IT IS altogether likely that American faces under steel helmets will be seen in the front line trenches of France by the Fall.

Mrs. Leonard Wood, wife of General Wood, recently was presented with a beautiful watch by her co-workers in the Red Cross. The watch, on which is engraved the Red Cross insignia, is a token of love and friendship. Mrs. Wood has been one of the most earnest workers in the Red Cross of the New York division, and to her is due much of the credit for the success of the unit.

Mrs. Wood leaves with the General, who has been transferred to the Department of the Southeast, and the occasion was a farewell from the ladies of the unit.

Three units of the First Armored Motor Battery of the New York National Guard took part in maneuvers off Fort Washington Park, New York City. The batteries in fighting formation hack away at the enemy with their rifles. This formation is the way they would take part in an actual battle. Some of the men approach on motorcycles and then take their places in the armored cars.

Women drove the First Armored Motor Battery, New York National Guard, through the streets of New York City, to show that they were capable of handling it. The women learned all about automobiles and their engines in the West Side Y. M. C. A. Auto School and they handled the battery like veterans. Even the men were envious of their dexterity.

They are willing to drive it for the Government if they are needed, or they would lend their skill and knowledge to any understudy in the service that would benefit the country.

Lowering a 21-inch torpedo on the United States Steamship Pennsylvania in the hold after it had been recovered is an interesting sight. The torpedo is several times the length of a man and contains a tremendous amount of dynamic energy.

When the battleship Wyoming puts to sea and drives at full speed she carries a tremendous bone in her teeth that masks the hull of the dreadnought. She is one of the best types of the Nation's fighting ships.

Hungarian soldiers in Budapest seem happy and carefree, despite the serious war in which they are participating, and the comic-opera appearance of their uniforms. It was reported recently there was a revolt of troops in Budapest, but this was not confirmed.

Five thousand school children of New York of all nationalities by descent or birth appeared in City Hall Park and sang the National Anthem and saluted the flag. This is part of a general movement to Americanize the foreign-born population of New York. Mayor Mitchell reviewed the children.

