Vailure of Sixth Team to Enter League Will Make Necessary the Dropping of one Town Now Anxious to Be in Circuit.

BY JAMES J. RICHARDSON. Judge McCredle is patiently waiting to hear from President Blewett, of the Pacific Coast International League, o his special emistary, Bob Brown, of Vancouver, wno was delegated to visit Butte and find out from the directors and fans of the mining town whether or not they would place a team in the recently organized Pacific Coast International League to represent the Montana metropolis.

The continued alience which has en-Northwest has somewhat mystified the Portland owner, who is always up and going like a real baseball mogul ought

Something is evidently topay-turvy is Butte. Previous to the league meeting it was ammoured in dispatches from Seattle that the two Montana cities. Butte and Great Falls, would be reprematte and oreal rails, would be repre-sented at the league meeting. When the day of the scheduled pow-wow ar-rived the Montana representatives failed to put in an appearance. For three long days and nights the mag-nates discussed the future of the league maies discussed the future of the league and other business matters and still the Montana delegates failed to drop in at the meeting or send any reason for their "carelesaness" or "oversight." There is a nigger in the woodpile somewhere. The Montana baseball people must have informed someone in Seattle that they would be on hand, because the news of their agreeing to attend the league meeting emanated from Seattle. If they were shoure in their atatements and then fell down at the last minute—what is the reason?

Judge McCredle, when asked the the last minute—what is the reason?
Judge McCredle, when asked the organization wants to remain a six-

If Bob Brown fails to inject enough juzz into the Montana baseball people to get them into the league the circuit will most likely dwindle to four clubs. There are five cities who actually want baseball, and the next meeting of the league is very apt to develop some exciting politics if a vote is called for to place the skids under one of the five cities now anxious to remain in the Awaking to the fact that baseliall in the Northwest has an excellent change of having a pretty good senson, the good fans of the Northern Mentana village are kleking themselves for allowing the franchise to slip from their grasp. And what's more, they want to get back in the swim again.

Reports from the two cities seem to indicate that the directors made a boot when they dropped Great Falls and retained Butte, for now Butte is assuming an "I should worry" attitude, while Great Falls is clamoring for baseball again. The northern town was always a great baseball city and it may come about that Great Falls will be made a present of their forfeited franchise.

The live always wanted to see the Montana cities in the league," Bleweit said today, "I can say that it is not improbable that Great Falls my relight the circuit, although nothing whatever has been done officially in the matter. Newspaper "stories from Mentans indicate that Great Falls is much more eager to see baseball than is Rutte. I think that there is a very good chance for the directors reconsidering their action of dropping Great Falls.
