TUNES OF OLD ERIN HEARD

Devotions in Early Morning Are Followed by Various Recreations, Winding Up With Celebration in Hibernia Hall.

That little green sprig of shamrock was very much in evidence on the streets of Portland yesterday.

Every loyal Irishman, whether he smoked the regulation clay pipe or the latest brand of "rope," was out in his resplendent green neck scarf or bit of ribbon of the shamrock hue.

High mass, celebrated in St. Mary's Pro-Cathedral, opened the public observance of the day at 9 o'clock yesterday morning.

Practically all the Roman Catholic churches of the city will hold special services of oratory and song on the anniversary of the patron saint of Ireland.

JOE JELMAN PAROLED BY JUDGE GATENS

Prosecution Thunderstruck by Court's Announcement in View of Jury's Stand.

COREAN CLASSED BAD MAN

Deputy District Attorney Collier Declares Action of Court Is in Keeping With His Attitude Throughout the Trial.

F. W. Jobelman, agitator, found guilty by a jury of an unprovoked assault which nearly cost Hugh Park, a young Korean, his life, was sentenced to six months in the county jail and immediately paroled by Circuit Judge Gatens yesterday.

Jobelman was asked for in open court. Wilfred E. Farrell, attorney for Jobelman, made no recommendation.

"I have nothing to say," he said to the judge. "You heard the testimony and are conversant with the facts in the case."

Prosecutor John Collier had something to say. He reviewed the defense, pointed out that the fact of assault was admitted by the defense but that self-protection was alleged, and said:

"The jury in unmistakable terms said there was no self-defense. I have been informed that the jurors stood up to the end of the assault with intent to kill, and compromised on assault with a deadly weapon only because one man was not convinced of the murderous intent of Jobelman. In any event, it was proved to be an unprovoked, deadly assault. If ever a man deserved punishment it was this man Jobelman."

Parole Is Surprised. "Six months in the County Jail—paroled," was the curt announcement of Judge Gatens, when Mr. Collier ceased speaking.

Jobelman and his attorney awaited the sentence with apparently little concern, loitering in the courtroom with careless air. The parole came as a distinct surprise to the few spectators who had gathered.

Judge Gatens gave no reason at the time for admitting Jobelman to parole. Later he said, "A jail sentence wouldn't do Jobelman any good—and then, the Korean is about as bad as he is."

The District Attorney's duty to the public was concluded when the jury convicted Jobelman, said Prosecutor Collier last night. "Responsibility for turning loose this man rests with the court. I may comment further that the action of the court in paroling this criminal is quite consistent with the court's attitude toward the prosecution throughout the trial."

Use of Letters Falls. The verdict of the jury, returned Friday night, was a repudiation of the story of Jobelman that he assaulted Park with a hammer to defend himself from an attack on the Korean. The Korean is much smaller than Jobelman, and the only evidence of Jobelman as to the supposed assault was a cleaver made on him was a slit coat sleeve, which he said was sliced by a cleaver.

Jobelman contended that the fight began because he had tried to prevent the Korean from using some letters written by Mrs. Mabel C. Flanders for the management of the factory, according to the satisfaction of the jury.

Mrs. Flanders is suffering from a breakdown as the result of a day in court and the strain of the trial in which her letters were a promised sensation—a sensation, however, which failed.

APRON DAY IS SET

Output of Junior League Factory to Be Sold March 26.

Affair Is Annual Event. Philanthropic Work Carried On by Young Matrons and Girls Provides Profitable Employment for Many Needy Women.

The Winter's output of aprons made at the Junior League factory will be put on the market next Monday, March 26, and will be offered to the public at popular prices through sales agencies established in the principal stores of the city.

More than 500 dozens of aprons have been made at the Junior League factory, which is located on the top floor of the Worcester street building.

The factory since its organization about three years ago has operated from three to four months each Winter. While the sewing-room has turned out various articles of wearing apparel and served individuals and the county institutions, last year and this year, much of the time has been devoted to making aprons.

Several thousand dollars have been disbursed in wages to women, who in all cases have been not only deserving and needy, but who have families of from one to nine to support. In many cases they are women who have been deserted by their husbands or otherwise victims of unfortunate circumstances.

It is to provide a ready sale, create interest in the products offered and to bring a quick return on the investment represented in the making of the aprons that the apron day of the Junior League has become an annual institution. Last year it was decidedly successful and had the added advantage of interesting the young women of Portland in a form of social service work which has been proved fruitful in good results.

Men's Trade Desisted. This year it is proposed to make apron day an appealing one to men, as well as women.

The Junior League girls, who number between 60 and 100, have volunteered their services in various ways, and a number of them will be called into service Monday, March 26, to play the role of sales girls.

Places in the booths in the various department stores and work during the day, selling aprons.

Other girls of the league have started a campaign to interest the various business men's clubs in the apron day idea, with the hope of getting the men to visit the stores in large bodies, each buying an apron to take home for some member of their family.

Salesgirls Are Chosen. Mrs. Henry Ladd Corbett has charge of the apron day programme, and an incomplete list of salesgirls has been announced, as follows: Mrs. Louis Mills, Miss Jean Mackenzie, Miss Ailsa MacMaster, Miss Sara McGully, Miss Rhoda Rummley, Miss Alice Smith, Miss Antoinette Mears and Mrs. Henry Litt.

There will be other girls assigned to the sales booths, the list to be completed early this week.

Miss Isabella Gauld is president of the Junior League and Mrs. A. D. Norris and Miss Josephine Cook are vice-presidents. Mrs. John Bossard is secretary and Miss Helen Ladd is treasurer. Miss Rose Goodman devotes her time to the management of the factory, and with one or two of the officers or girls conducts the investigations and assigns a sewing-room, where deserving and needy women have been provided with work, where philanthropic endeavor has been shown of its eleemosynary character and where the young matrons and girls of the various walks of Portland society have found opportunity for practical social service.

ROSEBURG, Or., March 17.—(Special.)—There are a total of 1502 children of school age in the Roseburg school district, according to the report filed with County School Superintendent O. C. Brown recently.
