

WAR STAMPS TO GO ON SALE TOMORROW

H. D. Marshall, of National Committee, in Portland to See Start of Campaign.

STATE SHARE $17,000,000

OF $19,000,000,000 to Be Raised by Congress, This Method Is Expected to Provide $2,000,000,000—Children Will Assist.

H. D. Marshall, representing the National war savings committee, arrived in Portland over the Union Pacific line yesterday and is devoting his energies to furtherance of the campaign for the sale of war savings certificates and thrift stamps, which opens throughout the Nation tomorrow.

Mr. Marshall comes from Washington and is associated with Frank A. Vanderlip, chairman of the new Government savings committee. Explaining the recently devised plan of raising war funds and teaching thrift at the same time, Mr. Marshall said:

"Congress arranged to raise $19,000,000,000 within a year, $2,000,000,000 of which was to be obtained by the sale of war savings certificates and thrift stamps. There are six Federal districts. E. C. Bradley is in charge of seven Western states. Each state has a state director, the director for Oregon being C. S. Jackson. The state director will appoint a chairman for each county, as well as the rest of the staff.

Big Men Give Time.
"One of the inspiring things about this work is that all over the country the highest-priced men obtainable are volunteering their services for this work without pay. Oregon is to raise $17,000,000, and I am perfectly confident that you will be able to raise your quota. Every incorporated bank in the United States is agent for these savings stamps. In addition to this, 55,000 postoffices will have the stamps on sale; every letter carrier and every rural carrier in the United States will also be a salesman. I believe that Oregon will be able to place these stamps on sale at practically every store in the state.

"Primarily, of course, the object is to raise $2,000,000,000, but, in my mind, an equally important thing is to let every man, woman and child in the United States buy these certificates and thus become a stockholder in the United States. What we need to do here in Oregon is to conduct a campaign of education, and there will be no trouble about interesting the people. I have been in Oregon before and I know how loyal is your citizenship, as proved by your past performance. One thing I want to impress upon the public, particularly upon the merchants, and that is that saving will not hurt business.

School Children to Help.
"The greatest factor in the success of this campaign for interesting the public in the purchase of war savings certificates will be the public school children. Saving is not a sporadic action; it is a matter of slow growth and of hard work. It requires a campaign of education to teach the public thrift and to show them the folly of waste. Any man or woman in these days who will waste food or anything else willfully is a liability to the public enemy and is indirectly helping the Kaiser. Frank A. Vanderlip, the chairman of this committee, says that if we can put this campaign across it will change our National life and will result in the building up of a body of 20,000,000 savers."

Mr. Marshall will be at the Hotel Portland for the next three days. He is planning to address the bankers in the city Monday morning at 10 o'clock and to speak at the members' council at the Chamber of Commerce Monday at noon.

Sale Begins Tomorrow.
The sale of war savings certificate stamps and thrift stamps will open tomorrow at all postoffices and banks of the city. Two methods of acquiring the certificate stamps are open to the intending purchaser, depending on the amount he has to invest. If he has $4.12 or multiples of this sum he may purchase the certificate stamps directly, getting each one at this price any time prior to December 31. On his investment he will receive 4 per cent interest, compounded quarterly, on January 1, 1923, obtaining $5 for each stamp held until that time.

Children and smaller investors will acquire the savings certificates by purchasing thrift stamps at 25 cents apiece. With the first thrift stamp the investor will get free a card to which the sticker is to be affixed. The card bears 16 spaces to be covered with that number of 25-cent stamps. The card thus has a value of $4. Upon the payment of an additional 12 cents and presentation of the card the investor will get the savings certificate stamp any time during the remainder of this year. After the first of the year the cash payment will be 12 cents and this will increase by a penny at intervals throughout the sale.

It is provided that no person may purchase the certificate stamp for an amount greater than $100 at any one time and that $1000 is the maximum an individual may hold.

City and rural mail carriers and all other postal employees are authorized to assist in the sale of the new stamps and are primed to give any information desired.

WIFE SUES HER HUSBAND

Pair on Good Terms, but Estelle Clarke Wants $500.

All is peace and tranquility about the family friends of Jason and Estelle Clarke, husband and wife, according to counsel for Mrs. Clarke, but the wife was compelled to make her husband a joint defendant with her brother-in-law, William Clarke, in a suit filed yesterday in the Circuit Court in which she seeks $500 alleged to be due her for farm labor, including "chores," cooking for ranch hands and milking cows.

