MISS RUTH FRANCES MILLER, OPERA STAR ON BROADWAY

Women Attempt to Raise Mile of Pennies for Support of Vacation Association—Rummage Sale is Conducted for Charity.

BY GETTA R. WASSERMAN.
NEW YORK, Feb. 10.—(Special)—The last few days have been so bright and sunny that it is hard to realize that we are not in the midst of Spring, but yet there is that in the atmosphere that makes the wearing of magnificent furs, the sport and parcel of nearly every woman's wardrobe these days, a necessary adjunct for comfort, as well as for style. Here and there open cars, the first harbingers of the youngest season of the year, are beginning to be seen, and the Foadhouses and out-of-town resorts are being put in order for their turn in the entertainment of the metropolitan visitor, as well as the home product.

Spring, if anything, is the most attractive time of the year in New York, and that that fact is recognized is evidenced by the increase in the crowds on Fifth avenue and the adjacent streets. Straw hats, for women, are now the rule, instead of the exception, but they may be attributed to the freaks of fashion instead of to the weather.

A rummage sale is to be one of the features of the week, from a social, charitable standpoint. This is under the direct management of a number of the leading members of New York's smartest set and the proceeds are to be used to defray the salary of an additional "district nurse," which corresponds to the "visiting nurse" of Portland.

The sale is to take place in the ballroom of the Ritz-Carlton and it may be necessary to call in the police to preserve order, as was the case last year at a like affair, when the crowd of would-be buyers was greater than the number of articles to be sold and the sales force, being unequal to cope with the seething mob, had to call on the officers of the law for assistance.

A new magazine, to be known as the Chronicle, is to appear shortly and is to consist of articles for and by persons in "society." There are to be no pictures or advertisements, and the only excitement is to be kindled as to be taboos. It is to be simply, as the name implies, a chronicle of what members of the upper stratum are doing philanthropically, usefully and in all serious ways.

Mrs. Frederic Esler is to be managing editor and among those who will contribute to the magazine are: Mrs. Vincent Astor, who will write on "Practical Shopkeeping" (a subject that she understands, as she and number of other women have conducted a shop, for the benefit of charity, for some time); Mrs. Vincent Astor, on "Americanization," in which she is specializing; Mrs. W. Astor Chandler, on "The Lafayette Chateau," which she helped to make a reality; and this article will include her experiences passing through France recently, when she was there to inaugurate the museum; Mrs. Bayard var Rensselaer, on "The Ritz-Carlton House, which has been converted into an historical museum; George Gould, Jr., a very fine violinist, as well as a student of all literature pertaining to music, will contribute an article on that subject; and Mrs. Philip Lydig, Mrs. Charles Whitman, wife of the Governor of this state; Mrs. J. Borden Harriman and Frances Burke Roche will write on subjects in which they take pronounced interest and of which they have made a study.

A threatened invasion of the sacred precincts of Fifth avenue is that of the Woolworth 5 and 10-cent store, which it is planned to locate at Fortieth street and Fifth avenue, directly opposite the Public Library. The stock at the outlet is to be the same as that of the other stores, but will be changed to meet different conditions, as the conditions manifest themselves. Even the familiar "red front" will be a feature of the new edifice. Of course, residents of that district and other shoppers are up in arms, but the managers feel that they are well within their rights and have the same authority to be there that the other establishments have.

The election of officers, and above all that of president, of the New York City Federation of Clubs, created a feeling of excitement among the members of the leading candidates for office were from that section of the country. Mrs. Olive Stott Gabriel, an Oregonian, who is now a member of the New York bar and also president of the Women's Lawyer's Club, as well as one of the best-known voices of the state, and Mrs. Thomas Vivian, a Californian, who was vice-presidential candidate on two of the three tickets.

Representatives of 69 women, members of the different women's clubs of New York, voted at the election which resulted in the selection of Mrs. John Francis Yawger for the presidency of the New York City Federation of Women's Clubs. Mrs. Yawger received 277 votes. Mrs. Hastings 225 and Mrs. Gabriel 145. The other women elected to office were Mrs. Thomas J. Vivian, first vice-president; Mrs. Simon Baruch, second vice-president; Mrs. John Quincy Adams, third vice-president; Mrs. Frank E. Bradner, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Mary M. Lilly, recording secretary; Mrs. Edward Hart, treasurer, and William B. Smith, historian.

The election, or rather the weeks preceding it, were exciting for those interested, as it was the first time there have been three tickets in the field and there was considerable feeling and a good deal of quiet electioneering.

Mrs. Yawger is a well-known clubwoman and has held office in numerous New York city and state organizations.

The charity ball given at the Waldorf-Astoria this week was the usual one of the red-letter events of the social season and was largely attended as it always is. This is the 50th anniversary of this function and marked the 20th time that Mrs. Algonon Sidney Sullivan has led the grand march.

Five of the ballrooms of the hotel were needed for the enormous number of guests present, who represented many walks of life, as well as the rides. The Governor of the state, his staff, the Mayor of the city and his officers, many of the prominent officers of the five boroughs, were present to lend brilliancy to the event.

A novelty entertainment to be given by the Junior committee of the American Ambulance Hospital, on St. Vincent's day at the Plaza, in aid of its relief work, will consist of sword and folk dances of old Japan, plays and pantomime. A long list of patronesses includes the names and in this case the active participation of Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Joseph Choate, Jr., Mrs. Joseph Earle Stevens, Mrs. E. Henry Harriman, Mrs. William Kissam Vanderbilt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, Mrs. Junius S. Morgan and others equally well known.

