

STAMP DRIVE IS ON

"Oregon First" Is Keynote of Committee in Charge.

UP-STATE COUNTIES BUSY

Washington Workers Expect Each Family to Buy $120 Worth of Stamps—Deschutes Asks Increase in Quota.

Each family in Washington County is expected to buy $120 worth of war savings stamps. This is the decision reached by the committee at its meeting held in Hillsboro. In addition to the family per capita the committee expects to have pledged 2 1/2 per cent of the assessed valuation of the county. Washington's quota in the war savings stamp drive is $33,440. Where there are non-resident taxpayers a special committee will take the matter up to see that these persons contribute their share of Washington County's quota on the 2 1/2 per cent basis.

How to work out the basic unit to raise the quota is a problem which county committees all over the state are struggling with. It is a simple matter to work out the quota on the per capita plan, but as there are many people who cannot pledge themselves to purchase this amount of stamps, others must buy more. It is this point which is causing some hard figuring. State school districts will have a quota compiled by the county committee.

Hood River Is Active. In every county there will be a special list of taxpayers, men and women of influence, who will be solicited to pledge themselves a certain amount—the limit—whenever possible.

In Hood River County an active advertising campaign has been started. A number of business concerns and banks have agreed to pay for special display advertising to bring the subject of war savings stamps home to the people.

Chairman Vaughan, of the Hood River committee, announces that that county has never failed to over-subscribe its allotment of liberty loans or other war activities and that it will not fail to make a similar showing with the stamps.

When the Marion County committee met 110 people were present to hear the instructions given by Assistant State Director C. N. Wagoner. Practically every school district in Marion County was represented.

Deschutes Asks Increase. To give the final touches to the organization in Deschutes County, Otto Hartwig left last night for Bend. This is the county which considered its quota too small and voluntarily increased its allotment by $55,000.

Under the direction of the speakers' bureau there will be a meeting of the Federal Service War Savings Club of Oregon at the Central Library Monday night at 8 o'clock. George W. Caldwell, chairman, has assigned George Arthur Brown as the principal speaker to outline the need of pledging to buy the stamps. Dr. J. D. Flanagan, of the La Grande hospital unit, which went to France with the Rainbow Division, will recount his personal experience in the war zone. Dr. Flanagan has been inactivated home. The general public is invited to attend this meeting.

The University Club has requested the services of Captain Templar-Powell for June 13, and this has been granted by the speakers' bureau.

WHITMAN BRIDGE PLANNED

Class of '08 to Erect Concrete Arch Across Campus Creek.

WHITMAN COLLEGE, Walla Walla, Wash., June 8.—(Special.)—The members of the class of 1908 have finished plans for the erection of a 75-foot concrete bridge across the creek which runs through the campus. This bridge will consist of a single arch and an approach of concrete steps leading down from Billings Hall, the science building. It will be completed in time for the 8th annual commencement, June 15 to 19.

OFFICERS OF CLASS THAT GRADUATED THURSDAY FROM ST. MARY'S ACADEMY.

Margaret Catherine Kern, President. Agnes Jessie Brooks, Vice-President.

Anna Marie Schmitt, Secretary. Marie Elizabeth Meyer, Treasurer.

The 5th annual graduating exercises of St. Mary's College and Academy were held Thursday night at the Lincoln High School. This was one of the largest classes in the history of the academy to receive diplomas.

The address to the class was given by Frank Lonergan, in which he told the young women of the possibilities which await them, since they have completed their work at the academy. Archbishop Christie presented the diplomas, giving a brief talk.

The spirit of patriotism was maintained throughout the exercises, which consisted of a number of varied musical selections. The principal musical feature was the story of the Liberty Bell, set to music by William Lester, and the words adapted by Frederick Martens from the original tale by Hawthorne.

Thirty-nine graduates received diplomas, having completed courses in the junior college department, normal department, music department, academic department, college preparatory, Latin course, modern languages course and the general course.

Class officers were as follows: President, Margaret Kern; vice-president, Agnes Brooks; treasurer, Marie Meyer, and secretary, Anna Smith.

FRIEND IS MOURNED

Dr. Stansfield Pays Tribute to Late C. W. Fairbanks.

TWO ONCE CLOSE FRIENDS

Portland Churchman, for Many Years Late Vice-President's Pastor, Knew Him as Clean, Straight, Honored Christian.

Among Portland people who are grieved at the passing of ex-Vice-President Charles W. Fairbanks is Dr. Joshua Stansfield, pastor of the First Methodist Church, who was formerly Mr. Fairbanks' pastor in Indianapolis. Rev. Mr. Stansfield recalled many interesting incidents of his association with the late Vice-President yesterday and said, among other things: "Yes, I was Mr. Fairbanks' pastor for 15 years and of course knew him and his family well. A man of strict probity and exemplary character both in his home at Indianapolis and in Washington—I knew him in both

I remember a Sunday night in his home at Washington while he was Vice-President. With a number of members of official Washington I had dinner at his home and after dinner—it being Sunday night—we gathered around the piano and for an hour or more old and familiar hymns were called for and sung. "Among these were 'Rock of Ages,' 'Jesus, Lover of My Soul,' 'Abide With Me' and 'Guide Me, O Thou Great Jehovah.' Speaker Cannon, I remember, said to me: 'Doctor, I am not noted for my piety, but there is nothing that so stirs me as these old hymns,' and I said: 'Well, Mr. Speaker, 'The book' says that God hath set eternity in our hearts and these old hymns find it there in the depths of the soul.'"

