

JITNEURS HOPE FOR BONDS IS WAINING

California Casualty Indemnity Company Cannot Qualify for Business in Oregon.

FEW COMPLY WITH LAW

Only 65 Have Provided Necessary Protection for Public and Most of These Are Owners of Taxicabs and For-Hire Cars.

Jitney operators and taxicab drivers who try to continue to do business in Portland cannot satisfy the new municipal bonding law by filing bonds with the California Casualty Indemnity Company—a concern organized and operated by the California Jitney drivers—because the California Casualty Indemnity Company is not licensed to do business in this state.

The records of the state insurance department at Salem reveal that this company has not even applied for a license.

It is apparent, too, that it could not qualify for a license even if it applied. The new municipal bonding law passed by the last Legislature provides that surety companies incorporated under the laws of any other state must have a paid-up capital of $250,000 and a surplus of $100,000 to do business in Oregon. They also must deposit with the State Treasurer money or negotiable securities in the sum of at least $25,000.

This money or security must be held by the Treasurer to satisfy the holders of obligations against such surety companies.

It is reported from California that the California Casualty Indemnity Company has a paid-up capital stock of only $27,000.

Those few jitney men who have taken out bonds since the new law went into effect have obtained them from the Aetna Insurance Company, represented here by McCarger, Bates & Lively. The same company also is bonding the "for-hire" cars and taxicabs.

Scores of jitney drivers who have applied to McCarger, Bates & Lively for bonds, not being able to present satisfactory evidence of careful driving in the past, have been rejected.

Only 65 drivers have filed their bonds at the City Hall. This includes mostly taxicab drivers and drivers of for-hire cars, with a few jitneys. The streets yesterday. Most of the drivers have disposed of their machines.

VETERANS PLAN PICNIC

OAKS IS LOCATION AND NEXT SATURDAY THE DAY.

Judge C. G. Burton, Past Commander-in-Chief, G. A. R., and C. E. Cline Will Deliver Address.

Patriotism, naturally, will be prominent at the gathering of the Oregon G. A. R. Association for the annual picnic of the organization at The Oaks next Saturday. The day's program will include many features that will appeal to the patriotic spirit of all who attend.

A special invitation to all veterans of the Civil War, all auxiliary societies and friends of the veterans, is extended by the association. The picnic at the park has been out in half for veterans and members of the auxiliaries. The picnic will be an all-day affair, starting at 10 o'clock in the morning and lasting into the evening. Dinner will be spread at 11:30 and in the afternoon a program of music and addresses will be given and the annual election of officers held.

Judge C. G. Burton, past commander-in-chief of the Grand Army, and C. E. Cline will deliver addresses. Mrs. Fred L. Olson will sing "The Star-Spangled Banner" and there will be musical selections by the Cardinal Ladies' Quartet and by the Veterans' Quartet, as well as other entertainers. Veterans of Portland and the surrounding country anticipate a big attendance and a delightful day.

FOOD HELP FOR WAR IS AIM

National Association Convention to Determine Action of All.

J. D. Mickle, State Dairy and Food Commissioner, will leave Wednesday of this week for Atlantic City, N. J., to attend the annual convention of the National Association of Dairy, Food and Drug Officials of the United States, July 21 to August 3, from which will deliver a paper on "Sanitation and Help From a Food Standpoint."

Methods of close co-operation with the Government in its food conservation campaign will be discussed, and a course of action adopted. Mr. Mickle regards the session as of the utmost importance as the conference will determine the individual action to be taken practically all over the United States to relieve the stringency of the food situation.

UNIONS TO PICNIC JULY 29

Organized Labor Plans Frolic at Crystal Lake Park.

Organized labor will frolic at Crystal Lake Park next Sunday, July 29, when the various local unions will join in their "liberty picnic" and make the day a memorable one in the calendar of "good times."

Co-operating as perfectly as a football squad, the ticket-sellers are even storming the city for sales and their reports indicate that the attendance will make kindling of all prior records.

The committee in charge is composed of Frank Hannon, of the Ironworkers, chairman; Delegates Anderson, of the Bricklayers; Fisher, of the Barbers; Hibbs and Barker, of the Carpenters; Lewis, of the Steamfitters; Kimsey, of the Printers; Haybarker, of the Electrical Workers; Eurchard, of the Mechanics; Quinn, of the Electrical Workers; President Howard and Secretary Stack.

Chrome Mines Inspected.

GRANTS PASS, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—Professor J. S. Diller, noted geologist, is spending several days visiting the newly-opened-up chrome deposits south of this city, from which large shipments are being made to Cleveland and Pittsburgh smelters.

