Glenn Bailey, Aged 14, Has Caught 200 Rodents in Year and Finds Busi ness Is Profitable-Work Is Done With Ordinary Steel Trap.

-Glenn Bailey, aged 14, of Oakridge, is the champion mole catcher in Oregon. He began operations one year ago with four traps and to date has caught 200 moles. He has also destroyed a large number of digger squirrels and similar rodents, but of these he has kept no record. The importance of this boy's work is emphasized in a statement by County Agricultural Agent N. S. Robb to the offect that 200 moles will ruin a stand of legume pasture, like alfalfa or clover, on a 10-acre tract, where conditions are right. Mr. Robb says that such de-struction actually has been accom-plished on one farm near Junction City. The moles made runways throughout the field, and shrews, a small species of gopher, and field mice swarmed into the runways, accomplishing the destruction by gnawing away the plant there will be organized Wednesday afternoon at a special meeting called at the Portland Library the Home Defense Nursea. It is expected to enroll every graduate married nurse in Portland.

Portland is the first city in the United States to organize and it was upon the suggestion of a Portland woman visiting at Washington that the American Red Cross decided to carry on a National campaign to enroll murses for home defense work.

Those eligible are graduate registered or unregistered nurses, who for some reason are ineligible for military service, but who are able to render valuable service in connection with emergencies, including local disaster, all forms of visiting and instructive nursing, institutional work, with close cooperation with the home service sections of the American Red Cross.

Great fires, explosions and other forms of war disasters which have come to other cities, and may come to Portland, will thus be handled expeditiously and rapidly by the American Red Cross.
