

BATTERY B ALREADY HAS 50 RECRUITS

Non-Commissioned Officers to Be Taken From Battery A When Unit Is Admitted.

NEW MEN ARE HIGH CLASS

First Lieutenant Charles L. Johnson Is in Charge of Obtaining Volunteers for New Field Artillery Organization.

Battery B, the new field artillery unit being recruited in the Oregon National Guard, affords a fine opportunity to patriotic young men to volunteer for war service and thus escape the draft.

Of course, there is no disguise attaching to being drafted. Just the same, a good many men do not entirely like the idea of going to war as conscripts. They have a rattling good opportunity to get on with a first-class outfit and see some real war service shortly by enlisting in Battery B.

Active recruiting for the new battery, the organization of which by Adjutant-General George A. White was authorized by the War Department only last week, has been in progress only since Monday. Already, however, 50 men have signed enlistment papers.

Lieutenant Johnson in Charge. First Lieutenant Charles L. Johnson, of Battery A, who is in personal charge of the recruiting for the new battery, is especially pleased with the type of young men who have applied for enlistment so far.

A large number of them are out-of-town boys, some of whom have telephoned beforehand to National Guard recruiting headquarters, 104 Fifth street, to make sure there was room for them in the new battery.

To all these inquiries, Lieutenant Johnson has replied that he is glad to meet men from outside of Portland, especially husky farmer lads who make splendid artillerymen. Men with knowledge of horses are in particular demand.

Among those enlisting in Battery B yesterday was a man from Baker, Or., and another from Sheridan. In fact, the out-of-town boys are responding almost as fast as are those from Portland itself.

Full War Strength Is 150. The full war strength of a battery of field artillery under the present regulations is 150 men. Minimum strength necessary to be attached before the battery can be taken into the Federal service is 125 men.

As soon as that number are enlisted, and the battery obtains official recognition, Lieutenant Johnson says it is planned to transfer a number of old battery men from Battery A to the new unit.

All the commissioned officers and non-commissioned officers of Battery B will be taken from Battery A or from former service men who apply for enlistment. Several such have applied and been enlisted already. In fact, the new organization already gives promise of being a crack unit in no time at all.

Unit to Go to France.

As soon as a few more men are enlisted active drilling will begin. The battery will have the services of Sergeant Pietrick, of the Sixth United States Field Artillery, a veteran of the regular Army, who is artillery sergeant-instructor of the Oregon National Guard.

Battery B is assured of active service in France within a comparatively brief period. Artillery is one of the big needs of the United States expeditionary force at present, and many units of artillery will be hurried to France within the near future. The men of the new Battery B hope and expect to be on their way across within a few months.

"Be a volunteer" is the slogan of the new battery. Any man between the ages of 18 and 40 years, who can pass the physical examination and feels he would like to join a volunteer organization before the draft becomes effective, will do well to drop in at 104 Fifth street, between Stark and Washington streets, and talk the question over with Lieutenant Johnson.

SHERIDAN DENTIST MOTORS 2825 MILES TO MICHIGAN.

More Than Half Century Ago Parents Cross Plains in Prairie Schooner to Settle in Oregon.

BY F. E. JOHNSON.

Sparta, Mich., July 7.—(Special.)—When Dr. E. M. Graves, of Sheridan, Or., stopped his roadster in front of the Chapman farm, near this village, and greeted his sixty-year-old father, Eugene Chapman, he completed a trip of 2825 miles in two weeks that it took their parents six months to make in 1847.

Dr. Graves is a dentist in the Oregon town and a graduate of the dental department of the University of Michigan. His class holds a reunion at Ann Arbor, Mich., this month.

Back in 1847, his parents, in Missouri, started out in a prairie schooner to find a home in the great West. After six months of journeying and hardship they settled at Sheridan. When the doctor hit the trail East he followed a part of the route his parents covered more than a half century ago. He averaged more than 200 miles a day for the entire trip, encountering all sorts of roads and sleeping wherever night overtook him.

