PLUMBERS PLANTO PASS LICENSE LAW

Stringent Ordinance Governing Business to Be Proposed by Daly.

WORK'S SUPERVISION AIM

Contemplated Measure Would Re quire All Plumbers to Pass an Examination and Prescribe Character of Work

Registration and licensing of all persons engaged in the plumbing business as employing plumbers and registration as employing plumbers and registration of all journeymen is proposed in an ordinance to be submitted to the City Council Wednesday by City Commissioner Daly. The measure is said to be backed by the Master Plumbers' Association and the labor organizations. "Hereafter it shall be unlawful," the ordinance says, "for any person to work at the trade or calling of plumbing in the city of Portland as a journeyman plumber without first passing an examination before the examining board.

PUT ON FEW DROPS AND LIFT OUT CORN

Try This Yourself, Then Pass It Along to Others—It Works!

Good things should be passed along. It is now said that a few drops of a drug called freezone applied directly upon a tender, aching corn relieves the soreness and soon the entire corn, root and all, can be lifted out without pain. For little cost a quarter of an ounce of freezone can be obtained from any drug store, which is claimed to be sufficient to remove every, hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

This is a drug recently announced from Cincinnati. It is gummy but dries the moment it is applied, and simply shrivels up the corn without inflaming or even irritating the healthy listing or seven irritations.

WAR LETTER COMES

Signal Sergeant in Canadian Con tingent Contrasts Conditions of Modern Warfare and Those Existing During Civil War.

Interesting sidelights on warfare as it is being waged in the trenches of Europe are contained in a letter written to Captain James Nevins by Fred J. C. Ball, a signal sergeant with the Seventy-second Canadian Battalion "somewhere in France."

Some extracts of his letter follow:

"I guess times have changed considerably since you manned the guess."

siderably since you manned the guns about Gettysburg time and a modern war is surely something more than Sherman called it. How would you like to take part in a show where everyone lives under ground except the airmen?

"Just raise your head in daylight to peep over the top sandhag and you peep over the top sandbag and you get a neat hole drilled through it. You should hear our artillery open up on Fritzie across the way! No one can have any idea of the fearful crash until he has heard it. Hundreds of guns throw shells, some of them weighing more than your whole gun used to. Strain Declared Terrible.

Strain Declared Terrible.

"The air is full of screaming and ripping shells. It is certainly a worse hell than Dante ever dreamed of. The holes the shells make are unbelievable until one actually sees them. To be near one when it explodes and to live to tell about it is quite an experience.

"The guns, of course, would interest you the most, you being an artilleryman, but we know very little about them. We occasionally see them when we are out of the line for rest periods. Huge monsters they are, pointing skyward and ever ready to spit out their awful destruction.

ward and ever ready to spit out their awful destruction.

"God alone knows how human frames stand the strain of this awful war. A pretty sight in a very ugly setting is the aeroplane at work. We have a spiendid mastery of the air, and when Fritzie plucks up courage to make a flight our planes swoop down on him like a hawk.

The efficiency committee of the organization reported that many employers had been approached and a number of positions found available.

A number of activities lying open to men of this age were suggested at the meeting, one member asserting that the work of guarding the interstate bridges and other property should be left in their hands.

This claim was repudiated by other members, who signified their readiness to go to the front in case of a call, rather than stand guard in the rear.

THREE STAGES

ENGINE DEVELOPMENT IN MOTOR CARS

IN the first stage, higher power was obtained by building larger cylinders. In the second stage, greater flexibility was secured by adding cylinders. Both these methods have their drawbacks in a reciprocating engine. In the third stage, upon which gas engine design is now entering, a higher range of inherent capability has been developed-more performance with less machinery.

The White Sixteen-Valve Four

accomplishes this result by going straight to the source of power and flexibility-valve capacity sufficient to allow high piston speed and maintain full power over the entire range of driving speeds.

In any gasoline motor, power depends upon the ratio of valve area to piston displacement. This can be established either by reducing the size of each cylinder to meet its valve area, thus increasing the number of cylinders, or by increasing valve capacity in each cylinder to meet its piston displacement.

The latter is the new, much simpler, less cumbersome method and combines utmost performance with the obvious advantages of a 4-cylinder engine.
