

SUNSHINY WEATHER, WITH MILD BREEZES, CALLS TO BEACHES

Automobiles No Longer Rarity on Manhattan Beach, but Soft Sands Are to Be Avoided, as Portland Parties Can Testify.

On The Life Line At Seaside

Building A Sand Fort Ocean Park, Wash.

MANHATTAN, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—A continuation of the excellent weather here is having its effect in drawing from the over-heated cities the people who seek the comforts of cooler spots. Sunshiny weather, with a mild breeze to fan the warm brow, has been the order here for several weeks, and consequently people are arriving in from Portland and points east of the mountains to escape from 100-degree weather.

Automobiles here are no longer a rarity, as often one arrives via the hard beach sand. One can leave the main road at the Rockaway end, and take to the beach and make good time into Manhattan. In a recent party that came in from Portland by motor were Mr. and Mrs. A. Allman, Mrs. Arthur Kuhnhausen and Walter Kuhnhausen, of Portland, who arrived last Saturday. Sunday the men returned to Portland, leaving the ladies domiciled at the Kuhnhausen summer home. Bellevue cottage, for a fortnight. An event of the trip was the arrival at Manhattan, where the incoming tide forced the car to stop with any assurance of getting the car started again. Unloading on the move, with baggage and luggage heaved overboard as rapidly as possible, the car circled around several times, until all was unloaded, and then the car was run back up the beach to Rockaway to await the return trip. Generally, however, the hard sand is free for use as a speedway, and many pleasure seekers are taking advantage of it.

W. E. Anderson, of Tillamook, was here over Sunday as the guest of the Huston family, at the Crescent Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Kuhnhausen, of Portland, who were here for a week at their summer home, have returned to Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Othus, of Portland, were here for a few days' recreation, and here, during the week-end, they were here for a few days' recreation, and here, during the week-end, they were here for a few days' recreation.

A. Ammer and family, of Tillamook, were down via auto for an over-Sunday visit with the Withers family, of Portland, who are here in the Mervinmakers' cottage for the season.

N. Sorenson, wife and son Carl, of Portland, have taken quarters here at Cole's Camp and will remain for a week or two.

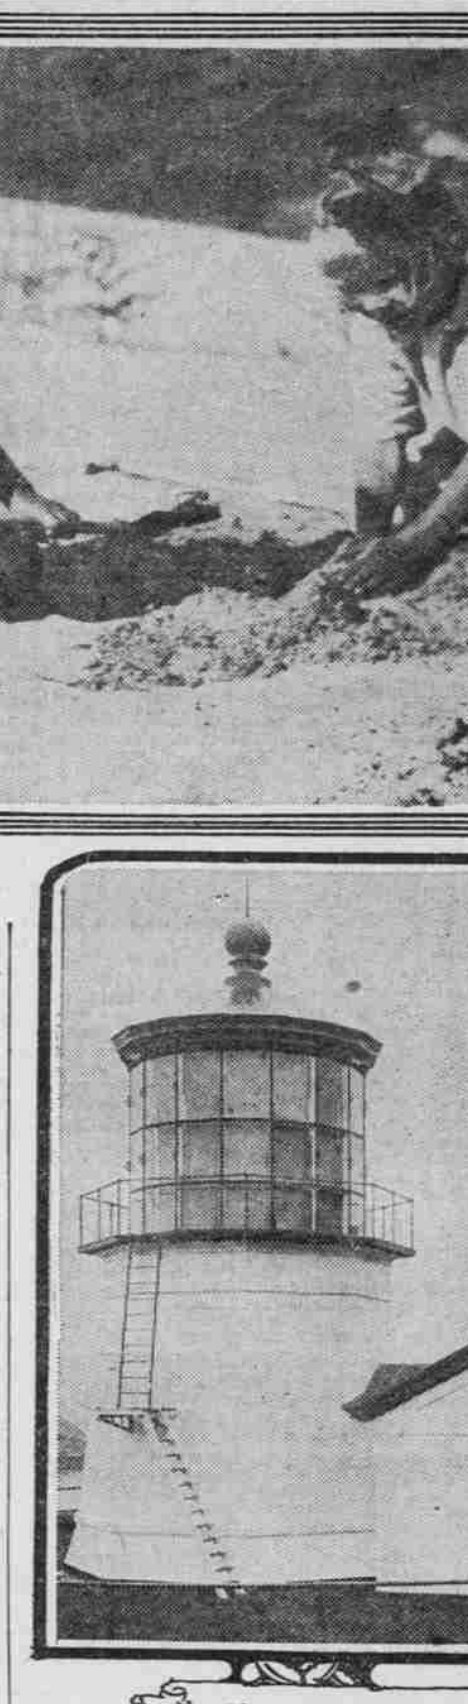

John Gross, of Portland, was here for the last week-end with his wife and son at the Ocean cottage. Mr. Crabs are plentiful, and perch fishing from the Nehalem Jetty is still a popular pastime. The near-by Lake Lytle also claims the attention of fishermen for trout, and the western shore is popular among the swimmers. The daily parade from Manhattan to the lake is an event of the season, many who prefer the warmth of still waters to the exhilaration of the surf, and diving swimming and rowing are diversions that make summer days all too short.

Mock Wedding Is Feature Lively Week Enjoyed by Numerous Visitors at Bayocean

Mock Wedding Is Feature Lively Week Enjoyed by Numerous Visitors at Bayocean.

BAYOCEAN, Or., July 21.—(Special.)—Bayocean spirit has resumed its usual summer activity, and things are stirring along at a good clip. Hiking parties, clamming expeditions, bonfire festivities, dancing events, house parties and outdoor and indoor social affairs of various nature and extensive number are combining to make this one of the most successful of Bayocean seasons.

The good time era was well started on its way last Tuesday evening by the affair given by Mrs. Mary Leonard, popular manager of the Bungalow City. Preceding an evening of cards and refreshments, a mock wedding was staged that for application to detail would be hard to exceed. Some very well-known Portlanders, who are here for the summer, took part in the ceremony. A peculiar and unparalleled feature of the event was the fact that the husband of the bride performed the ceremony, and the wife of the groom acted as maid of honor. Bridesmaids and flower girls, with all the trimmings and fixings of a real wedding, were arranged, and the altar and auditorium decorations were certainly magnificent. Arrayed in men's clothing, and taking the part of the bride's father, giving away an only child, was one of the most prominent women of the summer colony here.

Among the summer folk here are Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Pittman, of Portland, and the usual summer activities here and the huge dancing pavilion is drawing crowds from all the nearby resorts. Campers and anglers are arriving in regular order and the season's festivities are well under way. One of the most enjoyable events of the past week was the party given by John Baldwin, at his summer home, the Bear's Retreat, on Wednesday night. Among those present were: Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, R. and Mrs. William Thompson, Miss Maggie Thompson, Mrs. R. E. Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ross, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Jansen, and son, Jackie, and John Baldwin. The cottage was beautifully decorated in greens.
