

YOUTH DREAMS ROSY

Boys and Girls Voice Ambitions in Letters.

LIFE'S HOPES SET FORTH

School Children in Essays Express Desires of Work and Positions in Great World They Are Soon to Face.

Remember when you were a kid how you always wanted to be an engineer on a passenger train, or a detective, or a circus performer?

And how you turned out to be something altogether different?

If you can still remember back that far, you'll be interested in knowing what the Portland boys and girls are thinking about the future and of what rosy dreams they hold for the positions they are to occupy in life.

Under the title "Hitch Your Wagon to a Star," hundreds of Portland boys and girls have written their dreams and innermost secrets of their hearts and minds, have naively confessed to just such longings for thrills and brass buttons and high adventure as you used to have a good many years ago.

Writers Not Identified. Since the essays were signed by initials only, of course teacher could never tell which boy wanted to be a policeman and which demure little girl longed to prouette in pink lights in the sawdust ring. But she is permitted to puzzle over the familiar handwriting of her young charges and guess which is which.

"I want to be the foreman on the biggest cattle ranch this side of the Rio Grande," writes one boy and then adds in justification of his desires: "I have seen cattle branded and deboned, so that, now I will not get chicken-livered."

Another young man longs for the glory of a naval uniform. "I want to be an officer of the U. S. Navy," he writes. "It will take much training to get there, but when you're there you have something. My folks want me to be a civil engineer, but I have no feeling for that work."

"My ideal is to be a General in the Army," writes another boy. He is the leader of our fighting family. A woman who is womanly admires a manly man, not one with a rich dad and a white face.

This Ambition Not Unusual. "My ambition is to be an engineer on a passenger train," writes one young man, but, as if overpowered by the magnitude of his aim in life, he concludes apologetically: "But if I can't get to be this, I do not know. I know it takes self-control, being careful, accuracy and hard work."

Among the girls nursing and dress-making seem to be popular ideals for future occupations. "I think I will probably be a nurse," surmises a little girl who signs herself "L. G." "If I tell some people they say, 'Well, somebody was a nurse and they got a disease from their patient and it caused her death.' I do not know whether they tried to frighten me or not, but if all the nurses were afraid they would get a disease, I think we would have poor hospitals. I think I will be a nurse."

Another girl says: "I want to be a nurse, but will have to get over my fainting spells when I look at blood."

Embryo Dressmaker Writes. "An embryo dressmaker writes: 'I am told many times that I will tire of sewing, that it is drudgery. I do not believe it. Many people cannot sew as well as they should. Therefore I will sew for them. Every dressmaker were irrefragate there should be none.'"

One boy wants to be the owner of 7000 head of cattle on his way to this ideal by way of the back yard rabbit hutch. He says: "I am the owner of two dozen thoroughbred Black Giant rabbits and three White Leghorn chickens. I can at least double my stock every year and so come somewhere near my ambition."

Singers, business men, poets, authors, musicians, teachers, circus proprietors all are objects of longing on the part of Portland children. One young lady sings to a melody when she says she only longs to prepare herself to make a good home.

"Which of you has his desire in this world?" asks Thackeray in the epilogue to "Vanity Fair." "And which of us, having them, is satisfied?" It would be interesting to know how many of these youthful dreamers will realize their ideals and how many will hold their dreams through life.

RETIRED MERCHANT BURIED

Edmund C. Goddard Resident of Portland Since Year 1888.

The funeral services of the late Edmund C. Goddard were held yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was in the family plot in Riverside Cemetery. The funeral service was read by the Reverend Joshua Stansfield, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church. The pallbearers were James B. Kerr, Amedee M. Smith, Joseph F. Kelly, Arthur Spencer, Lansing Stout and F. W. Coaman.

Mr. Goddard was born in Monroe, Wis., May 10, 1862. He was the son of Anson W. and Sarah F. Goddard. He came to Portland in 1888 and engaged in the retail shoe business, and later, with Joseph F. Kelly, organized the Goddard-Kelly Shoe Company, which for many years was located at Sixth and Washington streets.

He retired from business in 1910, since which time he maintained his residence at 492 Mill street. He spent his Summer months at his farm overlooking the Columbia River at Underwood, Wash. He was educated at the University of Wisconsin and was a member of the Chi Psi fraternity. He was married in 1899 to Minnie McCracken, of Monroe, Wis. For 35 years he was a member of the board of directors of the Hibernal Savings Bank in this city. He belonged to the Lang Synk society and was a life member of the Multnomah Athletic Club.

He is survived by his widow, Elizabeth, his mother, a brother, Henry W. Goddard, and two sisters, Mrs. George H. Marsh and Mrs. Arthur P. McKinlay, of Portland. Mrs. Horace B. Fenlon, of Portland, is a niece.

DEAF PUPILS GRADUATE

Oral Class in Geography Conducted With Fourth-Grade Pupils.