"Mr. Fairbanks was a man of judicial and fine mind and of remarkable executive ability. His library was one of the finest private libraries I have ever known. Always dignified and always stately and as straight in character as he was in physical form, he was sometimes accounted an 'old.' But, to those who knew him he was genial, cheery-hearted Fairbanks. For the last six years of my work with him Mr. Fairbanks was president of the Methodist Hospital at Indianapolis, while I was secretary. It was a hospital of more than a half million of property and one of the best equipped in all the Middle West. Under his presidency the hospital had a phenomenal growth. In this work in an executive way we came to know him intimately and at his best, as well as in his regular attendance upon and support of the church.

"He was a devout worshiper and a discriminating and helpful hearer of 'the word.' He, with his good wife, whom we buried about four years ago, and both graduates of one of our Methodist schools, we always regarded

(Frank Graham, who has just finished a comfortable dining-car breakfast, sits along the hotel of his cigar and discovers that the most at the most-sensitively man other than his able and sensible friend, Arthur Edwards, salesman.)

Just Where do You Get Off?

GRAHAM: Hello, Edwards! You on this trip—what's that bottle of yours on the window-sill?

EDWARDS: That—I'll tell you by asking you a question.

GRAHAM: (Amused) That's fair enough—go ahead.

EDWARDS: What was the first thing you ordered in the dining car this morning?

GRAHAM: Why, let's see—I needed a little mineral water, and—

EDWARDS: That's it! Mineral water! Well, this bottle here has made me see my last drop of mineral water! That's Nujol. You've seen it advertised, I guess.

GRAHAM: Sure. You troubled with constipation much?

EDWARDS: I'm not troubled with it at all, but I would be if it weren't for that bottle.

GRAHAM: Good, eh?

EDWARDS: Life insurance. I've been on the road a long time. You know, taking orders from a timetable. Well, I've got a good system, but it wrecked me. The hours, the fifty-seven different varieties of drinking water, the small-hotel food, all combined to make me careless about keeping clean inside. Then whenever my bowels didn't act regularly I took a pill or some salts, and pretty soon I had the habit.

GRAHAM: The habit?

EDWARDS: Yes. You know—the "gimme-something-for-constipation" habit; the druggist shoots you a glass of soda with some salts or a box of powerful laxatives. You get action, all right, you feel weak for a day, and next time you need a stronger dose. That habit cost me a three-months layoff.

GRAHAM: As serious as that, eh?

EDWARDS: Yes sir. The company had just taken on an examining doctor for the sales staff, and when my turn came for examination the doctor said, "You quit, right now, until you're well." "I'm not exactly sick, Doc," I said. "You're going to be awfully sick," he said, "if you don't do as I tell you. You've got a residue of food-waste in your large intestine; it's getting harder to dislodge every day, and what's more it's decaying and breeding disease germs that spread all through your system. You're sick on your feet right now—the third case I've found today. You fellows on the road are just inviting serious disease through constipation.

GRAHAM: Did you tell him about the cathartics?

EDWARDS: Yes, and he said "More poison—draws all the natural water out of your system—makes it harder to get rid of the waste." He put me on Nujol. And Nujol put me on my feet. And since then it's been keeping me on my feet.

GRAHAM: How do you account for it?

EDWARDS: Just this: Nujol is harmless—has no effect on the system except a mechanical one—softens and lubricates—so your body goes right on building while the Nujol works. It works slowly and gently—not like a drug. The more regularly you take it the better you feel. I'd no more be without it than my toothbrush. I'm through with drugs. (He pours out a tablespoonful.) Well, Graham—here's your health!

GRAHAM: Your health, I should say! But it's going to be my health in the future. Let me take a good look at that bottle so that I can get some when we get in. I guess you've talked me into insuring my health in a common-sense way.

For your own protection insist that the druggist give you the genuine Nujol, in a sealed and capped bottle, bearing the Nujol trademark in red—never otherwise. Nujol is absolutely pure and harmless. Inferior substitutes may give unpleasant results. Genuine Nujol sold by all druggists in the U. S. and Canada.

Send 50 cents and we will ship new kit size bottle to U. S. soldiers and sailors anywhere. Write for attractive free booklet on the Nujol treatment: Section 8, Nujol Dept., Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), Bayonne, N. J.

"Regular as Clockwork"

as among the finest and best of Methodist Christians, and in their trip around the world after Mr. Fairbanks became Vice-President they showed themselves such in all our mission fields and in the capitals and courts of the nations. Mr. Fairbanks was a clean, straight, noble and honored Christian man."