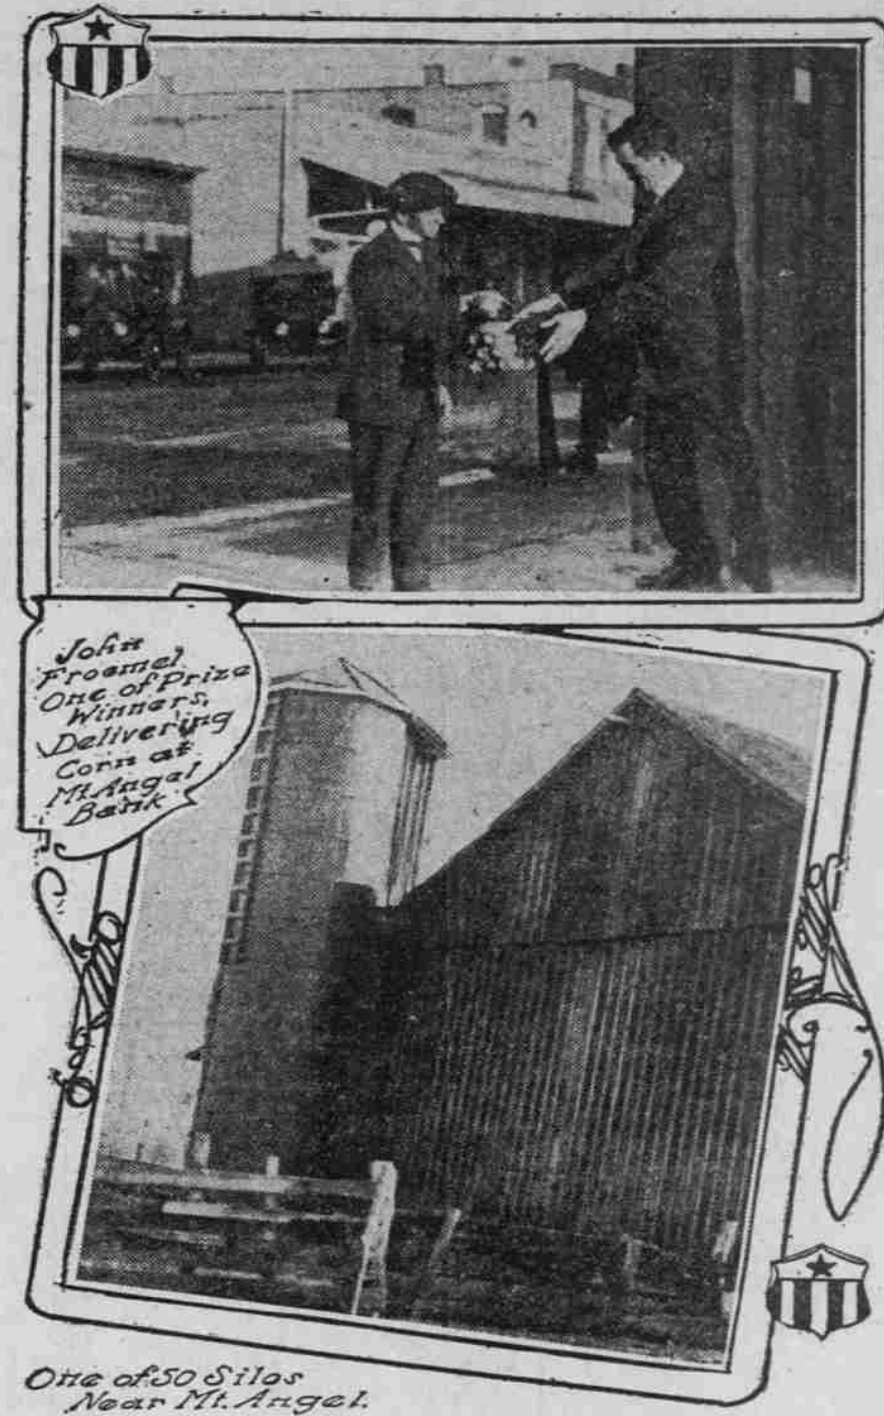

The Clarke brothers conduct a dairy and ranch in partnership. Mrs. Clarke maintains she had worked for them since April, 1912, but has received no compensation. The husband, it is said, is more than willing to pay his wife the wages she alleges to be due, but the brother's vigorous protest resulted in the matter being brought into court for adjudication.

Apartment-House Is Damaged.

