DRAFT BOARD ASKS RELATIVES TO AID

Where Questionnaires Have Been Sent to Enlisted Men Board Wants to Know.

PUBLICITY CAN BE AVOIDED

Chairman of Portland District Board Urges Persons Who Know Where Questionnaire Is Sent to Army Man, Tell Board.

Relatives and friends who wish to escape the humiliation of seeing the names of enlisted men in whom they are interested announced and posted as delinquents by the war registration officials received urgent warning yesterday to take the simple steps necessary to prevent such seeming disgrace.

Chairman Dan Malarkey, of the Portland district draft board, and various exemption board chairmen made statements intended to warn and guide the parent or relative who knows that a questionnaire has been mailed to a member of their family at the old Portland address.

"It takes very little trouble on the part of the relative," explained Mr. Malarkey, "to keep the record straight with reference to men who have enlisted. We are now advising that relatives receiving questionnaires intended for a member of the family who has enlisted open the envelope and then proceed to the proper division board or in the general exemption headquarters in room 145 at the Courthouse.

Procedure Is Easy.

"It will take hardly two minutes for the relative to fill out the blanks on page 1 of the questionnaire necessary to authorize the exemption board to place the enlisted man in division D of Class II. By filling these blanks and filing an affidavit, it is assured that the exemption board will assign the young man at once, without awaiting further data, to his proper class. This takes him from Class I and forestalls any possibility that he may be posted for failure to return his questionnaire on time.

"In cases where the relative has already forwarded the unopened questionnaire, mailing to the soldier boy, it is especially urgent that this relative visit the exemption board and file the statements. The boards have supplies duplicating page 1 of the questionnaire and these will be used instead of the questionnaire itself in such cases."

From Mr. Malarkey's statement it should be clear that the enlisted man is at once properly classified as such by the exemption board, just as quickly as a relative, accredited friend, or even a former employer files the necessary records, with which the exemption boards are all supplied. The matter of forwarding the questionnaire that the enlisted man may have his history placed in the selective service files becomes, after the affidavits have been filed, merely a formality, technically necessary as a matter of record.

Lists Are Prepared.

Nearly all of the exemption boards are now engaged in preparing lists showing the names of men who have not responded to the questionnaire call. These names are first left with the police officers of the proper district and a five-day search to discover information regarding the missing man is made. At the end of this period, if the man has not been located, his name is turned over to the Governor and the Adjutant-General.

If there is any reason whatever for thinking that the man may have enlisted in the Nation's service a careful search of records both in the Adjutant-General's office and the military records at Washington is made. If this effort is made and the man is not found to be among those who have enlisted the Federal authorities take up search for him as a slacker.

Exemption board No. 7 yesterday gave out the names of six men who have not returned questionnaires mailed to them December 17 and 18.

The delinquents reported by this board, with the addresses to which their questionnaires were mailed, are: Arthur W. Ingman, 394 Monroe street; Harry August Schaecher, 734 East Seventeenth street North; Dan Piddock, 45 East Eighty-second street; Carl Nicholas Burgard, 885 East Seventh street North; Charles Ikuye Omori, 949 East Sixty-fifth street; David Everett Newsom, 201 Hazel Fern place, all of Portland.

Conference Is Held.

Friday night exemption board chairmen and workers held a long conference, at which Mr. Malarkey explained most of the points that have been troubling those handling the answered questionnaires and working on classifications of registrants. A message received from the Provost Marshal-General explaining that classification notices need not be mailed until seven days after a questionnaire has been returned, and in other ways relieving the strain under which the classifiers have been laboring, was read at the conference.

Announcement was made yesterday by advisers of division boards Nos. 5, 6 and 8, who maintain a joint headquarters at 271 Pine street, in the Multnomah Hotel, that their headquarters will be kept open today from 2 until 9 P. M. This leaves but one or two advisory boards which may not be consulted today, at least during afternoon hours, by registrants having questionnaires they must fill out.

The twelfth mailings of questionnaires went forward yesterday to the men here listed:

RULING DISCUSSED

Anti-Conspiracy Decision Is Topic of Employers.

ALL-CRITICISM CUT OUT

Secretary-Manager McCusker, of Association, Discusses at Length Action of Supreme Court in Invalidating Ordinance.

Although dissatisfied with the Supreme Court decision holding invalid the so-called anti-conspiracy ordinance enacted by the voters of this city, the Employers' Association of this city has not taken any definite action towards starting further legislation on the same subject.

While not disposed to criticise the Supreme Court, officers of the association are by no means reconciled to the soundness of the rulings upon which the adverse decision as to the ordinance was based.

Discussing the opinion of the Supreme Court yesterday, Thomas McCusker, secretary-manager of the Employers' Association, made the following statement:

"I have read in the papers what purports to be the decision of the Supreme Court on the so-called 'anti-picketing ordinance.'

"One sentence reads: 'The ordinance, however, not only denounces picketing, but includes voluntary abandonment of employment by workingmen acting together, and the two are so woven together as to make the entire act void.'

"In my opinion it requires a long stretch of the imagination to read into the ordinance any possible suggestion that it contains the remotest hint of an attempt to prevent men from quitting their employment, either singly or in groups.

Right Generally Conceded.

"Everyone concedes that men have this right and no one but a fool would attempt to legislate against it, as it must be patent to anyone with common sense that involuntary service is dear at any price and is not conducive to either efficiency or loyalty.