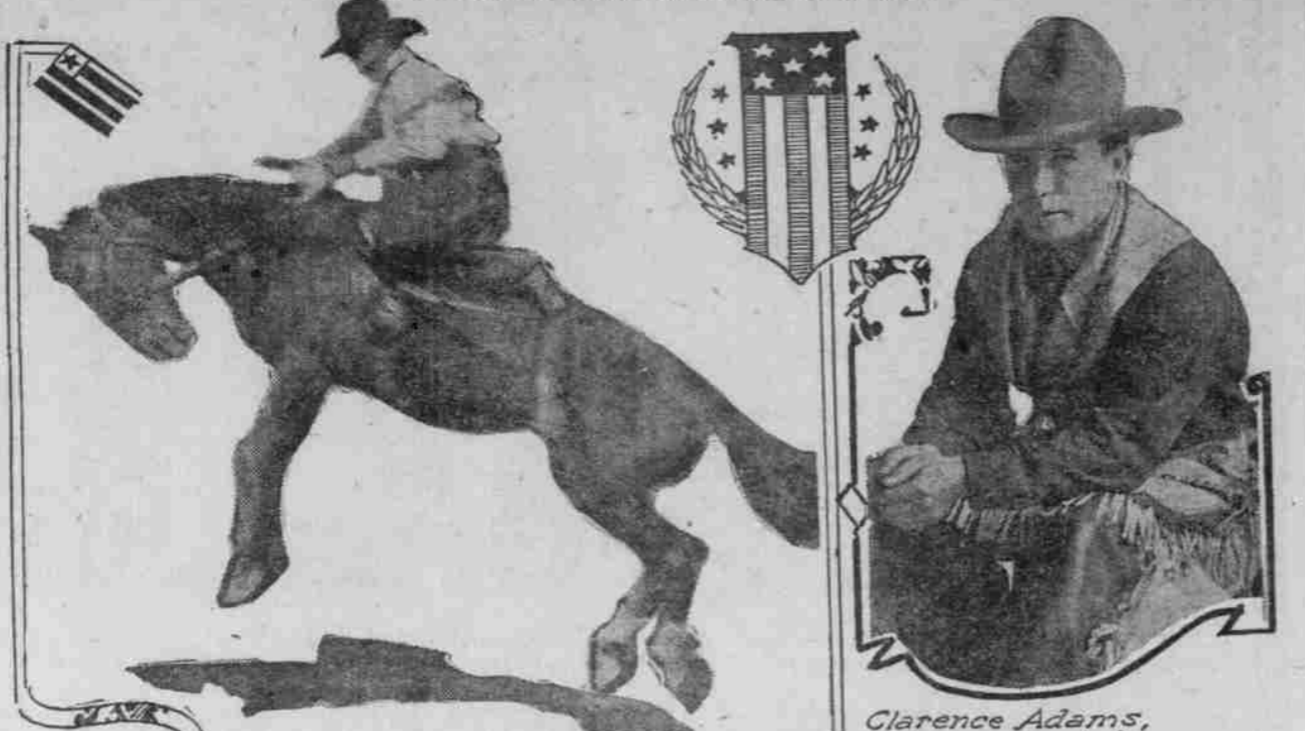

This sounds like an adventure of a youngster. And so it is. But this "boy" has white hair and whiskers and is 62 years "young." He comes from a family of 11, all of whom are living, excepting a sister, who was killed in an accident last year.

LAD GOES UP IN NAVY

Marcus W. Holling Now Is Chief Petty Officer.

FATHER IS MECHANIC, TOO

Son of Man Employed in Linotype Department of the Oregonian Has Natural Knack With Machinery and Makes Good.

Advancing to the berth of chief petty officer since enlisting in the Spring of 1914 is what Marcus W. Holling, a Portland boy, has accomplished in Uncle Sam's Navy, and that after having been temporarily out of the service for a few months.

Mr. Holling is "doing his bit" in the "black gang," having a natural knack with machinery, accounted for partially by the fact that his father, Marcus W. Holling, is chief machinist in the linotype department of the Oregonian, a berth he has filled for a number of years.

First, the younger Holling took to the Oregon Naval Militia, and to his efforts was due in a material degree the upbuilding of that division, he being a steady attendant at drills on cruises and working up interest among his mates, so it was natural that he turned toward the Navy to work out some of the higher branches he longed to master.

Shore experience, coupled with that gained in the Naval Militia, won for him the rating of machinist, second class, on being enlisted, and it was not long until his uniform was adorned with markings of the first class. Sick leave at the home of his parents, 909 East Couch street, drew him back in the Fall of 1916 and he obtained an extended furlough because of his record in the service, the leave amounting almost to a discharge, yet when the United States declared a state of war with Germany, back to his ship went the Portlander.