Stephenson Court, an apartment-house at 515 Mill street, was damaged by fire and water early yesterday morning to the extent of $500. E. D. Timms, manager of the house, said the fire started from a defective fuse. The property is owned by Mrs. M. Timms, of 378 East Thirty-sixth street North.

MOUNT ANGEL CORN SHOW EVIDENCES PROSPERITY

Joseph J. and Alois Weber, Bankers, Largely Responsible for Quick Development and Flourishing Condition of One of Oregon's Corn Shows.

One of 50 Silos Near Mt. Angel.

BY ADDISON BENNETT.

THE managers of the Mount Angel Bank, Joseph J. and Alois Keber, came from Southern Minnesota, and they can remember when there was no corn grown in that section. "This is not a corn country," they have often heard their neighbors say. But now that whole section is given over to corn, and it is the chief product of the Minnesota farms. The Messrs. Keber came to Marion County about nine years ago they were told the same thing as was told in Minnesota less than a generation ago. But the Kebers are of the "show me" brand of citizens, and they began to preach the doctrine of corn, hogs and silos. And they are pretty good preachers.

First they started the campaign at St. Paul, Marion County, where they were interested in banking. Later they went to Mount Angel, where they took charge of the Bank of Mount Angel. That was some nine years ago. The bank then had deposits of $40,000; on the 11th of September, the date of the last call, the deposits amounted to $401,209.52. That growth in deposits about shows the growth or advancement of the country tributary to Mount Angel. This section is very small, for with Woodburn on one side, Salem on another, and Silverton very close on the other, the Mount Angel people have to put up some good argument to get and maintain business.

Generally speaking there is no better farming land in Oregon than that lying adjacent to Mount Angel. Speaking in the same terms there is no section in Oregon improving more rapidly than that. While this advancement has not all been due to the preachments of the Messrs. Keber, still they and the bank they manage has done its full share in the uplift. First they began on the dairy business. They knew the silo to be the greatest of all assets for the man keeping cows, and they found but a few scattering silos in that vicinity. So they made an offer to loan any farmer money to build a silo at 5 per cent interest, and they began to preach the doctrine of more cows, more hogs and more silos—and all the time more corn.

As a result there are now 50 silos within four and one-half miles of Mount Angel, 30 of which were erected

LECTURES START SOON

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION IS TOPIC FOR REED PROFESSOR.

Two Extension Courses of Portland College Will Be Conducted at Central Library.

Of timely interest will be the lectures on the International organization, a part of the Reed College extension courses, which will begin this week at Library Hall, Central Library. The lectures will be held Wednesday at 8 o'clock. The first one will be given on December 5 by Professor Paul H. Douglas, instructor in sociology, and Professor Robert D. Leigh, instructor in government, will assist. This series will be followed by a course of four lectures by Professor Douglas on "How to Pay for the War."

Another new Reed College extension course, that will begin this week, is a series of eight lectures on "Investing and Financing New Industries," which will be given by Hudson B. Hastings, professor of applied economics Tuesday at 8 o'clock in the Story Hour room of the Central Library. The subject of the lectures are as follows:

December 4, "New Industries for the Northwest"; December 11, "Location of Plant"; December 18, "Analysis of Products"; January 2, "Analysis of Markets"; January 9, "Sales Policies"; January 15, "Marketing Methods"; January 22, "Physical Site, Environment and Design of Building"; January 29, "Financing of Industry."

ALBANY OFFICERS NAMED

C. H. Burggraf Re-elected Head of Charities Organization.

ALBANY, Or., Dec. 1.—(Special).—Charles H. Burggraf has been re-elected since last Spring, but only three of them on money borrowed from the bank. During the last half of 1907 and the first half of 1908 the Mount Angel bank cashed cream checks to the amount of $12,000; during the last 12 months they have cashed them to the amount of $155,000. Those figures show that the dairy business is advancing wonderfully fast.

East Saturday the Mount Angel bank gave a corn show. They distributed a lot of seed corn last year and this year, and the Kebers wished to see how the farmers were progressing. So they offered a number of prizes for the best single ears, best ten ears, and best 100 ears. There were 73 separate exhibits. The judge was Professor J. E. Larson, of Oregon Agricultural College, and he not only judged the corn and made the awards but told the farmers the various hows, whys and wherefores of the game. Professor Larson surely understands the corn game and knows how to explain it from seed selection down to husking.

The prize winners were as follows: Ten-ear lot, first, E. G. Wiesner, second, Joseph Walker, third, Ole Dahl; fourth, John Froemel; fifth, Ole Sater. Single ears, E. G. Wiesner, first; Ole Dahl, second; A. Oersinner, third. One hundred-ear lots, E. G. Wiesner, first; Mrs. Alta Nicholson, second.

