modeling is still the outstanding feature and his support is good. Bernard and Merritt are a duo of pretty girls who play the piano, accordeon and saxophone expertly and sing a little. Agility in soft shoe and eccentric dancing is displayed by Johnnie Kenny and Ruby La France, who will demonstrate their lung power and endurance along with their pedal dexterity. The picture for Sunday will be June Elvidge in "The Tenth Case." The story deals with most unusual situations.

POTASH & PERLMUTTER BACK

Popular Comedy Will Be Given at Baker Theater All This Week.

Back to the Baker comes the most popular firm of fun dispensers on the stage, "Potash and Perlmutter." The play was made from the widely-read stories in the Saturday Evening Post by Montague Glass. It was produced by the Alcazar Players at the Baker last year and was a tremendous sensation, playing to houses that tested the capacity of the theater at every performance.

Starting this afternoon, the play will again hold the Baker boards for the week, with Edward Everett Horton as Perlmutter and George Taylor in his former successful role of Abe Potash. The production will have all the dash and excitement, the comedy and pathos of former occasions, with the two partners in the cloak and suit business wrangling and fighting from morning till night over business details, but ever ready to do an act of kindness or melt in the face of someone's else misfortune.

The play deals with the affair of the Russian exile, the incident of the book agent, Rosie's extravagances and card playing and the head sifter, Miss Cohen, who afterwards marries Mawruss Perlmutter. They are all interwoven into a plot of genuine heart interest, with comic sidelights. The play has been one of the most popular on the boards.

Ruth Gates will again be seen as Miss Ruth Goldman and Lora Rogers as Rosie, Abe's wife. Special stress will be laid on the living model scene and arrangements have been completed with Liebes & Co. to show late fashions on professional models, which will give the first act the appearance of a genuine fashion show. Matinees will be given today, Wednesday and Saturday.

LYRIC PRESENTS "ROUNDERS"

Mike and Ike Have Funny Roles in Musical Comedy Success.

"The Rounders" goes on the boards at the Lyric this afternoon for the week. In it our two old friends, Mike and Ike, are up against it again. Both have been caught in a gambling raid on the Young Men's Temperance Club, have spent the night in jail, and are now under bail to appear in court for trial.

It's a sad day, especially for Ike, who has all arrangements made to marry a widow in the afternoon. She is a widow who hates gambling and all rounders, therefore if she discovers the plight of her betrothed the wedding will be all off.

Mike and Ike have given fictitious names at the police station, but are hotly pursued by the law, and the schemes they fix to escape judgment and disgrace are full of humor. Ike finally hits on the excuse that he has been called away to war, just has time to rush the wedding through, when in comes the Constable and grabs him. Mike escapes, but as he had no wedding to interfere it didn't make much difference, anyway.

The whole show, with all the clever and lib of those two popular comedians,

Ben Dillon and Al Franks, and the big musical numbers with the Rosebud chorus make "The Rounders" a joy forever. Among the song hits will be "They're All Going Into the Movies," "Over the Hills to Mary" and "Sierra Sue."

There is a Lyric matinee every day with continuous evening performances starting at 7:30. "Country Store" (added feature) Tuesday night and chorus girls' contest Friday.

STRAND OFFERS MANY THRILLS

In "Bucking Broadway," Cowboys Invade Roof Garden.

The invasion of a New York roof garden resort by a squad of cowboys and a fight 20 stories in the air are two of the outstanding features of "Bucking Broadway," the latest Universal picture starring Harry Carey, which comes to the Strand Theater today.

"Bucking Broadway" with five acts of promising vaudeville, comprises the latest "photoville" offering of the popular Strand. Carey is one of the most popular, if not the leading, film player in the regard of Strand patrons, and his latest picture is said to be the most exciting in which he has yet appeared. It is one of those tales of the invasion of the East by the West in which comedy is blended with "punch" in a delightful manner.

The climax of the picture is a fight which takes place on the top of a huge hotel. The villain of the story has turned the head of Harry's girl, and the cowpuncher hero learns of her presence at a supper at the roof garden cafe. Phoning for his pals, who are at the stockyards with a consignment of horses, Harry dashes joyously into the fray, and engages a dozen men at once.

Tables, chairs and dishes go crashing to the floor, and when the cowboys arrive the scene of destruction is almost indescribable. In the course of the fight Harry is knocked over the edge of a balcony and falls 15 feet to the floor. His assailants jump down after him, one of them landing right on top of him. When the scene was over Cary discovered that the impact had resulted in a fractured rib.

The vaudeville bill includes McMahon and Shomer in "A Vaudeville Oddity," including singing, talking, dancing and novelty bag punching; Floyd and McDonald, a comedy skit labeled "A Lesson in Flirtation"; the Marlowes, in an European novelty, "The Fairy and the Dragon"; Charles Varley, character change comedian, and Mac and McCrae, entertainers.

'CINDERELLA MAN' TO BE NEXT

Alcazar Players Will Present Pleasing Play in Near Future.

The thing that appeals to young and old alike in the old fairy tale of Cinderella is the romance of it and that is just the reason why "The Cinderella Man," which will be seen here for the first time when the Alcazar Players offer it at the Baker for the week starting next Sunday matinee, has been such a wonderful success. It was inspired by the reading of the fairy tale. In this case the man is very poor and it is a reverse case of the Princess going to him in his miserable little attic, bringing with her sunshine and happiness, with a big door opening out into the future filled with the promise of love and the rainbow of prosperity on the horizon.

Some have called "The Cinderella Man" better than "Peg o' My Heart." It ran a whole year at the Hudson Theater in New York City and has just been released for stock. Portland theater-goers have something to look forward to in its coming to the Baker.
