Height of building is another item of much importance which will be discussed for final action, the Council aiready having informally fixed the limit at eight stories for certain types of office buildings.

Types of buildings which must be passed upon by the Council before a permit is issued are as follows:

Hospitals, buildings for treatment of insane or feeble minded, stables containing over two animals, large garages, dog pound, blacksmith or horsesticeing shops, soap, candle or chemical factories, dry cleaning establishments, gas plants or tanks with a capacity of over 5000 cubic feet of gas, boiler shops, brick, tile or terra cotta boiler shops, brick, tile or terra cotta factories, stoneware or earthenware factories, junk or rag shops or junk or rag storage yards, paint mixing or grinding plants or factories, lumber yards, fuel yards, wood or coal; planing mills, packing houses or plants, acid works, woodworking plants employing over 10 persons, oil storage or sales buildings containing over 1000 gallons, not including oil stored in tanks underground, oil tanks outside of buildings containing over 15,000 gallons, tanneries, saddle factories, amusement parks, powder factories, public dance-halls, roller-skating rinks, woolpulling, hide or skin warehouses, creameries with over five employes and tents with board floors, used as residences. oiler shops, brick, tile or terra cotta

With regard to the height of buildings. Commissioner Barbur said:

"The question of limit of height of buildings was discussed at some length by the Council, and it was decided that the height limit of eight stories, or 110 feet at the building line, sliowing increases in height if setbacks are used, be allowed to stand in the code, with the exception that the Council might, if special cases should arise, exceed these limits without resorting to a special permit, In such an event the case would have to be presented to the Council, which, after considering its various points, would approve it or not as they naw fit as a special case. It is recognised by the Council that a proper limitation of height of buildings is a most important regulation and one that affects the growth and welfare of the city to an extent not appreciated by many of the citizens."

The Council has already amended the present building code so that it allows buildings up to four stories in the fire limits of so-called mili construction.

The code to be discussed next Wednesday is one which was drawn up during the incumbency of Robert G. Dieck, who was Commissioner of Public Works for four years, preceding the administration of Mr. Barbur. The latter has recommended to the Council that this code be adopted.

Enthusiastic Workers in Every Community Pledge Time and Effort to Carry State Once More Into Honor Roll.

By proclamation of the Governor of every state in the Union there begins tomorrow a Nation-wide drive, lasting for seven days, to raise a fund of $1,000,000 to equip every camp and cantonment in this country and the American camps in France with libraries and books.

Oregon already has $1000 to its credit with the fund and reports from every county in the state indicate Oregon will raise its quots of $15,000.

Two hundred and four Oregon communities have organized local war library councils in aid of the fund, headed by Mayors, bankers, prominent business men and clubwomen.

One hundred and fifty-seven Portland men have pledged their time, beginning tomorrow, to center a drive on the downtown districts. Two large squads from the Ad and Rotary clubs, headed, respectively, by E. R. Strong and J. C. Moore, will augment the number.

FROMGODTOMAN DIVINE COMMUNICATION IN THE CURRENT AGE.

Revelation, Past, Present and Future. BY DR. JAMES E. TALMAGE. Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jeans Christ of Latter-Day Saints, Sait Lake City, Utah.

We believe all that God has revealed, all that he does now reveal, and we believe that he will yet reveal many great and important things pertaining to the kingdom of God.—(Articles of

te the kingdom of God.—(Articles of Faith, No. 8.)
Revelation, direct and personal from God to men, is the dominant theme of Scripture. Expunge from the Bible all record of actual revelation and reference thereto, and what remains? Nothing more than a variety of historical sketches, chronicles, genealogical data, some chapters of ethical value, a few poetical rhapsodies, proverbs and allegories. Every believer in the authenticity of Byery believer in the authenticity of the Holy Bible acknowledges that God literally spake to Adam, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Jacob and Moses, and that specific revelation was given to Israel during the time of the Judges, and on to David and Solomon, thence to John, who was the immediate forertuner of the Messiah. The actuality of divine revelation through duly constituted prophets, seers and revelators, has been so generally accepted throughout the ages, and is so abundantly attested, that by all rules of argument and debate the burden of proof naturally and properly falls upon him who denies.

Continued revelation of the divine will and purpose is in harmony with the spirit of the times. In no phase of human effort and advancement, save only that of the soul's salvation, do men venture to assert or even think that we have learned all there is to learn. What of a college professor, in chemistry, geology or astronomy, who would contine his students to the conning of books that tell of early discoveries, with the dictum that nothing remains to be discovered, instead of guiding them in laboratory and field, and in the searching of the outer deep with telescope and spectroscope, with remains to be discovered, instead of guiding them in laboratory and field, and in the searching of the outer deep with telescope and spectroscope, with the confident hope of finding new truths?

