RED CROSS SHOP IS BIG SUCCESS

Patriotic Store Attracts Fine Patronage Right From Opening.

MANY ARTICLES NEEDED

Committee Has Call for Wide Variety of Useful Things, From Cast Off Clothing to Bird Cage. Contributors Are Liberal.

The Red Cross Shop, which was opened last week at 106 Fifth street, is attracting the patronage of a vast number of persons. It is unique in its mission and field.

No one, it seems, is too poor to give something for sale, and no one, by the same token, is too poor to buy there. The list of articles given reads in places like a list of wedding presents and interspersed among table silver, cut glass and tea sets are articles like these: Sixteen pounds of onions, canary bird, apron, knitting bag, toys, accordion, furs, clothes brushes, canned peaches, blankets, an electric heater, rare old English china of an exquisite blue and baby shoes.

Many Articles Needed.

"The variety of things brought and sold is endless, so bring what you have and see if it is salable. It is a pleasant idea that things you do not need will ease some wounded boy in France, that something useless to you may help to save a life."

This is the message of the leaders in the movement.

On its first day the shop took in $162, every cent of which—for no expense is involved—is clear gain.

The store committee will be glad to have donated the following articles, which have been called for:

Children's outgrown coats and shoes; for these there is constant demand; furniture; canary bird cage; knitted articles for our soldiers and sailors; two dozen glasses of jelly, currant, grape, damson and blackberry; old engravings; unabridged dictionary; typewriter to be used in the shop.

The Jolly-Ratelle Company, the Kilham Company, and the Kubli-Howell Company have each donated 2000 bulletins. The Ira Powers Company gave a liberal donation of tables and electrical appliances. H. A. Peebles will come every day to repair furniture. The Benson and Portland hotels will give unclaimed baggage. August Dippel gave the contents of the patriotic window which is attracting much attention. The old guns, sabers, knapsack and revolvers are relics of the Civil and Revolutionary wars.

Liberal Aid Rendered.

In addition to donations acknowledged last week, the following contributions have been made:

Portland Railway, Light & Power Company, spaces for 500 signs; Irwin-Hodson Company, 500 signs; Portland Sign Company, shop signs; Portland Rose Association, containers for flowers; Northwestern Power Company, free light for the rooms; Walsh Company, fixtures for the shop; Holman Transfer Company will transfer articles too large for automobiles; Pacific and Home telephone companies, a telephone each; Mastick Dahlia Farm, dahlias every day for as long as they last; Belcher Hardwood Floor Company finished the floor and the show windows; Baltes Printing Company, bulletins; Bushong Company, cards; Kilham Stationery Company, 500 envelopes; Finch will take charge of all printing and probably will be helped by other companies; American Cash Register Company, register; Burroughs Adding Company, adding machine; Harry K. McIntosh, show cards for shop and Red Cross workrooms; E. L. E. White Printing Company, poster printing.

WESTERN FUEL MEN MEET

Administrators of Eight States Hope to Solve Supply Problem.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Oct. 20.—Fuel administrators of Idaho, Washington, Oregon, California and Utah are in session here to formulate a service bureau in an effort to solve the coal shortage in the eight Western states. The headquarters of the bureau will be located in Salt Lake City, with branches in the other seven states. Those present are David Whitcomb, of Seattle; Fred Holmes, of La Grande, Or.; Albert E. Schwabacher, San Francisco; ex-Governor Frank R. Gooding, of Idaho, and W. W. Armstrong, of Utah. Wyoming is not represented, no fuel administrator having been appointed.

"There is an abundance of coal to supply the demand," says one of the fuel administrators. "The only question is as to cars and we do not anticipate any trouble in that direction. We expect, with the co-operation of the producers and the railroads, to very considerably clear up the atmosphere."

FIVE FISHERMEN ARRESTED

Failure to Erect Monument for Set Nets Is Charge.

District Game Warden E. H. Clark returned to Portland yesterday from a trip through his district, in which he arrested five fishermen for failure to erect proper monuments for their set nets. The men arrested were George A. Edwards, G. W. Parish, T. R. Fraser, Jess Davis and James Wilson, all of Tillamook.

Additional charges of having set nets more than one-third of the way across a stream were filed against Fraser and Davis, whose nets, according to Clark, were taking up too much of the Tillamook River.

The men all pleaded not guilty before District Judge Stanley, of Tillamook. They will be tried next week.

LEBANON, Or., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—The Men's Social Union of the Methodist Church was reorganized at a meeting Wednesday night for their Winter's work and they will follow the lines of work of last year in putting on a course of free lectures during the Winter. The course last year proved very popular with the people. One of the lectures is expected to be by W. L. Finley on "Oregon Birds," which is an illustrated lecture which has been heard with favor in many parts of the state. The officers elected last night for the new year were: President, R. L. Gilson, vice-president; A. I. Crandall; secretary, D. A. Reeves; treasurer, J. S. Northrop.

PRESS AND PUBLIC LAUD ALMA GLUCK AS PEERLESS SINGER

Peculiar Charm of Prima Donna's Voice Is That Appeal Is Felt Equally by Those of Educated and Uneducated Taste.

