

Mrs. Max Houser and Sons, All of Whom Have Just Returned From A Winter in California.

Mrs. Mary Harris, Maid of Honor.

Mrs. Joseph Scott McLean (Julia Platt), An Adorable Little June Bride.

So as to leave every man and woman free to undertake the strenuous and arduous task of making the actual "big drive" for the week from June 18 to 25, all other social functions planned as Red Cross benefits have been postponed until the close of the drive. This short respite from the continuous whirl of festivities for the Red Cross will be joyously welcomed and will afford the hostesses and guests time to plan a little bit for the summer festivities. Of course, all the gaieties from now on will partake of the Red Cross atmosphere, and when the girls and boys who are returning from out-of-town schools and colleges arrive, they will add their forces to the benefits, and the summer season promises to be gala.

Soon the cottages will be opened for the summer. The hotels and other abodes are taking on the summer holiday attire and are being made ready to receive the hordes of pleasure and rest seekers. The closing of school next week shortly will be followed by the annual migration to the seashore or mountains, so that the younger contingent, as well as the adults, may relax after an arduous winter.

Red Cross benefits have kept society men and women so busy during the past week that they will be more than delighted to accept the respite of the approaching week and prepare for the annual golf tournament, with its imposing list of attendant festivities, which will begin on June 25 and close on June 30. This means that a vast number of men and women will come from the Northwest to participate either in the tournament or the gallery of spectators and the many diversions for which golf tournaments are noted.

The week just closed has been replete with many delightful and interesting Red Cross benefits, especially that given at Rockholm, for which Dr. and Mrs. A. E. Hockey were hosts, on Wednesday; the concert given by Mrs. Henry Metzger at the Multnomah Hotel on Saturday and the large and brilliant reception for which Mrs. Solomon Hirsch and the Misses Hirsch were hostesses on Friday. Tuesday practically opened the week's gaieties with the bridge and sea for which Mrs. Warren E. McCord was hostess, assisted by her daughter, Mrs. Gustav von Eslofstein, Mrs. W. D. Wheelwright and Mrs. William C. Alvord. The affair was one of the smartest and most delightful of all the week's functions.

Next came the numerous affairs with Miss Mary Kern, a June bride-elect, as honoree, many bridge teas, luncheon dinners and dances being given in her honor.

The Eubanks-Loren wedding will be an event of tomorrow at the home of the bride-elect, and now plans are being made for the Royal Rosarian ball, which will be a stellar event of the numerous affairs chronicled for the Rose Festival week.

Few social events of last week were as well attended as the big and elaborate reception given by Mrs. Solomon Hirsch and her daughters, the Misses Hirsch, at their beautiful home Friday afternoon for the benefit of the American Red Cross. Many prominent women assisted the hostesses between the hours of 4 and 6 o'clock.

Quantities of fragrant flowers were used in the decorations, practically all of them being taken from the spacious gardens surrounding the Hirsch mansion. Among those who presided at the tea tables at different times were Mrs. J. Wesley Ladd, Mrs. David T. Honeyman, Mrs. Theodore B. Wilcox, Mrs. John G. Edwards, Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett, Mrs. Marcus Fleischner, Mrs. I. N. Fleischner, Mrs. Joseph N. Teal, Mrs. Lucien Allen Lewis and Mrs. W. B. Ayer.

Successful in every detail, the big and artistic concert given last night by Mrs. Henry W. Metzger in the Multnomah Hotel netted a large sum for the American Red Cross. Because of the fact that Mrs. Metzger, who created a furore on her recent presentations in New York City, was making her first public appearance since returning to Portland from the East, society turned out en masse to assist in swelling the American Red Cross fund.

The programme rendered last night by one of Portland's wonderful songbirds was the same as the one given in New York at the time many prominent persons in musical circles of the coun-cox, Mrs. E. R. Coman, Mrs. Andrew W. Porter, Mrs. L. N. Fleischner and Miss Evelina Magruder, of the Girls' Honor Guard.

One of the most attractive and delightful of the numerous Red Cross benefits during the week was that given at the residence of Mrs. Warren E. McCord on Tuesday. Twenty-four tables were arranged in the prettily decked drawing-rooms for bridge, and at tea time a throng of women joined the party. Garden flowers in every variety and hue were effectively arranged about the rooms, and the hostess was assisted by Mrs. Wheelwright, Mrs. William C. Alvord and Mrs. Gustav von Eslofstein.

During the tea hour legs were served on the veranda by Mrs. Frank E. Hart and Mrs. E. R. Wheeler. As Mrs. McCord donated all the refreshments, the tables, flowers, etc., all the proceeds were clear and the sum ran way into the hundreds. Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. Helen Ladd Corbett, Mrs. William MacRae, Mrs. Zera Snow and Mrs. A. A. Morrison. Assisting about the rooms were: Mrs. Sherman O'Gorman, Mrs. J. R. Wallace, Mrs. Harry Rieberg, Mrs. Natt McDougall, Mrs. Theo. Barnes, of Prineville; Mrs. Hazel B. Litt, the Misses Helen Ladd, Martha Hoyt, Antoinette Nears, Ruth Teal, Evalina Magruder, Sara McCully, Loretta Hardy, Isabella Macleay, Marian Smith, Jean Morrison, Sally Hart and Virginia McDonough.

The hostesses for the card tables included: Mesdames W. W. Cotton, William MacRae, R. Lee Barnes, J. F. Dickson, Coe McKenna, J. D. Honeyman, C. L. Whitney, Sherman O'Gorman, J. A. Dougherty, Warren Kepler, John Napier, M. E. McCord, Henry Jones, J. R. Van Schuyver, Henry McCracken, W. R. Dickson, C. E. Greile, G. M. Magruder, Oscar Menefee, Everett Ames, Wheelwright and Miss Marshall and Miss Ella Hirsch.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Barnes, Virginia McDonough and Sally Hart returned to the Barnes ranch at Prineville Thursday.
