WIDOW ACCUSES WILT

MRS. MINNA CLAUSEN, AGED 71, SAYS SHE HAS BEEN DECEASED.

Brought in Circuit Court to Set Aside Warranty Deed Conveying Her Property.

Charges that Frank Wilt took advantage of her advanced age and infirm condition in order that he might secure her property, valued at $25,000, are contained in a Circuit Court action started yesterday by Mrs. Minna Clausen, a widow, aged 71 years. The plaintiff asks that deeds heretofore made by her conveying her property to Wilt be declared void and set aside. The bill of complaint unfolds a story of an aged woman's implicit faith in a young man who contrived to gain her complete confidence in managing her business affairs. She avers that on March 12, last, she signed a conveyance of 50 acres of land near Lents to a young man who contrived to gain her complete confidence in managing her business affairs. FAMINE PLOT CHARGED

HAWAIIAN CATTLE INOCULATED, THINKS OFFICIAL.

Theory is Held That Attempt is Made to Destroy Stock to Reduce the Food Supply.

HONOLULU, T. H., June 2.—Federal authorities here were investigating today the theory of Dr. Victor Norgaard that an inoculation plot with a deliberate intent to destroy the cattle industry of Hawaii and thus reduce the food supply was the cause for the recent outbreak of anthrax, which resulted in the death of 26 cows in two days. Dr. Norgaard, territorial veterinarian, presented his theory in a report to the agricultural forestry board. Dr. Donald Currie, head of the leprosy investigation board and a noted anthrax expert, said he had no other theory to supplement Dr. Norgaard's statement, and asserted the outbreak of the disease was undoubtedly the result of a deliberate plot. Information has been given the territorial federal authorities to the effect that suspicious characters were seen in the vicinity of the dairy in which the outbreak occurred two days before the inoculation period. Anthrax is infectious and resembles the "hoof and mouth" disease, a wave of which swept the United States last Summer.