Revelation is God's means of communication with his children, and we deny the consistent and unchangeable character of deity when we say that God has revealed himself to man, but cannot or will not do so again. Is it reasonable to hold that in one age the Church of Christ was blessed, enlightened and guided by direct revelation, and that at another time the church is to be left to itself, sustained only by the dead letter of earlier days? The living church must be in vital communication with its divine head.

"Where there is no vision the people living church must be in vital communication with its divine head "Where there is no vision the people perish" (Prov. xxix:18); and "Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets" (Amos ill:7).

The Christ himself was a revelator, through whom the Father's will was made known to man. Notwithstanding his personal authority as Jehovah, God though he had been, was, and is, while he lived as a man among men. Jesus Christ declared his work to be that of one greater than himself, from whom he had been sent, and by whom he was instructed and directed. Note his words; "For I have not spoken of myself; but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak. And I know that his commandment is life everlasting; whatsoever I speak therefore, even as the Father said unto me, so I speak" (John xil:49-50). Further: "The words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he does the works. . . And as the Father gave me commandment, even so I do" (John xiv:10, 31).

The recreant and unbelieving Jews relected their Lord because he came to gave me commandment, even so I do" (John xiv:16, 31).

The recreant and unbelieving Jews rejected their Lord because he came to them with a new revelation. Had they not Moses and the prophets? What more could they need? They openly boasted, "We are Moses' disciples," and added, "We know that God spake unto Moses; as for this fellow, we know not from whence he is" (John ix:28-29).
Those who deny the possibility of present-day revelation are not distinguished by originality; they follow a beaten path, hard-trodden by ignoble feet.

beaten path, hard-trougen by ignored feet.

The Apostles ministered under the guiding influence of revelation. Paul writing to Corinthians said: "But food hath revenled them (Divine Truths) unto us by his Spirit: for the Spirit searcheth all things, yen, the deep things of God. For what man knoweth the charge of a man, saye the spirit of searcheth all things, yes, the deep things of God. For what man knoweth the things of n man, save the spirit of man which is in himt Even so the things of God knoweth no man, but the Spirit of God" (I Cor. II:10-12).

The imperative need of continued revelation appears in the fact that new conditions and unprecedented combinations of circumstances arise with the passage of time, and divine direction alone can meet the new issue. We read of statutes having been ordained and subsequently superseded when a more advanced stage of the divine plan had been reached. Thus, the Law of Moses was binding upon Israel from the time of the Exodus to that of the Savior's ministry; but Christ substituted a higher law than that of carnal commandments, which had been given because at the time the people were unprepared for the gospel (reid Matt. v:17-48, and Book of Mormon, III Nephi xy:4-8).

Apostle John knew that in the The Apostle John knew that in the last days, these present days, the voice of God would be heard calling his people from the Babylon of sin to the Zion of safety: "And I heard another voice."

ple from the Babyion of sin to the Zion of safety: "And I heard another voice from heaven, saying, Come out of her, my people, that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her pingues" (Rev. xviii:4; see also xiv:6). Nephi, an ancient prophet, whose record appears in the Book of Mormon, addressed himself to the unbelievers of the last days, and thus predicted the bringing forth of additional Scriptures: "And it shall come to pass, that the Lord God shall bring forth unto you the words of a book, and they shall be the words of them which have slumbered. And behold the buok shall be sealed; and in the book shall be a revelation from God" (II Nephi xxvii:6-7). Through the Hebrew prophet Malachi the Lord promised additional revelation in the last days, by the coming of Elijah with a special and particular commission (Mal. ivxi-6). These prophecies have been fulfilled to the letter in Elijah with a special and particular commission (Mal. iv.5-6). These prophecies have been fulfilled to the letter in modern times, the first by the bringing forth of the Book of Mormon and its publication to the world; the latter by the inauguration of vicarious work for the dead through the personal visitation of Elijah, a work now in vigorous prosecution in the Temples erected and maintained by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints.

Not only has the voice of God been heard in modern times, but his words spell rebuke and reproof unto those who would close his mouth and estrange him from his people. Verily hath he spoken, "proving to the world that the Holy Scriptures are true, and that God does inspire men and call them to his holy work in their age and generation, as well as in generations of generation, as well as in generations of generation, as well as in generations of old, thereby showing that he is same God yesterday, today and forever" (Doctrines and Covenants xx:11-12). Of old the Lord proclaimed: "Woe be unto him that shall say, We have received the word of God, and we need no more of the word of God, for we have enough" (Book of Mormon, If Nephi xxviii:29); and in this age bath he spoken words of admonition and warning: "Deny not the Spirit of reve-
