WASHINGTON, March 28—In an agreement that will be an act of arms between the war and a treaty of peace, the British and American Labor and National Labor organizations at this city today announced that they have entered into a service agreement in which each of the labor organizations, in accordance with their purposes, will strive to further the other's aims and objectives. The agreement provides that both organizations shall work together to promote the common interests of labor and the national welfare.

The agreement was announced by B. F. Haskins, secretary of the National Labor organization, and by J. M. Dyer, secretary of the American Labor organization.

The agreement is the result of the efforts of the two organizations to strengthen their mutual friendship and to cooperate in the interests of labor.

The agreement is an example of the spirit of cooperation and the desire for peace which is prevailing in this country.

The agreement is a step forward in the work of the two organizations to promote the welfare of labor in this country and to strengthen the bonds of friendship between the two countries.

The agreement is a demonstration of the value of cooperation in the interests of labor and the national welfare.