Three students graduated Friday from the Portland School for the Deaf in the Buchanan School building. This is the second graduating class from Portland's School for the Deaf, which was established 13 years ago as part of Portland's efficient public school system. Ruth Seelig, Edith Patterson and William De Leash-nuth were the happy recipients of eighth-grade diplomas.

Mrs. Mable Odell conducted an oral class in geography with a fourth grade deaf class. The audience was enthusiastic over their ability to read lips and speak their replies.

Mrs. Florence Metcalf then presented her fifth, sixth and eighth graders. They gave in concert the flag salute, led by Chester Beara. Leonard Ward and Marvin Nelson carried the flag. "America" led by Ruth Seelig; "My Flag and Your Flag," led by Melba Anderson; "The Star-Spangled Banner" by Mrs. Florence Metcalf.

Superintendent Alderman then spoke touchingly of the noble characters of

WOODSTOCK SCHOOL GIRL WHO DIED RECENTLY.

Grace Smith Mathews, whose funeral was held Tuesday afternoon from the chapel of Miller & Tracey, was a pupil of the Woodstock School and much beloved by all who knew her. She was born at Mt. Cornick, Wash., December 22, 1901, and came to Portland with her parents in 1904. She passed away at the family residence, 6107 Sixty-second avenue Southeast, Saturday, June 8.

Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Mathews, she leaves an aunt, Mrs. E. W. Wyssong, of Great Falls, Mont., and a brother, John E. Sarauel, City Attorney of Duluth, Minn.

The children of the class and fittingly likened them to Pollyanna. He spoke of the inspiration he received for his working from the Portland school were reaching out the helping hand to those who need it most. He called each girl by name as he handed out the diplomas.

O. M. Plummer, School Director, spoke of his delight in the accomplishment of these pupils, and paid high tribute to their teacher, Mrs. Florence Metcalf.

WAR VETERANS TO MEET

NORTH PACIFIC COAST ENCAMPMENT WILL OPEN JUNE 19.

Programme Will Include Addresses by Prominent Portlanders, Banquet and Other Features.

The men who fought the marauding Indians of the North Pacific Coast many years ago will gather in Portland June 19 to attend the 29th annual encampment of the Indian War Veterans, which will convene here in the Masonic Temple.

The first meeting of the encampment will be held June 19 at 10 A. M., when a welcome to the early pioneer Indian fighters will be given by Rufus C. Holt, chairman of the County Commissioners. Grand Commander Edwin Ross will preside over the meetings.

A banquet, the gift of Portland business men, will be served at noon by the sons and daughters of the veterans under the direction of Mrs. L. A. Bailey, president of the City Commission. Dan Kellner will speak in the afternoon and Webber's juvenile orchestra will furnish music.

The officers of the encampment are: Edwin Ross, grand commander; Cyrus Walker, vice-grand commander; John W. Cullen, junior vice-grand commander; Otto Kleen, grand adjutant; Mrs. Frank L. Benedict, grand adjutant; Charles Chamberlain, grand paymaster. The grand chaplain, Dr. Parker H. Dyott, died during the past year.

The following reception committee has been appointed: Mrs. L. M. Parrish, Mrs. S. Wishart, Mrs. Thomas Moffett, Mrs. Harry E. Chipman, Mrs. F. M. Olds, Mrs. J. W. McGregor, Mrs. Edith Olds Durham, Miss Nellie Cornelius, Robert A. Miller, W. H. Wood, A. J. McDaniel, Mrs. Otto Kleeman and Jacob Probstel.

YOUTHS ACCUSED OF THEFT

One in Jail at Marshfield, Other Sought by Police.

MARSHFIELD, Or., June 15.—(Special.)—Paroled after being convicted of killing and eating a pig belonging to a Coquille Valley resident, John Brewster and Bob Johnson, aged 19 and 18 respectively, again face the law.

Brewster was behind secure bars in the City Jail, and Johnson from some hiding place. The latter is being sought by police and constables throughout the Coos Bay district.

Loggers at the Assen camp on the Coquille River mislaid clothing, money, watches and other valuables. They after the two youths departed from the camp and a search was at once instituted.

Brewster says he knows nothing of the theft and says Johnson has all the plunder. The boys came from the northern part of California a few weeks ago.

ALBANY ELKS HONOR FLAG

Big Temple Hall Filled With Enthusiastic Throng.

ALBANY, Or., June 15.—(Special.)—One of the most enthusiastic patriotic meetings ever held here occurred last evening at the observance of Flag day by the Albany Lodge of Elks. Hundreds of local people and many from nearby cities and towns attended, completely filling the large hall in the Elks' Temple.

Rev. Father William Kane, of Monroe, was the principal speaker and delivered a splendid address. J. R. Wyant, past exalted ruler, gave the Elks' tribute to the flag, and C. W. Boettcher, superintendent of the Albany public schools, read the history of the flag. Talks were also given by Willard L. Marks, representing the local Home Guard Company, and Cyrus H. Walker, representing the Grand Army of the Republic, both of which organizations attended the service in a body as spe-