ALMA GLUCK, WHO IS RATED AS AMERICA'S SWEETEST SINGER.

ON THE evening of October 31 the most popular American songstress will be heard at the Heilig. This statement will serve to identify her to those who have heard her in concert or listened to any of her numerous phonographic records, for Alma Gluck has won her way into the hearts of everyone who has come within the range of her superlatively sweet voice.

Among other great singers there is always room for comparison; not so with Alma Gluck. No one thinks of contrasting her voice with some other prima donna's, or her technical skill, or her particular fitness for this or that school of music, or her choice of songs for an evening's programme. People who go to hear her want the soul of melody that dwells in her incomparable voice.

Madame Gluck is one of the very few eminent singers whose charm appeals alike to the most cultivated taste and to the musically uneducated. Her universal popularity is attested by the very large and constantly increasing demand for her phonographic records. These have found their way into millions of homes. In Portland, as elsewhere, there is renewed and eager desire to see and hear her in person.

Her hold upon music lovers of this Nation is too well illustrated by her concert tour last season, when she sang to more than 300,000 persons. At all the concerts, except a few due to bad weather, the theaters or music halls were taxed to their capacity, and this season's tour thus far has repeated the success.

Associated with Madame Gluck on the present tour is Signor Salvatore de Stefano, an Italian harpist of high attainment, who won first prize at the Royal Conservatory at Naples. One of his most important appearances in this country was as soloist with the Russian Symphony Orchestra at Madison-Square Garden, New York. He has won unstinted praise.

As on Madame Gluck's former appearances in Portland, about three years ago, this engagement is under the management of Steers & Coman.

KIDDIES APPLAUD JACK

700 CHILDREN GUESTS OF MAJESTIC AT FILM SHOW.

Fifty Boys and Girls From Capitol Hill School, Orphans' Home, Day Nursery, Others, There.

Seven hundred children, the orphans and wards of various institutions, and others chosen by the social service workers and teachers of the schools, made the Majestic Theater vibrate with their enthusiasm and re-echo with their cheers and applause yesterday morning when the little folk were the guests of Manager J. J. Parker at a presentation of "Jack and the Beanstalk."

The teachers from Capitol Hill School brought about 50 boys and girls, many of whom had never been to town before. It was a treat unprecedented. The Orphans' Home was there, spick and span, with faces radiant with happiness. The kiddies climbed the beanstalk with "Jack" and his dog. They entered into his adventures in capturing the hen that laid the golden egg and when the hero returned to the land at the top of the beanstalk determined to destroy the wicked giant, Blunderbore, the audience went wild with joy.

At the close, when Jack and the beautiful princess are seen ready to "live happy ever afterward," the young guests cheered their host. Mrs. Ferdinand Reed, of the Portland Fruit and Flower Nursery, marched 38 of the charges of the Day Nursery to the show and back again, and the tiny tots all joined in the applause and demonstration at the close of the performance. The majority of those who attended walked to and from the theater, some of them coming as far as two miles or more.

Plans for Year Outlined.

LAFAYETTE, Or., Oct. 20.—(Special.)—A delightful "get-together meeting" was held at the Methodist Episcopal Church Friday evening, with Rev. Alfred Bates presiding. A programme of vocal and instrumental music was given and suggestions were made relative to the work of the new conference year. The Ladies' Aid Society, of which Mrs. John Postle is president, served coffee, cake and grapes.

CO-EDS BECOME KNITTERS

Fashion in Vogue Elsewhere Extends to University of Oregon.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 2.—(Special.)—Knitting among women of the university, as elsewhere, is the rage this year. A useful, patriotic rage, but nevertheless the rage, and nearly every woman in the university is knitting for a soldier, be he sweetheart, brother, father or just plain friend.

Wherever one may turn on the campus their eyes behold skeins of yarn dwindling before the attack of clicking needles that convert the soft, warm threads of various colors into socks, sweaters, neck scarfs, mittens and other articles which will make the cold, dreary days of Army and Navy service a little more comfortable for the boys who have gone from the university. In classrooms the professors have raised their tone of voice that the lecture hour may serve a double purpose and the knitting goes on. Even active participation in the verbal process of "rooting" at football games has come into vogue among the co-eds; their hands are too busy for clapping.

SCHOOLS WILL SEE SLIDES

Educational Films Will Be Sent to Rural Districts of State.

UNIVERSITY OF OREGON, Eugene, Oct. 20.—(Special.)—Sets of educational slides, films and exhibits for schools and rural communities of Oregon, to be handled through the extension division of the University, is one of the lines of public service upon which the department of social welfare is now at work. The first set of slides has already been sent out, and others are ready to begin their journey over the state.

The slide and film service is available to any school that is equipped with a lantern for showing them.

He was pastor at the Greenlake Church, Seattle, for four years and has been in Medford two years. His stop in Portland is made en route from Seattle where he was visiting friends, to his home in Medford. Mr. Hogg will speak at 11 A. M. on "The Dynamics of the Gospel" and at 7:30 P. M. on "Profit and Loss."