"I am unable to find anything in the ordinance on which such an opinion could be based. The definition given of a conspiracy, under sub-division (a) wherein it reads: 'Not to buy from or sell to, or have dealings with any person in the city of Portland,' it is said was construed by the court to mean that men could not agree to strike. Yet this is taken word for word from Section 2176 of Lord's Oregon Laws, and has been in effect since 1889, and no one has attempted to use it to prevent strikes, as it was not intended then for that purpose, is not so intended now, and as a matter of fact, will not do so, notwithstanding the construction placed upon it by the Supreme Court because if the complete definition is read, the phrase 'have dealings with' is qualified as follows: 'for the purpose or with the intent to prevent any person from employing any person, or for the purpose or with the intent to compel or force any person to employ or discharge from his employment, etc.'

"This is also a part of Section 2176, and I reiterate that it has not the remotest relation to men leaving their employment, either voluntarily or otherwise.

Strike Law in Statute Books.

"It may be of interest, however, to know that according to the court, there is a law on the statute books that does inhibit strikes, and that such law was not placed there through the efforts of the Employers' Association, but it remained for the Supreme Court to place such construction on the law when we sought to convert a statute into an ordinance, making a conspiracy of what is a misdemeanor under the statute.

"The court said that it would not be against public policy to legislate against picketing, and yet no one ever heard of a successful strike without the picket line and the intimidation and violence attendant thereto.

"It is further said that this ordinance was an invasion of the people's constitutional rights. I cannot refrain from quoting from the decision of the Supreme Court of Alabama when it declared against 'peaceful picketing.' It said:

"'If one person claims the constitutional right to prevent another from conducting a lawful business, what is to become of that other's unquestioned constitutional right to pursue his business in a lawful manner? It would seem that in these claims of constitutional rights no consideration is given to the other fellow.'

Criticism Is Disavowed.

"I have no desire to, and do not presume to, criticise the Supreme Court, nor would I make any comments on the court's decision, except that it is used by certain papers as an excuse to reflect upon the integrity of the business men, who sought relief from a contemptible persecution, and I resent the reflection upon the intelligence of the law-abiding citizens who voted to pass this ordinance, which under other circumstances these same papers would say was 'the will of the people.'

"The appeal, as I understand it, was based on the theory that under the general grant of police powers to the city of Portland, it had no right to enact such legislation, and that it would require a special grant by the Legislature to confer such powers—but from the decision, as I am able to grasp it, we are not enlightened on this phase of the case, but instead are charged with attempting, under a false premise, to invade the rights of the working man.

Ordinance Designed to Protect.

"As a matter of fact, this ordinance was intended to protect the people against an invasion of their rights by a class who use the picket line for the purpose of intimidation and violence, as picketing was created for these purposes only, and since the passage of this ordinance, notwithstanding that there have been some serious strikes, there has been less violence than ever before.

"It would seem also, that since no attempt was made to use this ordinance to prevent strikes, it is pretty good evidence that it was not intended for such purpose and did not contain any such powers, the Supreme Court to the contrary notwithstanding."

WAR TALES ARE REAL

MESSAGE COMING TO OREGON DIRECT FROM TRENCHES.

Canadian Officers Wounded on Firing Line Will Appear Under Auspices of Council of Defense.

A message to America direct from the front-line trenches in France will be given to Portland at a patriotic mass meeting at the Public Auditorium Sunday, January 6, at 3 P. M. The message will be delivered by Major S. B. Edwards and Captain T. J. Leduc, Canadian officers, who have been wounded in action and who are to make a tour of Oregon at the request of General R. G. E. Leckie, commander of the 11th military division of the Canadian forces.

This is the first time men who have fought and been wounded in action have come to Oregon in an official military capacity. Both men were so badly wounded that they could not return to the fighting. Major Edwards can get around only with the assistance of a military orderly.

The party will arrive in Portland next Saturday, and will remain until Sunday night, when they will leave for a tour of the state. They expect to speak in every county in the state. The meeting in Portland will be under the auspices of the State Council of Defense and the Portland War Emergency Council. The meeting will be free and no collection or pledges of any sort will be taken.

Mayor Baker yesterday appointed the following committee to have charge of arrangements for the meeting: David N. Mosessohn, C. P. Howard, Frank L. Maguire, Miss Jessie McGregor, Miss Ida V. Jontz. The tour of the state will be under the auspices of the State Council of Defense.

NEW YEAR'S GALA DAY

AUDITORIUM OPEN FROM 3 P. M. TO MIDNIGHT.

Representative Johnson Will Speak on War Conditions in France—Soldiers Will Be Honored Guests.

New Year's day will be another day for soldiers in Portland. The Municipal Auditorium will be thrown open from 3 o'clock in the afternoon to midnight, with a brief intermission in dancing at 8 o'clock, for the address on the war conditions in France, by Albert Johnson, Representative in Congress from Washington.

All soldiers in uniform will be the honored guests, and the women and girls of Portland are invited to be at the Auditorium at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. They may bring civilian escorts, but the civilian men are asked, as a matter of courtesy, to give the men in uniform the floor and the dances.

The dancing will be continuous from 3 to 8 o'clock. At that hour Mr. Johnson will speak, after which the dancing and merrymaking will continue to midnight. As nearly as possible the festivities of Christmas day at the Auditorium will be repeated.
