

FORER RESIDENTS OF SALEM GATHER

Capital City Gives Warm Welcome to Those Who Travel Far for Event.

SPLENDID TIME ENJOYED

Days of Long Ago Recalled by Visitors and Those Who Stayed at Home While Others Wandered All Over Globe.

SALEM, Or., June 29.—(Special.)—This was the happiest day in history for hundreds of Salemites who turned out to greet visitors from near and far—former residents of the city—come home to spend a day and renew old friendships and acquaintanceships.

Probably Salem has never witnessed so genuinely a whole-souled reunion as that which took place here today, and some who ventured out are so old that it may be their last chance to visit with those who as children had been their companions in pranks at school in the distant past.

Many were gathered on Willson avenue, now one of the beauty spots of the coast, who had not seen that historic old park since the days when they grew upon it as toddlers for the horses of Salem's first regular fire department.

Probably Salem has never witnessed so genuinely a whole-souled reunion as that which took place here today, and some who ventured out are so old that it may be their last chance to visit with those who as children had been their companions in pranks at school in the distant past.

From Washington came Judge R. P. Chadwick and Judge Mark Fullerton, members of the Supreme bench of that state, while Justice George H. Burnett, chairman of the day sits upon the Supreme bench in this state.

A. B. Croaman, with his wife of Portland, was here, and to him of the city was like a glimpse of his youth. He conducted a large store here over 20 years ago, was one time postmaster and a factor in this community.

The three Watt girls, of the famous Watt family, which founded the town of Amity in Yamhill County, were all here. They are no longer the Watt girls to the world outside, but to the hundreds in the park today they were still the Watt girls of the early days.

Sanford Watson, another old-timer, who came here in 1849, but who lived in Los Angeles from 1894 up to a short time ago, was also here. His uncle was one of the great stockmen of the Willamette Valley.

Dan Waldo Bass, of Seattle, was here with his wife. He is now one of the owners of a leading Seattle hotel. It was his grandfather, "Uncle Sam" Bass, who gave his name to the Waldo Hills. John Bolt, of Willamina, whose father was a patriarch of Salem, was also among the visitors, with his sister, Mrs. Hurlat.

From Salem old-timers like Joe Baker, who came here in 1849, but who lived in land claim abutting on the town of Salem; George P. Litchfield, who for years has been a living repository of the story of Salem and her sons and daughters; John Wright, steward at the asylum, who is more than 80 years of age and one of the oldest of the Salemites; Judge P. H. D'Arcy, of the original townsite of Salem since the early days, and numerous other of the early-day pioneers of the city were at the park.

Ex-Governor T. T. Geer, who was speaker of the day at the program presided over by Justice George H. Burnett, and his speech teemed with reminiscences of the old days which held the boys and girls of a quarter and a half century ago.

Some of the adopted sons and daughters will be given the honor this year of commemorating the anniversary of the Nation's independence. This is the expressed wish of President Wilson, and in Portland the Fourth of July celebration will be carried out almost entirely by Americans of foreign birth; by men and women from Occident and Orient whose hearts are loyal to their adopted country's flag—100 per cent Americans, all of them.

Plans for this extensive demonstration were considered at a meeting yesterday of the general committee in charge of the Fourth of July celebration. The tentative line of march was mapped out; the speaking programme at Multnomah field, where the parade will disband, was arranged, and details for the public entertainment in the evening at the Auditorium were fully discussed.

Speeches will be heard. At Multnomah field a short speaking programme will be given. Representatives of the numerous foreign lands from whence these loyal Americans have come will speak briefly, telling why they and the people they represent came to this land of freedom.

The British empire will "carry on" in a manner most loyal and patriotic, the people of the British Empire and her colonies will march several hundred strong. The English, Irish, Scotch, Welsh, Canadians and Australians will be in the line of march. Other foreign-born Americans who will be represented are the French, Belgians, Danes, Bohemians, Chinese, Japanese, Swiss, Swedes, Norwegians, Germans, Hollenders, Greeks, Poles, Armenians and Serbs.

An inspiring four-minute message from President Wilson to the people of America will be read at the patriotic exercises at Multnomah field. This message will be delivered by a personal representative of the President, whose name the committee has not yet announced.

In addition to the many countries that will figure in the big street parade, a number of military and patriotic organizations of the state and Nation will be represented. Khaki-clad units of the Oregon National Guard will march, as will other military organizations. Men and women of the Y. M. C. A. and of the service League, the young men in training at the Benson Polytechnic School, Multnomah Guards, Marine Corps, etc., will be represented. The general committee has asked that 100 men from abiding in the shipbuilding plants take part in the ceremonies.

The parade will form, probably, at the head of Sixteenth street, according to the tentative outline given out yesterday by Colonel Hibbard, of the Multnomah Guard, who will be grand marshal. It will march north on Fourth, west on Broadway, east to Broadway, south to Taylor, east to Fourth, north to Pine, west to Fifth, south to Morrison, west to Sixth, north to Pine, west to Broadway, south to Alder and west on Alder to Nineteenth street, where it will disband at Multnomah field. The line of march may be changed. Due notice will be given by the committee.

The evening programme at the Auditorium will be chiefly a patriotic dance for enlisted men. Between dances a special entertainment will be given by foreign-born Americans. The entertainment is open to the general public.

Every appeal is being made to British-born Americans to take part in the parade. Several meetings of the committee, of which A. G. Brown is chairman, have been held to arouse enthusiasm over the coming celebration. A committee of women will take charge of the work of getting the children in readiness for the parade. This committee consists of Mrs. Arthur King, Miss Elizabeth Stevens, Mrs. F. S. H. Stevenson, Mrs. J. J. Pantan and Mrs. Petrie. The British have selected Dr. W. T. Williamson as their speaker at the Multnomah field exercises.

All Irish and Irish-Americans are urged to take part in the programme. In a stirring appeal issued by J. M. Toomey and L. Shanahan, of the committee. Those who will march in this section are asked to meet at Eleventh and Alder streets 8 1/2 m. of July 4. The general Fourth of July committee for the city consists of S. C. Bratton, chairman; Colonel Hibbard, J. K. Kollack, Charles F. Berg and Mrs. Alice Benson Beach.