The "Passing of the Redskin," a rhythmic drama, was the feature of an entertainment given during the past week by Dr. McCall Anderson, son of Sir T. McCall Anderson, who was physician to the late King Edward VIII. Faquin, an Indian dancer, took part in the entertainment, which showed the arrival of Columbus, as seen by the Indians, thinking he must be a strange god; then the bargaining for land, the dissatisfaction of the Indians, their rebellion and final subjugation, and the eventual triumph of Columbus.

One of the most elaborate of the war-time benefits (which have been such a feature of the last two years in this city) is now being rehearsed under the direction of Miss Eliza Maxwell. It is to take place at the Century Theater on the 15th of this month, and is to consist of living pictures, posed after the angels of the old masters. Mrs. Anthony Dresser and her son will represent the angels of Murillo; Mrs. Herbert Shipman, the angel in the "Annunciation," the original of which was destroyed by the fire at the Cathedral; Miss Pauline Disston will be a Caracciolo angel; Miss May LaFollette, the angel in the "Dream of Daniel"; Miss Eleanor Sears, "The Queen's cherub," and a host of other of the most beautiful women, children and even men of society will pose in other of the pictures.

One of the "greatest singers" of the world, Mrs. Mary Antin, will appear masked and incognito, owing to her contract he may not give under his own name. Four of the big war charities will be beneficiaries.

Mrs. William J. Gaynor, wife of the late Mayor of this city (who was assassinated several years ago) has entered the professional concert field. Mrs. Gaynor gave a song recital on Friday evening at Brooklyn Academy of Music. She was assisted by Philip Bannan, baritone, and Maestro Fernando Tanara at the piano.

Miss Mary Antin was one of those heard in original readings at the authors' matinee, given for the benefit of the Mary Fisher Home for Authors, which took place in the Astor Gallery of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel on Friday. Dr. Lyman Whitney Allen presided, and introduced the speaker, who, beside Miss Antin, were Hamlin Garland, Clinton Scott, Mrs. Alice Heppner Rice, Mrs. Joseph C. Lincoln, Henry Wellington Mack and Joyce Kilmer.

Robert Connors had one of the most important roles in the Stage Society's production of the Arturo Giovannitti war time drama, "I Was in the Beginning," which was its annual play. Mr. Connors had the role of Maurice Jourard, a poet, who for years has preached the doctrine of non-resistance while his country has been invaded, but when his own home is violated he changes to a violent militarist and joins the fighting forces of the state. He returns after several months blind and with all his fine idealism changed to the coarsest materialism by the evil influences of war. John Sainpolis, another actor well known to Portland audiences, was excellent as an officer in the ranks of the enemy.

Madge Kennedy, one of the best-known actresses of the city, has been the star of "Fair and Warmer," "Twin Beds" and a number of other successes, was married on September 30, although the date of the wedding was divulged. Miss Kennedy is a native Californian. The bridegroom is Harold Bolston, of the Vitagraph Company.

The latest novelty in playlets is one in which movie methods are incorporated into the presentation of the play. This is the name of the play, which is partly explained through the use of the explanatory texts, as the proceeds from the play are to be more rapidly than in the ordinary play. In fact it fairly jumps from one episode to another. In addition, by the very clever lighting effects, different parts of the stage are used for different scenes of the play at the same time. One of these plays was the feature of the play, which is to be this past week and will probably play the Orpheum circuit.

Miss Billie Burke (Mrs. Florence Ziegfeld, Jr.) poured tea recently at Zahrah, Inc., No. 1 East Forty-ninth street, which is the name of the play. Mrs. Benjamin Guinness, Mrs. Harry H. Duryea and Miss Constance Collier operate in the cause of charity. From now on the organizers plan to have leading women of the stage act as hostesses for the Friday afternoon receptions which they intend to make a feature of their enterprise, and prominent society women will pass the tea.

Nick Zan't kept so busy making records for one of the principal photographic concerns here that his beautiful voice is all too rarely heard in actual song recitals.

Oregon has a native daughter who has just made her debut in grand opera; Miss Ruth Frances Miller, who, under the stage name of Francisco Milena, sang the role of Gilda in "Rigoletto" on Tuesday evening, February 6, with the newly organized Cosmopolitan Opera Company.

Miss Miller is a daughter of Frank J. Miller, who was formerly connected with Lang & Co., and she was born in Portland and lived there for a number of years, until they moved to Seattle, where her father is still located. The young prima donna studied abroad for five years, in both Spain and France, and she was one of the last pupils of the famous teacher, Sbriglia.

She was about to make her debut in one of the well-known opera centers of the old world in this same role of Gilda, when the outbreak of the present hostilities changed her plans, as it did those of so many other artists. Now she has her chance here, and if ambition and pluck, in addition to the gift of a beautiful voice, count, the combination should spell success.

Lord and Lady Aberdeen have returned from the Ritz-Carlton from Mexico and expect to remain here for the next two months.

Much interest has been created in the Nation's capital by the engagement of Miss Violet Erskine, one of the first women to hold a diplomatic position under the British government, and Horace Seymour, third secretary of the British Embassy, in Washington, D. C.

Miss Erskine is a great favorite with (Concluded on Page 8.)
