More Than 2500 Soldiers Are Served by Women During Friday and Saturday.

WORKING FORCE IS LOYAL

Opening Night Featured by Band Concert and Vocal Selections by Local Singers—Thousands Write Home Folks.

With less than one week to organize, the canteen committee of the Portland chapter, American Red Cross, in the late hours of Friday and the early hours of yesterday morning served 2500 soldiers on three troop trains at the Union Depot.

The entire working force of the canteen was required, as was the case yesterday, when during the day other troop trains carrying thousands of soldiers passed through Portland.

The organization of the canteen was entrusted by the Portland chapter to Mrs. Ferdinand E. Reed, chairman. Without a penny of expense, to the chapter Mrs. Reed arranged for all her workers to be supplied with the canteen uniforms of the Red Cross, and for the equipping of the canteen quarters, loaned to the canteen committee by Depot Master Lyons.

Soldiers leaving Portland for unknown destinations first desire to notify their relatives that they are "on the way." Thus, in the first big movement of troops handled by the canteen committee, more than 2500 postal cards were supplied to the soldiers by the canteen workers.

The canteen committee solicits the donation of fruit, candy or delicacies," said Mrs. Reed.

Mrs. Reed's organization consists of two lieutenants, Mrs. E. N. Howe and Mrs. R. S. Sienk.

Under these two officers are the following workers: Miss Lottie Hatfield, Mrs. Stanley Lamb, Anna May Lawrence, Mrs. Wilford Jahn, Mrs. George W. Burr, Mrs. E. W. Jamieson, Mrs. H. W. Landfare, Mrs. Joseph Kettner, Mrs. M. C. O'Brien, Mrs. H. Kerble, Mrs. D. Perry Evans, Mrs. E. A. Fredrick, Ethel Ann Carroll, Lena M. Worthington, Mrs. M. E. Scholth, Mrs. Feathers, Mrs. W. A. McDougall, Mrs. George Lennox, Mrs. Walter Keck, Mrs. Seane Wilson, Bertha Merrill, Mrs. Scholth, Mrs. Hugh Kalpe, Mrs. Henry Meyer, Mrs. Irving Bollinger, Mrs. Henry Rothchild, Bernice Shirley Hill, Mrs. Mrs. Carl Liebe, Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. William C. At 3 o'clock large numbers of the visiting delegates will arrive at the hotel. The concert of the massed military band will be the first city honor in deference to their presence. For the occasion the First Provisional and Second Provisional Regiment bands of the Spruce Production Division, Vancouver, and the Multnomah Guard will be on duty. The band will be in the peacock room of the Multnomah Hotel.

Aside from these events the visitors will enjoy a quiet day. Two or three able speakers among the notables in the city will be impressed in church pulpits.

More definite preparation for the encampment and conventions will be inaugurated tomorrow. Credentials committees of the various bodies will assemble early in the day, and will be in session as much of the time as necessary until the formal meetings are in swing on Tuesday or Wednesday. The credentials committee of the G. A. R. will be found in the peacock room of the Multnomah Hotel.

Ship Launching Is Feature. On the official program for tomorrow there is the opportunity for all guests of the city to witness the launching of a ship.

At 8 o'clock in the evening the state and the city will extend formal welcome to the conventions. Governor Withycombe will be present to extend greetings on behalf of the state and Mayor Baker will speak for the city. General orders No. 7 were made public yesterday by the commander of the city, and outlining details of the great G. A. R. parade of Tuesday morning.

Appeal was issued again yesterday by those in charge for the citizens of Portland to bring a profusion of roses to be tossed at the marching veterans. It is preferred that the flowers be left at the Liberty Temple quite early Tuesday morning.

It was said yesterday at the Liberty Temple headquarters, where the housing committee is directed by Thomas J. Swivel, that no more outlying rooms need be listed by residents of the city. More rooms on the West Side and close to the downtown district can be used.

LIFT OFF CORNS!

Freezone is magic! Apply a few drops on a sore, touchy corn or a painful callus. Instantly that corn or callus stops hurting you. Then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off, root and all, with the fingers. No! Not one bit of pain, no soreness, no irritation.

A few cents buys a tiny bottle of the magic Freezone at any drug store. Sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes and painful callus from one's feet. Freezone is the much-talked-of ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius. Corns and calluses lift away without even a twinge of pain. Why wait? No humbug!

OLD HIT RECALLED

"Interview" With President Grant Memorable One.

QUESTIONER IS QUESTIONED

Coming of G. A. R. Host to Portland Brings Back Incident of Years Ago, When Reporter, Later Soldier, Triumphed.

BY ADDISON BENNETT. Shortly after General Grant became President Grant, he was on a trip westward over the Central Ohio branch of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, which passes through Zanesville, a fine little city about midway between the Ohio River and Columbus, the capital of the state.

At the time mentioned there was a mighty brisk little evening daily newspaper published in Zanesville, its name being, if I remember aright, the Evening Courier. Anyhow on this paper there was a young man who was quite new at the game. He had, however, served his country as a soldier during the Civil War, and many years later became the owner of the newspaper and also served as Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

His name was Brown, but as I have forgotten his Christian name I will call him Comrade Brown. Not because I served my country as he did, but because so many of his old comrades in arms are in Portland today.

Brown Tackles Big Job. The manager of the Courier thought it would be a fine stroke to get an interview with Grant, and Brown was assigned to the duty. So he went east to board the train at Bellaire, a station at the west end of the bridge across the Ohio River. This would give him over an hour so that he might get a good long interview.

But Comrade Brown found it slow work to get into the private car occupied by the President. He got there finally, however, when the train was about 15 minutes east of his home town—and waiting press. He presented his card to the great man's attendant, his name was given and Grant asked him how long he had been in the newspaper business, how large a town Zanesville was, what its chief industries were, the condition of the crops thereabout, how long the Courier had been established, its circulation, its cost per year, the name of the press they used, what hour they went to press, the price of potatoes and eggs in the open market, the name of the best hotel there—and various other questions of a like nature. In fact, Grant was in great good humor, and very loquacious, which for him was a wonder indeed. But on that particular occasion he fired questions at Comrade Brown so rapidly that the newspaper novice had no possible chance to ask a question himself, not a single one. So he went back to his office crestfallen, with his empty notebook, empty save as to the numerous questions he had neatly written down for the purpose of having Grant answer them.

"Well," said the publisher as he entered the office, "did you get to see him?" "Yes," replied Comrade Brown. "Well, hurry up and get it written for the compa are waiting, the press is waiting, we are all waiting—rush it through."

"But," mumbled Comrade Brown, "I didn't get to interview him; he fired questions at me all the time and I had no chance to ask him anything."

Interview Makes Hit. The publisher was a man who had the real newspaper instinct for news and he knew at once that Brown had succeeded where all the other newspapers had failed—in getting Grant to talk at all. So he hurried Comrade Brown into the sanctum, had him jot down the questions, and then he had his answers put a scare head on the article and got out his extra with "An Interview by the Courier Representative With President Grant." It made a great hit, and gave Comrade Brown the name of "The man who interviewed Grant."

He stuck to the game, became owner of the paper, made a success in life and was for a term the Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.
