LETTERS AND STORIES FROM OREGON MEN TELL OF BIG WAR

Portland Youth Writes of Christmas Arguments

People of Venice More Friendly...

Mrs. B. E. Brown, the March Postmaster, received several letters from her son, who is in the army. She refers to him as "my son" in the letters, and mentions that he is doing well and is enjoying himself.

The letter is a personal account of the Christmas season in Venice, Italy, where her son is stationed. She describes the festivities, the food, and the people she met. She also mentions the challenges of being away from home during the holidays and the importance of staying connected with loved ones.

Central Powers Literally Starving Now

Dr. Charles V. Worth, formerly of the U.S. Navy, has written from the Central Powers area. He describes the conditions in the area as desperate, with many people suffering from hunger and illness. He mentions the lack of supplies and the difficulty of providing aid to the local population.

The letter provides a firsthand account of the situation in the Central Powers area and highlights the ongoing conflict and its impact on the civilian population.

Appreciation of Y. M. C. A. Work Expresses

Mr. R. L. Alexander recently received a letter from a soldier expressing his appreciation for the work of the Y.M.C.A. in providing comfort and support to the troops.

The letter is a touching account of the soldiers' struggles and the importance of the Y.M.C.A.'s work in providing them with a sense of home away from home.

Close Acquaintance With Gas Shell Described

A letter received from a soldier describes his close acquaintance with a gas shell, which has left him with permanent injuries.

The letter provides a detailed account of the soldier's experience with the gas shell and the psychological impact it has had on him.

U.S. Soldiers in France crave Music

Package Sent Soldiers Not Received, Says Officer

Captain Franklin B. Peck, commander of a regiment in France, has written to express his concern about the delivery of packages sent to his soldiers.

The letter highlights the importance of maintaining communication and connection with the soldiers, and the challenges of doing so in the midst of the war.

Trench Life Is Not All Work, Writes U.S. Soldier

Richard F. Tupper, a soldier in France, has written to describe his experience in the trenches, emphasizing that trench life is not all work.

The letter provides a detailed account of the soldiers' daily life, including their physical and emotional struggles.

Oregon and O. C. B. Boys Fraternize in France

Fraternity Society Forms an Old Boy Club

The University of Oregon has formed a fraternity society, the Old Boy Club, to provide a sense of community and brotherhood for its alumni in France.

The letter describes the history and goals of the club, and the importance of it in maintaining a sense of belonging and support.

Western Soldiers Make Hit, Says Eugene Boy

"Open Letters" From the Other Side

A letter received from an Oregon soldier describes the difficulties of communicating with troops from other countries.

The letter provides a glimpse into the challenges of communication and understanding during wartime.

Oregon City Nurse Serving During the War

Miss Alice Hare Wounded in Flanders

The letter describes the experiences of a nurse serving in the Flanders area, where she was wounded during the fighting.

The letter provides a firsthand account of the conditions in the area and the role of nurses in providing care and support to the soldiers.

Eugene Lad Writes From Tangiers River, China

In the Air Since Andy

The letter describes the experiences of a soldier serving in China, including his journey on an airship.

The letter provides a detailed account of the soldier's experiences in China, including his journey on an airship and his work with the military.

Y.M.C.A. Huts Win Warm Praise From Soldier Boys

The letter describes the experiences of a soldier serving in the United States, including his stay in a Y.M.C.A. hut.

The letter provides a firsthand account of the role of the Y.M.C.A. in providing comfort and support to the soldiers.