It was a fine lot of corn. Considering that there was but a trifling amount of seed to be had suited to that section last Spring, the showing was wonderful. Every grain entered at the show will be grabbed up for seed next Spring, and the Messrs. Keber have purchased some of the best lots grown near there but not at the show. This will be given away in amounts sufficient to plant an acre or more, so the show next Fall will be several times larger than the one this year.

The bankers will also continue to talk cows, hogs and silos, and will finance any desirable citizens of that section wishing to embark in the dairy business. They have seen their section grow wonderfully during the last few years. But they are not satisfied, never will be satisfied until every brush lot is cleared, every acre of land fenced and ditched—and until every settler in their territory has a few cows a broad sow or two and at least one silo.

ed president of the Associated Charities of Albany and other officers were re-elected as follows: Dr. George H. Young, vice-president; W. A. Eastburn, secretary, and Dan Johnston, treasurer. All of these officers were chosen when the Associated Charities was formed a year ago.

In addition to these officers the following have been chosen to serve on the advisory committee: J. S. Van Winkle, John R. Hulbert, Mrs. R. D. Snell, Henry Lyons and Dr. A. P. Howells.

Teachers' Institute Successful.

ALBANY, Or., Dec. 1.—(Special).—After a successful session of three days, the annual joint teachers' institute of Linn and Benton counties, which opened in this city Monday morning, closed Wednesday night. The institute, characterized as one of the best ever held here, was in charge of Ida Maxwell Cummings, County School Superintendent of Linn County, and R. C. Cannon, County School Superintendent of Benton County.

BIG POULTRY SHOW OPENS TOMORROW

Portland Exhibit Likely to Be Most Important in Country This Year.

COMPETITION TO BE KEEN

Food Conservation Will Be Feature of Display and New Methods of Feeding to Save Grain Will Be Demonstrated.

Two thousand birds and animals, including chickens, ducks, geese, turkeys, rabbits, cavies and pigeons—some of the fanciest in the West—will make up this year's poultry and pet stock show, which opens tomorrow at the Public Auditorium under the auspices of the Oregon Poultry and Pet Stock Association. The show will continue all week.

It is the crowning event of the Oregon association, this year's exhibit in the spacious Auditorium having been looked forward to for several years past. All the elements have combined to aid the association in making it such. Seattle has given up its show, Oakland has reduced its show to a small affair, and therefore fanciers throughout the United States have concentrated on Portland.

Entries have been made by 400 poultry and pet stock raisers. They have shipped their choicest stock from all the important poultry centers to compete for the $1500 in cash prizes offered by the state and the special prizes of various kinds offered by specialty clubs, many of which, in addition to offering the egg-laying exhibits, have arranged for their annual meetings in Portland during the week.

Food conservation will be the main features of the show aside from the animals themselves. War conditions have hit the poultry people hard because of the high prices of feed and the consequent necessity of selecting new, economical methods of feeding without sacrificing the egg-laying qualities. Exhibits at the show demonstrate the latest thoughts along this line.

Judging of the entries will be started soon after the opening of the show tomorrow morning. Prizes will be awarded according to the judges' estimate of their work. Owing to the vast field entered this year, competition will be keen.

This year will be the largest in the West and perhaps the most important in the United States. The space at the Auditorium is such that the exhibits can be made on a scale never before possible. Officials in charge of the show have been busy for a week past completing the details so the show can open promptly tomorrow morning in completed form.

Lewiston Farms Benefited.

LEWISTON, Idaho, Dec. 1.—(Special).—A warm rain has been falling here for the past 36 hours, and the ranchers are looking forward to a splendid stand of winter wheat on account of it. There is considerable plowing to be done in this section just before the present weather is welcomed by practically every rancher.

THREE MAY BE CANDIDATES

Weeks, Brown and La Follette Considered for Marion Posts.

SALEM, Or., Dec. 1.—(Special).—Three fruit men, George Weeks, Sam H. Brown and Senator A. M. La Follette, are considered as possible candidates for the State Senate from this county. The terms of Senators Bishop and La Follette expire with the next Legislature. It is not known whether Senator Bishop will be a candidate for re-election, although it is considered possible.

Senator La Follette, during his two sessions in the Upper House, has attained considerable reputation as a watchdog of the treasury. Both George Weeks and Sam Brown have had legislative experience, serving in the House of Representatives.
