

BRUCE PERCE PLAN IS GIVEN TO PUBLIC

Enforcement League Antedates American Project and Is Quite Similar.

EFFECT IS FAR-REACHING

Difference Between Schemes Is That English Idea Is to Provide Means of Making Recalcitrant Nations Behave.

LONDON, April 20.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—The British plan for a league to enforce peace, drawn up by a committee headed by Viscount Bryce, ex-American Ambassador, has just been made public here, although it was prepared two years ago, thus antedating the plan of the American league. It goes further than the American plan in providing means to enforce decisions upon aggressive and recalcitrant nations.

War Brings Out Facts. "The nature of the machinery required is indicated by the facts which this war has brought out in strong relief. These are:

First—The increased risks to peace that arise from the increased speed with which communications between governments mediating war are exchanged, and with which momentous decisions are taken.

Second—The difficulty neutral nations find in ascertaining the merits of a dispute which is referred to a judicial tribunal.

Third—The great need on which war is waged, compelling governments, in order to secure their safety from sudden onslaughts, to maintain naval and military armaments incomparably larger than ever before, and thus laying intolerable burdens on the people.

Machinery Big Necessity. "First—The prescribing of a certain period of time within which steps could be taken to settle a dispute amicably before a resort to arms is necessary.

Second—Means for ascertaining the facts and clearing up the issues in dispute so as to facilitate the forming of an impartial opinion upon the merits.

Plan Is Outlined. The plan as outlined by Lord Bryce's committee is as follows:

The draft treaty is not a project for international government. It is the project of a treaty between sovereign states and is intended to suggest, not a remote ideal, but something that may be immediately practicable when the war is over. It proposes not to make war impossible, but to make it less probable, by the creation of new international machinery whereby when it is hoped, will be the general will to peace may find effective expression.

Peaceable Settlement Aim. "The positive action by the members of the union would be a treaty obligation only in the case where a state had resorted to force before submitting the dispute to peaceable settlement. For the purposes of such action it is not proposed to abolish national armaments and substitute a force under international control. The forces employed should be the national forces of the POLENIZATION SUBJECT AT SALEM CONFERENCE. Commercial Orchards Are Being Set Out and Worthless Trees Are Being Eliminated in Oregon.

SALEM, Or., May 5.—(Special.)—The Western Walnut Growers, at a meeting held here today, discussed pollenization and grafting. Statements were made at the meeting that there has not only been much planting of walnut trees in the Willamette Valley of late, including the starting of a number of commercial orchards, but that there is a general tendency among walnut men to eliminate worthless trees, thus modernizing the orchards.

President J. C. Cooper, of McMinnville, who has made observations for a number of years, stated that this year the growth is three weeks and three days late, and he recommended that all grafting and top working be done between the present time and May 15. A recommendation was made by a number of members that the next meeting be held at the hotel at Salem, to improve the product. Judge Charles L. McNary gave an encouraging and interesting report on the local walnut situation.

The association includes growers from Oregon and Washington and about 40 were present. The next meeting, it was decided, is to be held at Dundee on August 4, when the subject "Cultivation and Fillers" will be taken up.
