

FAIR PROMISES TO BE RECORD EVENT
Board Is Confident Display Will Be Best in History of Institution.

WAR INTEREST IS ASSURED
Appeal to Patriotism of People Will Be No Small Feature of Event.

SALEM, Or., Sept. 14.—(Special.)—War time conditions are faced without a tremor by the Oregon State Fair board. Confident that the fair will be second to none in the history of the institution when the gates open Monday, September 23, the members look for a record attendance.

The fact that the fair this year will appeal to the patriotism of the people in the war crisis is counted further assurance of a good attendance.

Conservation and the necessity for top-notch food production, coupled with patriotic features, will assist the people of the state in keeping their eyes on the country's main goal, while at the same time they will be enjoying a good old-fashioned fair.

From pumpkins to the racing card, Secretary Lea has outstripped himself this year in an effort to get the best.

State Fair Steadily Grows.

The State Fair has grown so in recent years that to describe it would be like describing a fair-sized international exposition. Amusements there will be in plenty; the automobile and tractor shows will be the best ever seen on the coast; the pavilion will be dressed in its gayest and crammed with the best that Oregon fields, woods and streams produce; the children's exhibits will be far and away ahead of all past efforts; the dairy products, stock barns and other buildings will be splendid examples of Oregon's best.

The races will be supplemented by some thrilling automobile speeding, especially on the first day of the fair, for which some unique and daring features have been arranged. The race entries show strings of horses that have made magnificent records here and elsewhere in the West.

"The State Fair this year promises to be the best in its history and this is as it should be, for at all times this is the time we should stimulate agricultural production," said Governor Withycomb, today.

President Advocates Fair.

"President Wilson has wisely advocated the continuance of fairs this year, despite the terrible crisis confronting the country, so let Oregonians be patriotic and loyal to their state fair and make it the banner fair in the history of Oregon."

"The Oregon State Fair is the most important fair of its class on the Pacific Coast. It is becoming a real school of practical education. There are many commendable features added this year, particularly that dealing with food conservation and production."

"The Boys' and Girls' Club work also is becoming a strong feature of the State Fair. This is commendable, because the future of modern agriculture in our state depends upon the enthusiasm and inspiration acquired by our younger population. The future farmer of the state should receive his inspiration early in life and there is no better place to acquire this than at the State Fair."

Rain Will Not Interfere.

"The State Fair board should be commended for the splendid enterprise it has shown in providing an up-to-date and commodious coliseum in which the livestock can be displayed to the best advantage. This will be a valuable acquisition to the fair especially in case of inclement weather. With this building, rain or shine, we can have a good fair."

The Food Administration will have an exhibit at the fair showing how substitutes are grown, their value and how they are used. Daily lectures and demonstrations will be given by experts on food production and conservation. Fully as many counties as last year will be represented by agricultural and horticultural exhibitors.

Tractors will predominate in the machinery division and there will be a splendid automobile exhibit. The famous Fordson tractor will be shown for the first time in the West. The machinery pavilion will be a great center of attraction this year.

ROUNDUP STAGE SET
Eclipsing Performance at Pendleton Assured.

PROGRAMME ABOUT READY
Patriotism Will Be Keynote in Show This Year—Musical and Other Ringing Demonstrations Promised.

PENDLETON, Or., Sept. 14.—(Special.)—Within the week Pendleton will stage her ninth annual Round-Up and, barring a few details, a programme is ready for the three big days, September 19, 20 and 21, that will rival that of any previous year. Everything, in every way, points to a great show.

Officers of the State Council of Defense, who called the meeting, have extended an invitation to the various trades and organizations, such as the lumber interests, real estate dealers, property owners and laborers, to be present and participate in the discussion.

It has been pointed out by those in charge of the meeting that Portland does not desire a colony of inferior buildings, but modern four and five-room cottages such as will be a credit to the city. Tomorrow night's mass meeting may develop into a memorable event in the history of Portland, and all loyal residents of the Rose City who are interested are urged to attend.

MORAL EDUCATION URGED

This conference is called by Mrs. William Akers, president of the Parent-Teacher Council of the city.

BAKER, Or., Sept. 14.—(Special.)—The County Court is informed by the State Highway Commission that two units of the Baker-Cornucopia post-road have been approved and that bids for construction soon will be asked. The sections approved extend from Eagle Valley down Powder River and from Powder River over the mountain into Pine Valley. Survey of the other portions of the 60-mile highway has been completed and the route approved, with the exception of one small section.

Its completion will mean a year-round usable highway. Of the $25,000 required as the county's share in financing it, a large portion has been subscribed, the balance being pledged by the County Court. With an equal appropriation by the state commission and the $50,000 thus provided matched dollar for dollar by the Federal Government, the estimated cost of $100,000 for completing it is assured.