PASTOR RESIGNS TO LECTURE ON EXPERIENCES IN ALASKA

Rev. George Edward Lewis Leaves Highland Congregational Church Pulpit, but Says He Will Preach Gospel Sometimes.

Rev. George Edward Lewis.

REV. GEORGE EDWARD LEWIS, pastor of Highland Congregational Church, has resigned to take up lecture work. Hereafter Mr. Lewis says he will preach the gospel sometimes, but will do so without pay. His experiences in Alaska will form the nucleus for his lectures and the many motion pictures he took there and his wonderful collection of souvenirs will make up an exhibit that will be shown in conjunction with the lectures.

On a recent journey to the far North he obtained a set of moving pictures practically covering the resources from Bristol Bay, a distance of 2200 miles, and extending 300 miles into the wild interior. He is the first to obtain pictures of the Government railroads, at this the Legislature, the Governor and his wife, the newly opened coal fields, the schools, churches and many other phases of life.

His chief desire is to show Alaska just as it is: uncolored and unadorned. Mr. Lewis is well informed on all phases of Alaskan life and industries. He has made many journeys, each of which has been very extensive, throughout the territory, and has acquainted himself with nearly all classes of citizens from the Governor to the far inferior dog musher. Being one-fourth Seneca Indian, he learns the traits of the wild men of the forests and mountains; and the Far North men are no exception to this rule. He knows the life of the 36 kinds of wild animals, the names of the 190 birds, the seven kinds of timber, the 132 wild flowers, the five kinds of grasses, the 16 kinds of berries and the climatic conditions, as well as the seasons of the year. He is an authority on the work dog, on mining copper and gold, and always labors to give out authentic and rare information.

Rev. Mr. Lewis and his moving picture man, Harry S. Jones, of this city, just presented to the City Museum with an Eskimo meat block, which they carried for many hundred miles. He is the proud possessor of perhaps one of the rarest collections of Eskimo and Far North curios in existence. These were all obtained from the natives in the distant country along the Arctic Sea from the Cobuck to the Mackenzie, and were not purchased in the usual way at some tourist curio store. He has the only set of Labrats (Eskimo false teeth) known. He has the finest of white reindeer mashing gowns, trimmed with malamute, wolverine and muskox. He has genuine walrus mukluks made by the Endicott Eskimos, and a very rare suit of silver and golden seal, trimmed with hand-carved ivory buttons. Has a pair of wool seal wedding trousers decorated with black wolf and seal, and a pair of seal trousers, with the thimble and other Arctic instruments.

To obtain these curios one must ford rapids, rivers and ride over rough and treacherous seas. One must march through honey-comb snow wastes and face drifting and blinding blizzards, with the thermometer from 40 to 80 degrees below zero; one must eat frozen meat and lap snow for winter thirst, sleep on glaciers and rugged rocks, fight polar bears, blue wolf and wolverines. Must buck giant tide bears, out defy terrific winds, encounter drifting ice, and difficult navigation; besides weariness of the flesh, solitude, insanity, snow blindness, pneumonia and other ills common in that land with such an exposure of body. But possessing a frame of iron and a will of adamant, while his other comrades faltered and returned, alone and unaided he has frequently pushed on to see the snow-capped mountains, the rushing rivers and the broad and silent valleys where the footfalls of the white men are seldom if ever heard. He asserts "that it is really great to go where you have every reason to believe that before you mortal man has never trodden. Great," says he, "to meet the wild woodmen and barren land Eskimo, to see thousands of wild woodland and barren land caribou on which is only the brand of Almighty God." Great to dig for yellow ore in the bars of rivers that flow to a frozen mouth, adown the slope of the unsurveyed Arctic divide."

NOTED EDUCATOR HEARD

DR. J. DUNCAN SPAETH CONCLUDES SERIES HERE.

"Walt Whitman and the Spirit of American Democracy" is Discussed Brilliantly.

The third and last of a series of lectures by Dr. J. Duncan Spaeth, noted educator and author from Princeton, given Saturday night before a big and intellectual Portland. The lecture was given at Lincoln High School, and proved to be one of the most interesting and philosophical observations backed up with a splendid insight and knowledge of the subject.

"Walt Whitman and the Spirit of American Democracy," was discussed brilliantly. Dr. Spaeth referred to the present war as an "interruption to the work of democracy, necessary, inevitable, but merely preliminary."

"While we are helping Europe to extend an era of political democracy, and fighting to prevent Germany from hampering in the rights of smaller nations, let us beware that we are not following forces hostile to the spirit of American democracy to entrench themselves at home. The American flag is the symbol of our common inheritance and our common hopes and destiny. It is too large to cover any one state, any one class, any one interest." Dr. Spaeth praised the law preventing anything being put on the flag.

