In her introduction, Mrs. White says: In nor introduction, Mrz. While says: We are in the midst of a titanic straggle symbolized by the word democracy. When this symbol passes current among us do we have a clear realization of what it stand for? Is it, to our minds, self-government? Is it popular suffrage? Is it equality in the iaw, in opportunity, in respectability? Is it seefal justice? Is democracy an objective ideal? Is it a state of mind? Is it char-aster? No dream of mankind has been more pre-clean, no vision more tenderly and eleguent. Parent-Teacher Programmes Meetings Are Constructive and Are Well Planued.

THIS is a message to all parentteacher members.

No dream of mankind has been more pre-cious no vision more tenderly and eloquent-ly fastered, than that of democracy. Gov-symmetics have embodied its principles, in some degree, the Christian Church strove to realize its justice, essayists and law-givers have expressed its aims and methods, seers have created imagined states where perfect freedom ruled, puets have been inspired to their noblest atterances by the vision of a new world based on human brotherhood. Today half the world is dying for the sake of the ideal which men strive to realize in democratic government. Do you realize that you are getting some splendid programmes? They are given by experts, by interesting speakers, by men and women who make a specialty of the line on which they speak. If your neighbors aren't attendng the meetings, get them to do so. To show a decided interest in the children and the school assures co-