Since rejoining the fighting forces he has won another promotion and opportunities continue to beckon. Being on a man-of-war that rescued the crew of the wrecked schooner Nokomis, assigned to another that carried a Congressional trade commission to Central America and Panama, being through the bombardment of Mazatlan and other troubles along the Mexican coast, while he has since participated in much urgent duty, are only general experiences Mr. Holling has enjoyed, while voyages to ports he only dreamed of visiting before have stocked him with a knowledge of the world's construction that is valuable.

WAGE BONUS ANNOUNCED

Northern Pacific Employees to Get 10 Per Cent Extra Again.

Employees of the Northern Pacific Railway Company in Portland and vicinity have just been advised of the 10 per cent bonus that directors of the company have arranged to pay them for the six months' period beginning July 1.

All employees who receive less than $3000 a year and whose wages are not fixed by contract will be affected. President Hannaford, in advising the Portland employees, estimated that 20,700 men and women working for the Northern Pacific in various parts of the territory served by that road would be affected.

This is the second 10 per cent bonus paid by the Northern Pacific to its employees this year. The first such bonus applied on the wages for the first six months of the year.

In addition to this Northern Pacific employees are enjoying a 10 per cent wage increase which took effect last October.

MANY GRADUATES TEACH

Juniors at Oregon Normal School Also May Work This Fall.

OREGON NORMAL SCHOOL, Monmouth, July 7.—(Special.)—Many of the 215 seniors who graduated in June have made arrangements for schools in which to teach this Fall. Willamette Valley counties have attracted a large number who have drawn up contracts, while four or five Eastern Oregon counties will get their full quota of the graduates.

Salaries are said to be average, with a slight increase over that obtained by former seniors. About 15 per cent will go into grade school work and the rest into rural schools of the state.

According to early indications, some of the juniors will teach school this Fall with the intention of returning to Monmouth later to finish their course.

Dr. George Varney Back on Faculty.

MINNIVILLE, Or., July 7.—(Special.)—Dr. George L. Varney again has accepted a place on the faculty of Minnerville College. During the year 1908-1909 he taught English and public speaking, but was compelled to leave on account of his health. He again takes charge of the department of public speaking in connection with some of the philosophical subjects. While a student he won the state oratorical contests in both South Dakota and New York, the latter while a student in Rochester University.

ROUND-UP IS COMING

Noted Riders Attracted for Events Here July 11-14.

SEATS FOR 10,000 ADDED

Multnomah Field Soon Will Begin to Take on Appearance of Real Live Western Frontier Town.

Reports from Albany of the thrilling scenes enacted at the Round-Up show in that city and the announcement that this is only a part of the big combined Round-Up to be staged in Portland this week have caused Portlanders to begin to realize that at last it is going to get what it has been waiting years for—a real, live flesh and blood Western Round-Up.

Multnomah field will be the ideal place for such a show, and it is being specially lighted at an expense of something like $1000 for the night performance, and bleacher seats are being constructed to hold 20,000 people in addition to the grandstand, which seats nearly 3500.

Star riders of both sexes are being drawn towards the Portland show, many of them prize-winners at Pendleton, Cheyenne, Medicine Hat and other famous round-ups, and the most famous trick and bucking horses in the West. The programme is laid out almost exactly in duplicate of the Pendleton show, to which hundreds of Portlanders have been going for the past several years. Bulldozing of wild steers by men and women famed all over the West for this daring feat will be a feature, and a band of Indians in costume will add to the picturesque quality as well as to the riding and Wild West show. Spots in Portland, and around Multnomah field especially, will soon begin to assume the appearance of a real, live Western frontier town, for "the Round-Up is coming." The dates of the Portland Round-Up are July 11-14.

NEW GRADE TO END DANGER

Improvement of Crossing at Hogan Station Considered.

Because of the fatal accident at Hogan Station June 27, last, which resulted in the death of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Lindsey and Miss Helen Metzgar, when their machine crashed into an interurban car, the County Commissioners are planning to build a new grade at this crossing in order to make it less dangerous to traffic.

The grade must be lowered at that point, and the Commissioners have instructed the roadmaster's department to make a thorough investigation in order that immediate action might be taken.

Yeasle, McCourt & Yeasle are Mr. Lovejoy's attorneys, and the suit is said to be brought in behalf of 200 other insurance agents in Portland.
