they propose as an important link in the principal Eastimportant link in the principal East-and-West highway through the state. It is contended that the route through the John Day Valley is 118 miles shorter than the alternative route through the Blue contains and that it offers easier grades and curves. Some of the counties through which it is to build already have bonded themselves to help in paying for the work and now are urging the Legislature to designate their route as the official outlet from Oregon to the East. Many commercial bodies, granges and other organizations have adopted reso-

Our Records for 1916

Show a steady increase in the number of prescriptions filled by us. We do not speak of this to point out the growth of our business, but rather to remind you who may read this that through "good times" and "hard times," profession and laity have ever and in a steadily increasing degree turned to us for this most responsible service. Not by reason of clap-trap methods of trade winning, but because of a service faithfully, skill-fully and honorably rendered. For over 50 years have we so served the people of this city; for over 35 years have Mr. Clarke and Mr. Woodward, the principals, sought to bring finer ideals, better methods into this calling, to place it on a higher plane, both in service, material, hours, wages and conditions. We do not believe—WE KNOW, that you, the public, will lend your indorsement to our efforts in the years to come as in the half century which has passed.