WOUNDED DOG IS STOLEN

City Physician Ziegler Is Looking for His Setter.

Wounded in battle, kidnapped and probably deserted by the kidnappers, a six-months-old English setter owned by Dr. Fred J. Ziegler, city physician, is experiencing the horrors of war without leaving his native city. The pup sustained a broken leg in a battle with a bulldog last Friday. Dr. Ziegler took him to the offices of the Humane Society to have him killed, but

STARTED HOME WITH HIM AGAIN WHEN OFFICIALS ASSURED HIM THAT THE DOG PROBABLY WOULD RECOVER.

Dr. Ziegler left the dog in his automobile at East Fifteenth street and Broadway, and the pup was stolen by a man in a black coat and a black spot on his back.

"LETTER OF CHEER" BEING SIGNED FOR U. S. SOLDIER BOYS.

Mae Murray, former Ziegler Follies star, who is now a Luminary of Bluebird Photoplays, has suddenly leaped into the National limelight by setting up a "Letter of Cheer" to Major-General Pershing and the "Sammy" who compose the United States expeditionary force in France. She has sent a copy of the letter to all public men, and already the signatures of many famous Senators, Governors and Mayors have been obtained. This letter of cheer is also known as the "Mae Murray Million Signature Letter."

KNIGHTS TO AID TROOPS

SOCIAL WELFARE COMMISSION IS GIVEN CATHOLIC ORDER.

Recreation Centers to Be Established at 16 Army Cantonnments Where Men May Congregate.

The War Department has designated the Knights of Columbus as the official agency for looking after the moral and social welfare of the Catholic men of the Army and Navy.

The selection of the Knights of Columbus is the result of the efficient work done for the soldiers on the Mexican border, where 25 recreation centers were erected.

The Knights of Columbus have pledged $1,000,000 to carry on this work. Two-thirds of this amount was raised by the order. The balance will be subscribed by Catholics generally throughout the United States.

The week beginning July 29 and ending August 5 has been designated by Portland council as campaign week for the million-dollar fund.

Working in connection with committees appointed by the pastors of each church in the city, the central committee of the Knights of Columbus will solicit all Catholic families.

This is the largest task ever undertaken by the Knights of Columbus and has the hearty indorsement of the three American cardinals and the entire hierarchy of the United States.

The plan now under way call for the erection of recreation centers at the 16 Army cantonnments throughout the United States. These buildings will be equipped with baths, libraries, reading material and other accommodations.

In these centers all men in the service will be heartily welcomed, regardless of creed. Archbishop Christie has sent an appeal to each priest in the diocese urging the generous support of the laity in this patriotic work.

TREE KILLS GASTON MAN

Jake Tupper Dies at Forest Grove Two Hours After Accident.

GASTON, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—While felling trees for Charles Williams, of the Patton Valley district, west of Gaston, Jake Tupper, aged 35 years, was fatally injured Wednesday and died two hours later at the Forest Grove Hospital. After sawing a tree he, with a companion, stepped back for the fall, and as the tree went over it struck another tree and bounded back, striking Tupper in the abdomen and resting on the body.

CHERRIES YIELD PROFITS

HOOD RIVER APPLE MAN HAS OTHER FINE FRUITS.

Tract of D'Anjou Pears Yields 1800 Boxes in Year, Selling at $2.25 Per Box.

HOOD RIVER, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—The busiest ranch in Hood River now is the West Side place of J. R. Nunamaker, known as the Hood River Valley cherry king. Thirty women and girls are engaged in packing the luscious product, while a crew of many more, composed of a percentage of men, is engaged in taking the Bingos, Lamberts, Royal Annes and Black Republics from the laden trees. The cherry harvest lasts from three to four weeks.

While Mr. Nunamaker is one of the owners of the valley's largest apple holdings, he grows more than a fourth of the cherries produced in the Hood River community, on tracts totaling only four acres. From this small acreage, however, he expects to harvest more than 50 tons of fruit this season.

When a visitor arrives at the place Mr. Nunamaker, the owner, always escorts him during the course of the exploration of the ranch to a giant Lambert tree, which Mr. Nunamaker characterizes as the king tree of his place. The big tree never fails to bear a full crop, an average of about 800 pounds each year. The yield will be greater this season. Nearly all of this fruit is of extra fancy quality and will sell for about 10 cents per pound. That going to the canners will bring 4 cents.

Mr. Nunamaker is not only known for his immense cherry crop, but also as the owner of one of the best D'Anjou pear orchards in the valley.

"I harvested 1800 boxes of pears last year," says Mr. Nunamaker, "and they brought $2.25 per box. The D'Anjou is
