FIELD MEN WANTED

Ambulance Service Sending 100 Workers a Week.

GAME NOT FOR SLACKERS

to Drive Transport Wagons Are Early on Battlefronts - Enlistments for Seven Months Asked.

With the arrival of John Honey ready for field ambulance work on the west-ern front, with the trip planned by Alan Green, husband of the former Helen Ladd, for the same destination in the same line of work, comes a call from the American Field Ambulance Service for men not of the draft age, according to the announcement Wells Gilbert, Northwestern represent-ative of the service organisation. Mr. Gilbert yesterday gave out extracts from letters of Lleutenant George R. Young, of the service, in answer to recent criticisms of alleged slackers. They follow:

Ambulance Men in Thick of Fight.

The very fact that men are receiving citations from the French government daily, that the French officers cannot be generous anough in their trust, would make it seem rather indicrous for anyone to imagine that the boys are slackers. On the other hand, they represent the true typs of American who wish to go into the fray at the carlient moment and take the shortest route.

One might be interested to know that in the past two weeks 10 of our men have been killed and more than a score wounded. This sounds like a slackers' games, doesn't $t?

esume these bits of adverse criticism o more than are to be expected, but an organization becomes really a very ing and embraces 2000 men. there is to be much more criticism than when erganization contains only 400 to 500 are working now more for men over age. The service, as you know, presen epportunity to get into active work liately. I realize the draft quota has riously into available men, but strange ortunately the movement is gaining nence among older men. We can now man over draft age who has a busifilise of the company of the own and who is willing to sacseven months of his time.