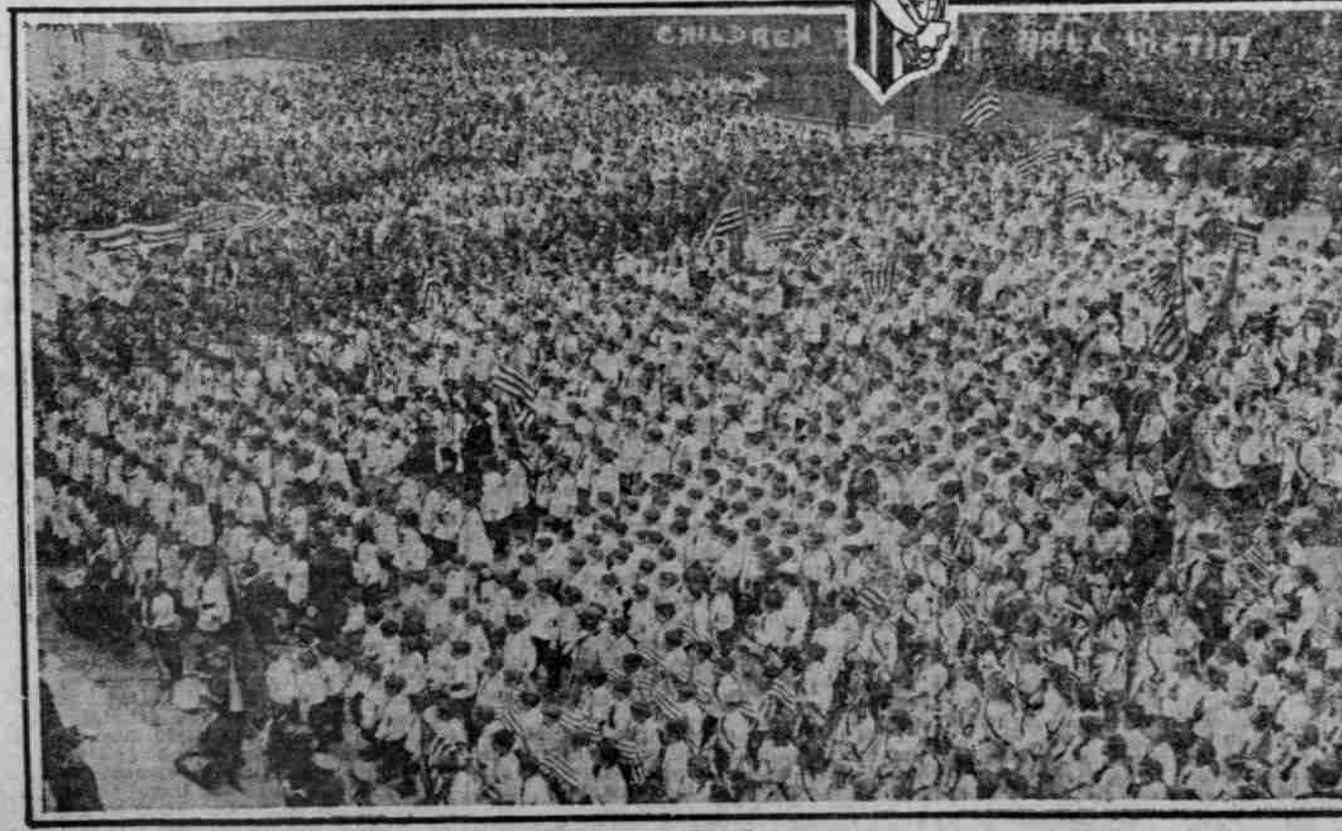

There is a beautiful cathedral at Laon which may be evacuated by the Germans soon. They will probably leave little of the cathedral.

Legal Sidelights.

assume, the immeasurable distance which the common law had placed between rights of ownership of real estate and of personal property. He never dreamed that out of the dead past the ghostly hand of the "unknown claimant," the "party entitled to notice," "the person under disability," "the unknown defendant," and other well-known specks clad in the dignity of judicial decisions of many generations, is held able to stretch out and fasten upon real property as distinguished from personality.

"Nor, we may add, did he foresee the narrow path the system would have to tread through the many and various limitations of the American constitutions, before it could establish itself in the states of the American Union.

Yet such has been the case; and while its constitutionality has been vindicated in a number of states, as against assault made upon various grounds, undoubtedly it yet has further tests to undergo in such regard.

Liquid Wax Superior to Furniture Polish.

Gallon of This Will Last Six Months in Ordinary Household. It Is Said.

BETTER than any furniture polish for use on polished surfaces whether floors, or desks and tables is the prepared, liquid wax which may be purchased by the quart or gallon—the latter costing about $1.50. A gallon of this wax will last six months in an ordinary household and there is no odor after its use, as there is in the case of most furniture polishes. The wax cannot possibly hurt mahogany or any other wood and it brings a soft, mellow luster in no time at all—quite unlike the glassy gleam given by some of the prepared polishes on the market.

Wax and rubbing—that was the recipe of old-time housewives, and it is surprising how much better a room looks after two hours have been spent waxing and rubbing furniture and floors. Use two old flannel cloths, the first moistened with the liquid wax. Then rub briskly with the dry flannel. The more you rub the softer and richer will be the luster.

Never apply a cloth dampened with water to a waxed surface. Keep free from dust and rub frequently with a clean flannel cloth. Once in so often apply the liquid wax. In the polishing of floors a weighted cloth is a great assistance and there is no better implement than a brick covered with an old piece of carpet. Highly varnished "mahogany" furniture may be made to look like real mahogany by rubbing lightly with linseed oil and powdered pumice. Afterward rub with liquid wax and flannel cloths.

College Education Is Asset.

In regard to the general business criticism of the value of college men a writer in the March American Magazine says:

"When you come to analyze a college it is hard to discover anything in it that should help a man in modern business. What has 'Cyrus' marched forty parasangs to do with the price of cotton in 1917? How should a knowledge of the philosophy of Plato help a man to get his salary raised? I cannot answer these questions, but this I know: My first boss took into his organization an office boy named Art Morgan. Art was a loveable chap; the boss had a real fondness for him, and pushed him ahead as fast as he possibly could. He confided to me one day that he had hoped to make Art general manager. But he got Art up to $10 a week and, try as he would, he could not push Art a single notch further. The boss told me about it one night at dinner.

"It's taught me a lesson," he said; "I am never going to take another young man into my organization unless he has a college education or its equivalent."

The world is slow to recognize a genius because it has been gold bricked so often in that line.
